...ENFORCEMENT ACT ...CHANGES FORECAST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—The possibility of changes by Congress in the prohibition enforcement act has been suggested by James M. Doran, in charge of the industrial alcohol division at the Treasury.

He expressed the opinion last night the Eighteenth Amendment will be retained.

"It may be that Congress will change the Enforcement Act in some part," he said. "But in any event Congress must enact proper enforcement laws in order to be mentally honest. There is nothing necessary about always holding that more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol content is illegal."

DRY STUDY GOAL SET

Progress Made by Board

Commission Nears Formula for Solving Vexatious Prohibition Issue

Is It Being Enforced or Can It Be, and if Not Should Law Be Repealed?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Prepared to go "to the bottom" of the prohibition question, President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission neared a formula for solving this troublesome problem today.

This formula, still subject to future discussion, provides that the ten men and one woman of the commission first determine whether the dry law is being reasonably well enforced and, if it is not, whether it can be perfected to make it enforceable.

CHANGE OR REPEAL?

Should the commission reach the conclusion prohibition cannot be enforced the next step will be a decision whether it shall recommend modification or repeal.

There is no unanimity among the eleven minds on all details of such a program particularly over the latter part of it, but as the commissioners went home over the week-end to study further the voluminous reports on prohibition there appeared to be signs this plan is gaining favor.

It has been contended by an element of the commission in the three days of meetings that prohibition is the main issue confronting its inquiry into law enforcement and is the problem to be acted upon before going further with the work.

EARLY REPORT SOUGHT

This group has won its demand the wet and dry problem be tackled now with a view to submitting an early report to President Hoover.

During discussion over procedure there has been no division of the commission whatever on the merits of prohibition.

The rule of secrecy has been invoked again and a determined effort is obviously being undertaken to enforce the rule as the commission approaches its decision on prohibition. There has been no hint or even a guess from the commission chambers as to how the members stand on this subject after their long investigation.

The commission will reassemble here again Wednesday.

CANNON OUT AS COLLEGE BOARD HEAD

Another Elected to Post at Virginia Institution of Which He Was Founder

BLACKSTONE (Va.) Oct. 10. (AP) Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was replaced today as chairman of the board of trustees of the Blackstone College for Girls, an institution he founded and headed for twenty-four years, by N. P. Angle of Rocky Mount, Va.

An announcement by the board following a meeting said all eighteen members present voted for Mr. Angle to succeed Bishop Cannon.

Although members of the board of trustees declined to say whether Bishop Cannon had resigned as chairman, it is known his resignation was before the board.

The bishop was not present at today's meeting.

Members of the board all declined to say whether the change in the chairmanship was connected with new charges filed recently against Bishop Cannon by four traveling elders of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch, however, made public in Richmond a telegram it had received from Bishop Cannon quoting his letter of resignation, in which he points out that the college is endeavoring to increase its patronage and an endowment, and adds:

"Those who have given my connection with the college as a reason for their failure to give it their support now will have the opportunity to indicate their interest by giving to the college their immediate enthusiastic and effective support."

He appeals to his friends to stand by the college.

Seized Plane Fatal to Two

DETROIT, Oct. 10. (AP)—The second fatality resulting from an attempt of Detroit police to seize an airplane occurred today with the death in a Mt. Clemens hospital of Detective Peter J. Sprott.

Sprott was a passenger in the plane with Junius Kelly, whom the department employed Wednesday to remove the seized flying machine from Gratiot Airport to City Airport. The plane crashed at the take-off. Kelly died a few hours later.

The plane had been seized on complaint of Lee Phelps of Marion, Ind., who reported it stolen.

Missing Vessel Causes Anxiety

BRUSSELS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Considerable anxiety is felt here for the steamer Tigris, belonging to the Antwerp Shipping Agency, which left Alexandria September 18 and was due in Antwerp the 4th inst., but has not been heard from.

It is feared the ship was destroyed in a storm because two buoys marked Tigris have been found on the Sussex coast. Twenty Belgians were among her thirty-three crew members.

VICTORIA (Spain) Oct. 10. (AP)—One striker was killed and two were wounded by civil guards today as a group of strikers attempted to stone a detachment of guards in Chiquita street.

POLA NEGRI ASKS DIVORCE

Screen Star Files Suit in Paris Tribunal Against Prince Serge Mdivani

PARIS, Oct. 10. (AP)—Pola Negri, motion-picture actress, filed suit for divorce here today from Prince Serge Mdivani. The screen star went personally to the Palace of Justice this afternoon, accompanied by two attorneys, and made her request for legal separation from Prince Mdivani before the president of the Seine tribunal.

The reconciliation meeting, at which, under French law, the judge attempts to reunite estranged couples, will be held toward the end of the month.

The grounds upon which Pola asked for a divorce were not made public.

This was the second time the temperamental star had sought to break the bonds with her fascinating prince. On November 29, 1929, she brought a suit on the ground of incompatibility. Then in early December, just when the legal reconciliation meeting was about to be held, it was announced they had kissed and made up. In making this announcement Pola said, "We have been separated but never in our hearts. We could not get along without each other."

All seemed well for a while, then there began again to be rumors that all was not so peaceful. Prince Serge, it was asserted in some of the smart bars of Paris, was again being seen in public without his Princess.

MARY McCORMIC SAYS IT'S "PERFECTLY GRAND"

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (Exclusive) Mary McCormic, Chicago Civic Opera singer, whose name has consistently been linked with the divorce proceedings of Pola Negri and the handsome Prince Serge Mdivani, arrived from France today just as word came from Paris that Pola had reopened the divorce suit.

When Mary was told of the impending separation she beamed like a film heroine in the final close-up.

"Really," she said. "Isn't that perfectly grand?"

To Mary it began to look as if the long-debated Prince was at last coming her way. She said as much.

"Do I still love him? Maybe. He took me from Paris to Cherbourg seven days ago when I left Europe on the Bremen."

How Mary met the Prince who last year, before Pola and he kissed and made up, seemed ready to plunge into a new romance, was told to interviewers.

"It was in the oil fields of Oklahoma," said Mary. "That was five years ago. I was simply over-

Larceny Charge Against Representative Kunz by Woman Stirs Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Stanley H. Kunz of the Eighth Illinois District was charged with larceny by bailee in a warrant issued by Judge Lyle, the 6th inst., it was learned today. The Representative has not yet been served with the warrant.

Mrs. Anna Rogal, who signed the warrant, charges that she paid Kunz $850 to help obtain passports for the entry into this country of her mother and two sisters from Budapest. She possesses a receipt for the money signed by the Representative on his official stationery dated May, 1928, she said. After waiting for months without the promised aid she asked for her money back but was refused.

Representative Kunz was acquitted with his son, Stanley, Jr., last February, of a confidence-game charge resulting from assertions that he accepted $400 for his influence in obtaining a police job for a candidate.

FARM HAND HEIR TO RICHES

New York Man Inherits $4,000,000 in England, but Keeps at Work Awaiting Joker

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS (N. Y.) Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Four million dollars is a lot of money, and William H. Girhin, 28 years of age, a farm hand of Yorktown, is holding his fingers crossed until he gets it. But all indications are that he will.

Girhin never paid much attention to what his father told him before his death twelve years ago about coming from an important family across the Atlantic. He just buckled down to work of farming around Yorktown to support his mother and himself.

Even when a letter reached him from the Chancery Bank in London announcing that a relative of his father had left him $4,000,000, he wasn't excited and carried the missive around in his pocket for weeks, afraid to show it lest he and it should be laughed at.

Finally, however, he confided in Frederick Mackerer, proprietor of a Yorktown lunch wagon, and together they wrote to the English bank. Another letter came confirming the first one, and also a letter from the Spanish government informing the farm hand that he also had inherited an estate in Spain from relatives of his grandmother.

All that remains now is for Girhin to prove his identity, and to help him in that the Chancery Bank is sending him $15,000 to enable him and his mother to go to England. Meanwhile he is remaining at work, fearful there is a joker in it all, somewhere.

CURRY DIES IN CAPITAL

Congressman of State Passes

Dean of California's House Delegation Had Been Ill Several Months

Sacramento Representative, 72 Years of Age, Long in Public Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Representative Curry, dean of the California delegation in Congress, died tonight after several months' illness.

Mr. Curry, who represented the Third California District, had been a member of the House for eighteen years. He was 72 years of age. He had been ill several months and recently underwent an operation.

Mr. Curry, a former Secretary of State of California, was chairman of the House Territories Committee and a member of the Flood Control Committee. He was a Republican and lived at Sacramento. He was the author of a number of books.

The California Representative had been in ill-health even since he was injured in an automobile accident several years ago. Several operations were resorted to but he never fully regained his health. He spent some time in the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore last year, and several months ago underwent an operation at the naval hospital here.

PUBLIC SERVICE IN STATE BEGAN IN 1887

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Charles Forrest Curry of Sacramento was a veteran member of Congress and one of the outstanding figures in State and national politics.

Mr. Curry had served the State and nation in an official capacity for more than forty years.

In the recent primary he was nominated by both Republicans and Democrats for election to Congress from his district for the tenth consecutive time.

A special election will be necessary to fill the vacancy. This will probably be held in January. Charles F. Curry, Jr., State Senator Will Sharkey, Martinez, Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento, and Chris R. Jones, Sacramento, were mentioned tonight as possible candidates.

Mr. Curry was born in Naperville, Ill., in March, 1858. His family soon moved to Washington and a short time later moved to San Francisco. In 1888 he was elected Assemblyman from that city. He subsequently held the office of mail superintendent, San Francisco County Clerk, Secretary of State, building and loan commissioner and Representative in Congress.

Mr. Curry ran against Hiram W. Johnson, now United States Senator, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1910, but was defeated by Johnson.

In 1891 he married Lillie A. Siperly of Butte county, who died several years later. He leaves a son and daughter, Charles F. Curry, Jr., and Florence A. Curry.

Walker Denies He'll Join Fox

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Mayor Walker denied emphatically today reports he might retire from office about the first of next year to become counsel for the Fox Film Company.

"There's nothing to it," he declared of a copyrighted article appearing in the Motion Picture News. "It has not been submitted to me. I have no intention of resigning for any reason."

Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, Oct. 10. [To the Editor of the Times:] Mr. Coolidge said yesterday "some are supporting candidates because they are good fellows. It is vain to elect office-seekers who smile. You can't run the government on entertainment." Them's harsh words, Calvin. Evidently Mr. Coolidge knows of some Democrats who are good fellows running against some sad Republicans, and this is his sly way of asking you to vote for a sad-faced Republican, for any man that can smile nowadays must be a Democrat, or a half-wit, or perhaps both. Being serious or Being a good fellow has got nothing to do with running this country. If the breaks are with you you could be a laughing hyena and still have a great administration.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

SHOW GIRLS WIN STRIKE ON CORSETS

Chorines Declare Shapes Would Be Spoiled and Shubert Gives In

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—When that cardinal principal of the stage—the curtain must not be late—was violated for some fifty minutes at the Great Northern Theater tonight, a patient audience waiting in front knew not that a chorus girls' strike was on.

The chorus girls, thirty-five of them, refused to wear corsets contrary to the scenic episodes which required their wearing.

"They spoil our shapes," protested several of them, "and they're not necessary."

Dissention over the corsets followed the show from New York. Finally, the ring leaders, Lillian Lane, Patricia Allen and Artemis Paque, announced the chorus would not perform with corsets.

The three were given two weeks' notice of dismissal. That was a week ago. Tonight the strike was called.

A hurried phone call was made to J. J. Shubert in New York.

He settled the threatened walkout by eliminating the corsets, and the show and night were saved.

Radio Speaker Found Guilty

MEDFORD (Or.) Oct. 10. (AP)—Robert Gordon Duncan, radio speaker, was convicted here today of using "obscene, indecent and profane" language over the radio. He was convicted on the third count of the indictment and acquitted on four other counts.

The penalty for the charge is a maximum of five years in prison.

Duncan was prosecuted by the government on the grounds he had violated Federal laws in his use of the radio. Station KVEP in Portland, over which he spoke, was closed by the government.

Bagshaw Estate Exceeds $25,000

SEATTLE, Oct. 10. (AP)—Enoch W. Bagshaw, former University of Washington football coach who died suddenly in Olympia, the 3rd inst., left an estate in excess of $25,000 to his widow, it was revealed here today. Mrs. Elizabeth L. Bagshaw was appointed executrix of the estate.

REBELS WIN IN BATTLE

Brazil Federals Captured

Three Killed and Thirteen Wounded in Fighting for Control of Joinville

State Police Unconquered; Fund of $500,000 Voted to Insurrectos

PORTO ALEGRE, RIO GRANDE DO SUL (Brazil) Oct. 10. (AP)—Brazilian Federals and rebels today fought a battle at Joinville, a Santa Catharina city, which is one of the two government holdings in South Brazil. The clash resulted in two civilians and one rebel being killed, thirteen rebels wounded and the surrender of part of the defending forces.

A communique sent from Curityba by Caldas Braga, revolutionary chieftain who led the assault on Joinville, said the Eighth Battalion of Artillery and a naval battalion of two officers and 190 men had surrendered before the rebel onslaught.

POLICE HOLD OUT

Despite the surrender of two units, Capt. Tregildo and a force of Santa Catharina State police held out. A company of rebel soldiers and a detachment of the Thirteenth Battalion of engineers attacked the police rear guard, while other revolutionaries set out to capture the officers of the Eighth Artillery Battery, who did not surrender with their men.

Other revolutionary information obtainable here today said that Deputy Nereu Ramos headed a force which had occupied San Joaquim, State of Santa Catharina.

VOTE REBEL FUNDS

The Rio Grande do Sul House of Representatives today voted a credit of 50,000 contos (about $500,000) to carry on the revolutionary movement. Porto Alegre banks resumed operations today and reported receipts greater than withdrawals.

Revolutionary chieftains also asserted their troops are hemming in the Federal regulars on all sides, with advance skirmishes indicating a heavy battle soon will be fought near the border of Sao Paulo State.

In the northeast the rebels claim the States of Pernambuco, Parahyba, Ceara, Piauhy and Rio Grande do Norte, with a strong army of 6000 men under Capt. Juarez Tavora marching to attack the Federal defenses at Bahia.

STRONGHOLDS SEIZED

In the south the revolutionists assert they hold nearly all strategic points except the city of Florianopolis, State of Santa Catharina, and predict they shortly will take over that town.

It is in the central part of the republic, however, the rebel leaders say they are pressing the Federals hard. Marching toward the expected battle in Parana, which has been predicted for twenty-four hours, are 8000 rebel troops under Gen. Miguel Costa and 5000 Parana soldiers commanded by Col. Souza Pinto. These forces hope to unite near Castro and, with other revolutionary troops now in Parana, create an army of 40,000. With a victory here they would sweep on toward the prosperous city of Sao Paulo, a rich prize.

They also would be able to turn some troops backward to attack the Federals in Florianopolis, with others marching up from Rio Grande do Sul to engage the government forces in the rear.

OFFENSIVE ORDERED

Gen. Costa, commanding the Federal troops at Florianopolis, has ordered an offensive against the insurgent troops.

Other revolutionaries, operating principally out of the State of Minas Geraes—directly north of the capital—are moving to surround Rio de Janeiro and isolate it.

The revolutionists assert one army from Minas Geraes has invaded the State of Espirito Santo, along the coast northeast of the capital, and from there has gone southward into the State of Rio de

DEAD OF R-101 TOLD ADIEU

British Empire and Foreign Envoys Join in Great Tribute to Air Disaster Victims

LONDON, Oct. 10. (AP)—This was Great Britain's day of deepest mourning for the forty-eight men who died as a result of the disaster which wrecked the dirigible R-101 in France last Sunday.

At mid-day in St. Paul's Cathedral the heart of an empire throbbed in sorrow during the great memorial service, attended by the envoys of the world powers and Britons of all degrees.

Across the sweeping bands of the River Thames where the towers of Parliament rise in the autumn mists, there reated in old Westminster Hall a long double row of coffins. Before them, in a never ending line from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., passed thousands of persons to pay their last tribute to the dead.

The main service, however, was in St. Paul's. Through this historic edifice the mourners marched today, the Prince of Wales, representing King George; the wives, children or sweethearts of the victims; statesmen, soldiers and Englishmen of all classes; the empire prime ministers now in London, and foreign diplomats, including Ambassador Dawes, accompanied by his nephew Henry.

There were dirigible men from Cardington who wept as they sang "Rock of Ages," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

The Prince of Wales, attired in dark clothing, stood with lowered eyes. Beside him stood his brother, the Duke of York. Nearby was Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, grieving over the loss of his intimate friend, Lord Thomson, Air Minister. David Lloyd George was there, too, his overcoat turned up around his silver hair to guard against the chilly air.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, with the ensign of the R-101 above the altar behind him, pronounced a benediction upon the great congregation and especially on those who cleave "the pathway of the air."

Softly began the first notes of the dead march, then the music roared through the vaulted cathedral as the engines of the R-101 must have sounded before the airship crashed.

Trumpeters of the Royal Air Force blared the notes of last post.

That was all except for the sight of a little gray pigeon which fluttered back and forth within the cathedral in simple and perfect flight, high above the heads of everyone.

NEW YORK CITY SCANDAL GAINS

Light Sought on Crime Case "Buy Off" System

Deposits by Budget Director Under Scrutiny

Bertini Refuses to Waive Immunity in Quiz

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (Exclusive) Topped off by the disclosure that light is being sought on the operations of a reported clearinghouse for criminal cases where charges to be tried in magistrates' courts can be "fixed" with ease—for cash considerations, New York City's judicial scandal today grew with the rapidity of a snowball rolling downhill.

In addition to the criminal charge "buy off" system revelations, the day's developments include:

Discovery by investigating agencies that Charles L. Kohler, director of the city budget, deposited upward of $25,000 to his account within a short time after Amedeo P. Bertini was appointed to the General Sessions bench by Gov. Roosevelt, and disposed of $100,000 worth of his securities.

Judge Bertini's refusal to waive immunity to enable him to testify under subpoena before Special Prosecutor Todd's extraordinary grand jury investigating the trafficking in appointments to the judiciary.

Discovery of a radiogram to Bertini, then en route from Italy, on the day part of the $100,000 now under inquiry changed hands, informing him that "everything is O. K." His appointment was consummated upon his arrival.

Unexpected appearance of Magistrate Rosenbluth, reported missing for days, before Appellate Division inquisitors.

STARTLING FINDS

Various investigating agencies which for weeks have been trying to establish a definite connection between Bertini's sudden elevation from the rank of bootlegging counsel to the important court of General Sessions and the strange disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Crater, his firm friend, have covered many startling bits of circumstantial evidence, it was learned today.

Among these is the fact that on the day Bertini drew out $100,000 in bonds, Budget Director Kohler disposed several thousand dollars to his own account, and within the last few days while other deposits for a grand total of nearly $50,000, in securities, it has been established, passed through many hands before some of them, as yet unaccounted for, are believed to be held in escrow by a high official as yet unnamed.

FLEES REPORTERS

These disclosures were made on the heels of Bertini's refusal to waive immunity, with the result that he was before the special judicial body only seven minutes. Hurrying from the grand jury room, he pointedly waved reporters and cameramen aside, hid his face in his hands, had an accompanying court attendant appeal to policemen for protection from the surrounding and growing crowd, was finally hooded and hissed when his car passed. "This is Judge Bertini," and finally took it on the run for the near-by Criminal Courts Building, where he has his chambers.

Tonight from Albany came reports that Gov. Roosevelt is considering Bertini's impeachment, if he refuses to resign, providing the grand jury's evidence against him warrants such action. The Governor would not discuss his intentions.

ASSOCIATION UNDER QUIZ

The picture of the clearinghouse for the purchase of dismissal of criminal charges was painted coincidently with the appearance of Ben Miller, head of an association bearing his name, before Special Counsel I. J. Kresel and his co-investigators into corruption in the lower courts. Miller and an associate, Jacob Solot, produced the association's books under subpoena. Neither Kresel nor his chief aide, Harland B. Tibbetts, would say whether the Miller organization is suspected of being the clearinghouse.

Tibbetts tonight revealed that bank accounts of the wives and other relatives of magistrates, as well as of the judges themselves, have been subpoenaed and announced many such wives and relatives will be questioned.

'If You Don't Want Him, I'll Take Him'—Mary to Pola

Film Queen and Prince Separate

"It's perfectly grand," said Mary McCormic (at right,) when she was informed of prospects of a divorce between Pola Negri and Prince Serge Mdivani, the other two pictured above. It is believed Miss McCormic wants the Prince for herself.

wheimed to see a Prince actually working. Then two years ago on a trip across the Atlantic I met him on the boat.

"That's really all there is to the story except, you see, I saw him first.

"Is it a feat to take a man from Pola? Oh, I don't know; greater things have happened. I can't remember whether he kissed me goodby or not. Don't let's be small town about these things. So many men have kissed me."

POLA NEVER ASSUMED TITLE OF PRINCESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Pola Negri was married to Prince Serge Mdivani at the screen star's chateau in Senlisncourt, France, in 1927 and the couple returned to this country a week after the ceremony.

Miss Negri announced at the time that she preferred to retain her professional identity in preference to assuming the title of Princess, but she made known at the expiration of contracts which then had two years to run, she intended to retire from the films.

She has not been seen often in pictures in the past few years, for her retirement came shortly after the death of Rudolph Valentino, of whom she said at the time of his death: "My love for him was the greatest of my life." Only the fact that both had careers to follow, she said then, prevented their marriage.

Prince Serge Mdivani is a brother of Prince David Mdivani who was married to Mae Murray, dancer and motion-picture actress, in 1926.

BRAZIL REBELS ASSAULT CITY

Janeiro, capturing the towns of Itaperauna and Miraseema and advancing near Ciudad Campos, important junction of four railroad lines.

Capture of this city would destroy rail service from Rio de Janeiro northeastward. The rebels assert that they have cut the capital off from Sao Paulo and the south by capture of Lorena, a railroad junction.

Another force from Minas Geraes is said to have entered Sao Paulo State in the far northwest, taking the city of Igarapaya.

FEDERALS REPORT CAPTURE OF TOWN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Federal troops tonight are reported to have captured the important city of Barbacena, Minas Geraes, and to be advancing on the State capital, Bello Horizonte. Details are unavailable.

Triumph for the government against the Brazilian revolutionary movement was predicted today in a manifesto issued by President Luis, who enumerated the "dissatisfied seditious elements and incontinent politicians."

"Backed by public opinion," read the manifesto, "sustained and defended by the bravery of the army, navy and military police, aided powerfully by the authorities of the States, the government feels itself equipped to overcome the movement begun by three States of the Federation (Rio Grande do Sul, Minas Geraes and Parahyba) and any place where it might arise."

MEASURES DESCRIBED

Then the President described measures taken to assist in putting down the rebellion—the Congressional decree declaring a state of siege all over the country; the establishment of a fifteen-day bank holiday to prevent runs on any institution; the calling out of the second and third classes of reservists and the setting price scales on food to prevent profiteering.

He said that the Federal capital already has enough supplies to last until the middle of November, and that precautions had been taken to insure steady supplies thereafter.

This was accomplished by authorizing the requisition of foodstuffs when necessary, the prohibition on exports which might be needed by the populace, provisions for free entry of food imports, and the granting of coastal trade privileges to foreign ships.

BUSINESS CONDUCTED

Despite the fifteen-day banking holiday decreed by the government since the beginning of the revolution, business is being carried on through decision of bankers to advance money needed to pay for imported goods, meet pay rolls and other obligations of a pressing nature.

All exchange transactions have been halted because the value of the milreis is impossible to estimate.

SALE OF AIRPLANES STATUS NOT FIXED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Whether the American government shall permit the sale of aircraft to Federal authorities or revolutionists in Brazil became a question of speculation here today while the Brazilian Embassy was denying victories attributed yesterday to revolutionists in their advance upon Rio De Janiero and Sao Paulo.

The consent of the American government must be obtained by American airplane manufacturers before selling certain types of air equipment either to Federal authorities in Brazil or revolutionists.

Acting Secretary of State Cotton said the question is not before the department, however, despite reports from Brazil the Federal government there will endeavor to purchase bombing planes in the United States.

Each is of 4650 tons, carrying six-inch guns.

Referee Sues Grand Juror

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Toby Irwin, fight referee, today filed a damage suit against John P. Murphy, foreman of the grand jury, which demands Irwin's suspension as a referee, asking $50,000 for asserted slander and libel.

Irwin charges the grand jury caused to be broadcast and published its report on conditions in the boxing promotion situation in San Francisco. Irwin says general charges of corruption in the fighting game, aimed at him, are false.

Indian Beauty Wins Contest

LAWRENCE (Kan.) Oct. 10. (AP) American aborigines today had their own exclusive beauty contest, and awarded the title of "Indian Princess" to Miss Jenora Hopper, full-blood Cherokee from Stilwell, Okla.

Miss Hopper, a student in Haskell Indian Institute, was named as a feature of the American pow wow, a gathering of more than 1000 tribesmen held in connection with a celebration at a school. The Princess was selected from among a dozen contestants, remaining after preliminary judging earlier in the week.

STORM BLOCKS AIR RACE

Laura Ingalls and Robert Buck Halted at Kingman, Ariz., by Wintry Blasts

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Oct. 10. (AP)—Laura Ingalls, St. Louis aviatrix, and Robert Buck, junior east-west transcontinental flight record holder, racing from Los Angeles to New York, sandbed into Kingman on the wings of winter today and sat down to wait out a storm which swept the Northern Arizona air lanes.

They remained there over night and have made no definite plans for the remainder of the flight, pending change in weather conditions. Their next scheduled stop is Albuquerque.

The storm closed down in earnest at noon, shortly after Miss Ingalls and Buck arrived, and drove all aircraft to cover. Three trimotored planes of Transcontinental Air Transport are stormbound here tonight, able to proceed neither east nor west on their schedule between Los Angeles and Albuquerque. Five smaller commercial planes also are grounded here.

Young Buck gained twenty-two minutes on his feminine competitor on the flight from the Coast. He left Grand Central Air Terminal at 7:11 a.m., Pacific standard time, arriving here at 10:46 mountain standard time—2h. 34m. in the air. Miss Ingalls, who left fifty-eight minutes ahead of him, at 6:13 Pacific standard time, arrived only thirty-six minutes in the lead, at 10:09 mountain standard time. Her flying time was 2h. 36m.

THICK WEATHER DARED AT START OF FLIGHT

In the face of thick weather barring the air trail between here and Arizona, Laura Ingalls and Robert Buck, both attempting to establish records for transcontinental flights, took off from here yesterday morning for New York.

Miss Ingalls left Grand Central Air Terminal at 6:13 a.m. in her light Gypsy Moth biplane, while Buck got away at 7:11 a.m. from Western Air Express port, Alhambra. He was piloting a Wright-Pitcairn open biplane.

Both pilots had previously set east-to-west records—Miss Ingalls the first one for women and Buck a mark.

LUTHERANS REGARD CITY AS FRONTIER

Great Centers Pictured as Convention as Offering Missionary Opportunity

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 10. (AP)—The rearing city with its crowded tenements and packed streets was pictured today as offering a new frontier for the American church.

"It is a frontier that calls for the same devotion and consecration as were demanded by the rural church frontiers of old," said a report read at the convention of the United Lutheran Church in America by the mission board.

"The United States began as a rural nation; it has become an urban nation," the board's report said. "The American city dominates the country and dictates its policies. If the city is to control the nation, Christianity must control the city."

After selecting Philadelphia as the city for the next biennial convention, the delegates watched a parade of missionaries and heard mission reports—generally optimistic.

DISMISSAL OF NAVY MEN NOT LISTED

Force Reduction to Be by Expiration and Death, President Declares

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—President Hoover said today reduction in naval personnel will be made through natural wastage in expiration of enlistments and deaths and not by adding to the unemployment of the country.

There has been misunderstanding of the manner in which the reduction of about 4800 men announced recently by Secretary Adams is to be brought about, the President said. Men enlist in the Navy for a definite period, he said, and they are not to be cast out before this period ends.

Instead, the reduction will come naturally, the President believes, by placing restrictions on recruiting and letting the normal decrease take care of itself.

HELIUM GAS EXPORT NOT PROHIBITED

Hoover Statement Says Foreign Sales Have Been Given Encouragement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—President Hoover said today the government is encouraging the exportation of helium gas for lighter-than-air craft rather than hampering it.

Holding there has been a misunderstanding generally as to the attitude of the government toward exportation of helium, Mr. Hoover said the law provides licenses may be issued for exporting at any time by the government.

He said that during the last two years every application for exporting licenses has been granted and the private industries manufacturing the gas have been urged to develop the foreign market.

He asserted the government plant for manufacturing helium has been brought up to capacity production and the private factories, therefore, had been released to export as much as possible.

The President pointed out that helium costs four times as much as hydrogen, used in lighter-than-air craft abroad, and has approximately 10 per cent less lifting power.

Since the destruction of the British government's R-101, the statement has been made that the United States prohibited exporting of helium gas, which is available only in the western part of the United States.

FRENCH AIR HEROES END LONG TOUR

Coste and Bellonte to Sail from New York for Home on 17th Inst.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Dropping lightly out of the sky for a smooth landing at Curtiss Airport today, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte completed the countrywide good-will tour they began soon after their flight from Paris to New York and on to Dallas, Tex.

During the past twenty-five days they had flown 15,000 miles and passed over 100 cities in thirty States. Only once, toward the end of their tour, was their schedule broken. On that occasion they had to give up going to Seattle to regain lost time, much as they said they desired to see the west coast city.

On the 17th inst. they will sail for France, where they will start a less extensive good-will tour of Europe. The day before they leave they will be formally presented with a $25,000 check, the prize offered by William E. Easterwood, Jr., for the first flight from Paris to Dallas via New York.

The scarlet plane in which Coste and Bellonte have flown so far will be dismantled tomorrow and crated for return to France.

OKLAHOMA OIL BAN EXTENDED

Corporation Commission to Continue Curb

Umpire Favors Progressive Reduction of Flow

Julian Attorneys Protest Choking of Wells

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Corporation Commission tonight extended its oil proration order, curtailing production for the State to 590,000 barrels daily until the 20th inst.

The extension was given as the commission began a hearing on the application of Ray M. Collins, umpire, for a sweeping revised proration schedule which will curtail production in 10,000 wells never before affected. Collins asked that the State production be held to 580,000 barrels during October, 542,000 barrels during November and 535,000 barrels during December.

JULIAN MAKES CHARGES

Charges that the commission's proration orders were for the purpose of price fixing and not for conservation rang in the Oklahoma capital as attorneys for C. C. Julian and other protesting companies leveled an attack at the constitutionality of the entire proration scheme and questioned the jurisdiction of the commission to make and enforce the orders.

Julian's attorneys in cross-questioning brought out that Collins, Corporation Commission umpire, received a salary of $2000 a month, paid by large oil companies which sought curtailment of production.

Collins testified on cross-examination that four and probably five companies, operating in Oklahoma and prorating here, were engaged in importation of oil from foreign countries.

IN OPERATORS' INTEREST

Collins testified he was "here to take care of the operators" and was paid by them. After insistent questioning Collins said that in fixing the proration schedules the consumer was not taken into consideration.

The market demand of 590,000 barrels daily for October from Oklahoma had been determined by obtaining from each of fifty-seven pipe line and purchasing companies operating in the State the amount of oil they would be willing to purchase for that time. The decreased amount in November and December will be due to a seasonal decline in oil demand.

Textile Men Convene in Maine Town and Display Fabrics' Possibilities

POLAND SPRING (Me.) Oct. 10. (AP)—Formal cotton gowns of black velveteen and white ermine featured the fashion promenade of the Cotton Textile Institute at the opening of the convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers here tonight.

Other gowns that graced the display included an afternoon dress in "sheer chambray," a new creation in a maize tone with eyelet embroidery; cotton tweed in a colorful plaid design in a youthful jumper frock; a sports suit in tweed printed corduroy in rich shades of brown high lighted with bud green.

The spring and summer fashions of 1931 were forecast in "Texas" overalls of printed broadcloth and a hostess pajama costume in wine-tone velveteen and lemon yellow with a tricky bolero jacket which repeats the circular lines of the trouser skirt.

Forty-seven of the forty-eight ward committeemen and other leaders, headed by Recorder of Deeds Haslett, chairman of the Republican city committee, declared for John Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal party gubernatorial nominee.

Pinchot, in a radio message, said the support of "the quitters in the Philadelphia organization has been bought and paid for," and the bolting organization leaders "could no more go against the will of their public utility overlords in this campaign than they can grasp the foot ither day has passed."

At the conclusion of the luncheon it was reported William S. Vare, leader of the Philadelphia organization, will issue a statement within a few days announcing his opposition to Pinchot.

The resignation of Sheriff Cunningham as treasurer of the State Republican Committee was said by organization leaders to have been forwarded to Chairman Martin.

Hanshue, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, announced today the company's transcontinental air-mail service, scheduled to be inaugurated the 19th inst., had been postponed for about two weeks to permit completion to groundwork between New York and Columbus, O.

The other new transcontinental air-mail and passenger line, from Atlanta to Los Angeles, will begin operation as scheduled the 15th inst. That line is to be operated by southern air fast express.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (Exclusive) The mystery of Ivy Vaz, 22-year-old heiress who fled from her home two weeks ago, took work as a hat designer under an assumed name and later was found in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital, remained as dark as ever today as she continued in an apparently deranged state.

Her father, Joseph Vaz, wealthy hat importer, said he could not explain why Ivy left home nor how she came to call herself Loraine Mathis, as she was known at the Y.W.C.A., where she lived while city and private detectives sought her in many sections of the country.

In Bellevue the girl today still was in such condition that she could not discuss her flight but is to be released from the hospital soon in custody of her father.

SURVEY SHOWS MEXICAN INFLUX

Illegal Entrants During Two Decades 200,000

Number Here from Southern Republic 350,000

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—California's Mexican population is estimated at 350,000 in a report of the State Mexican Fact-Finding Committee, filed today with Gov. Young. The committee was appointed several months ago by the Governor to investigate the Mexican problem in the State, including immigration, industrial, agricultural and social questions.

Will J. French, director of industrial relations, was chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Anna L. Saylor and George H. Hecke, directors of social welfare and agriculture, were the other members.

The report declares that while hundreds of Mexicans come into California by obeying the immigration laws, it is estimated that 200,000 entered the country illegally between 1900 and 1930.

COME TO REMAIN

"It appears," says the report, "that Mexicans come into the United States to stay rather than to return to their native land after a sojourn in this country. This fact is corroborated by a comparison between the numbers of Mexicans in the United States at each decennial period since 1870 with the known numbers of Mexican immigrants and emigrants."

During the three years, 1924-1927, 17 per cent of the Mexicans admitted to the United States designated California as their State of intended residence, as compared with 3.3 admitted for the period 1908-1912.

The report reveals that the increase in the Mexican population of California has been greater since 1910 than has the increase in the numbers of any other foreign people.

Imperial, Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties had in October, 1927, 79.3 per cent of all Mexican children under 18 years of age residing in California, the report states.

RAPID INCREASE

Between 1910 and 1920 the increase in the number of Mexicans in California as a whole was 150 per cent, but the Mexican population of Fresno, Imperial, Ventura, Tulare, Los Angeles, Riverside and Orange counties increased at a greater rate during the period.

Naturalization of Mexicans in the United States decreased from 10.7 per cent in 1910 to 3.3 per cent in 1920, the committee reports, as compared to 47.8 per cent naturalized of all foreign-born males. The percentage of Mexicans naturalized in California in 1920 was 2.7.

Of the total number of aliens admitted to citizenship during the five fiscal years ended June 30, 1928, only one-tenth of one per cent were Mexicans.

The committee found that approximately 28,000 Mexicans are employed in California manufacturing industries and more than half of this number are employed in Los Angeles county plants.

In the building and construction industry, 16.4 per cent of the 20,650 workers in 1928 were Mexicans.

SUPPLANT WORKERS

Six interstate and interurban railroads had 10,708 Mexicans on their pay rolls in May, 1928, and the number at present employed, says the report, undoubtedly is much in excess of this number.

"Mexican immigrants," declares the report, "have gained a strong foothold in California industries, undoubtedly supplanting other immigrant races and native Americans."

Out of 904 farm operators who expressed a preference for various classes of foreign labor, 323, or 35.7 per cent, prefer Mexicans, 185, or 20.5 per cent, prefer whites, and 134, or 14.8 per cent, prefer Japanese.

The use of Mexicans, the report declares, is particularly marked in the production and care of citrus fruits and orchards, of nuts and nut trees, and in the production of truck-and-field crops.

Housing facilities available to Mexicans are frequently poor and below proper standards of sanitation, says the report, and Mexicans are frequently prohibited by sales agreement from purchasing property in any but Mexican districts.

BIRTHS OVER DEATHS

Births of Mexicans in California totaled 17.7 per cent of all births in the State in 1929, and in some cities near the border, Mexican births were 60 to 70 per cent of all births.

In the seven years from 1921 to 1927 the excess of births over deaths among the white population of the unincorporated area of Los Angeles county was only 241, while the Mexican excess of births over deaths for the same period was 4070.

For the period from 1908 to 1929, 10.5 per cent of all prisoners received at San Quentin were Mexicans, while in 1929, 6.6 per cent of all prisoners at Folsom were Mexicans.

JOHNSON CRITICAL IN SPEECH

Senator Flays Navy Pact and Farm Board Before San Francisco Audience

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Assuming an attitude largely of criticism, Senator Johnson discussed "recent happenings in Washington" at the Commonwealth Club today by denouncing the London naval treaty and the Federal Farm Board, interspersed with a prediction that the legal efforts of Arizona to delay construction of Boulder Dam will not cause any serious delay.

Harking back to an address made to the club five years ago on Boulder Dam, he pleaded "only that the dam be built and administered with wisdom, prudence and justice for the public welfare. With this we would be happy and contented and we will be content with nothing less."

Delay likely to Arizona because of Arizona entering the courts, he predicted, will be less than that entailed in the fight for establishment of the dam in Congress.

The government also came in for criticism because of what he termed the "reversal of the stand of the United States in declining to recognize new governments in Latin America."

The next great struggle in this country, the Senator said, will be over the development of the country's natural resources, more particularly with respect to who will control them, the government or private interests.

WILLIAMS TELLS AIMS OF COTTON REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—The object of meetings throughout the South for reduction of cotton acreage was outlined today by Carl Williams, cotton member of the Farm Board, as a permanent readjustment of southern agriculture so land may be used to its best advantage. In a radio address, he emphasized soil fertility must be restored and maintained and farming be reorganized "in such a way that changes in the price of cotton will not hereafter alternately make and break the South."

WORLD POLICIES ON ROADS FIXED

Many Nations Represented at Highway Congress

Finance and Construction Problems Discussed

Traffic Control and Parking Questions Studied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Highway authorities from sixty nations in addition to the United States today gave their support to better roads throughout the world by approving various policies of construction and administration at the closing general business session of the first international road congress held in the Western Hemisphere.

The broader phases of highway financing, correlation of highway transport with rail and other transportation methods and general traffic and parking problems received equal attention with such technical questions as surfacing, maintenance and road construction in new countries.

STATES REPRESENTED

The road men, representing virtually every State as well as such distant regions as Palestine, Morocco, Danzig, and China, approved the recommendation that their governments be urged to give financial support to road building everywhere, and asked for the creation of national bodies to co-operate with the Permanent International Association of Road Congresses in stimulating highway development.

Seeking a solution of the traffic problem which is troubling many large cities, the congress made several recommendations, such as the substitution of subways or other transportation for surface rail carriers and provision of off-street storage space in new buildings to take care of the parking problem.

CO-OPERATION FAVORED

Co-operation of rail and highway transportation was favored. The congress concluded motor vehicle operation produces new traffic, part of which, at least, the railroads cannot handle and thus is helpful in solving transportation problems.

Careful budgeting of highway programs, development of highway systems in new countries with an eye to future needs, payment of highway construction and maintenance costs wholly by the user, and approval of bond issues, and other methods of borrowing for highway construction were indorsed by the group. The highway representatives will visit the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis tomorrow, and will be guests of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland at a reception and luncheon after viewing a parade of the cadets.

SUN TRAPPED IN LIGHT BULB

Ultra Violet Rays Produced by Ordinary Socket So One Can Get Sunburn in Home

RICHMOND (Va.) Oct. 10. (AP)—Invention of an experimental electric light of a new type to produce ultra-violet rays from an ordinary lighting fixture was reported to the annual convention of the Illuminating Engineering Society today.

The lamp is a double bulb, resembling exactly a pair of ordinary-size lamps screwed into a two-way socket and it may be used wherever such a socket will fit. It is not to be put on the market for at least two years.

"This lamp," said Dr. J. W. Marden, research engineer of the Westinghouse Lamp Company, "is designed to send out small quantities of healthful ultra-violet rays. It produces a very mild sunburn or redness of the skin on one's arm held about five inches from the lamp for fifteen to twenty minutes.

"Since these lamps will probably be inserted in our regular fixtures and used at greater distances, they can be left burning all day or all evening without fear of imparting anything more than a mild tan. We can actually get sunlight in our parlors now.

"At a distance of three feet, fifteen hours' or more exposure would be necessary to produce sunburn."

One of the paired bulbs emits the ultra-violet, and the other, giving ordinary light, serves as a resistance to cut down the voltage to its twin. Thus the ultra-violet comes actually from a lower voltage than that of an ordinary house current.

So low may this voltage be dropped, said Dr. Marden, that bulbs scarcely larger than an automobile dash lamp have been made to give off ultra-violet light.

The ultra-violet bulb is filled with mercury vapor. Its filament electrodes, when heated by the reduced current, emit electrons like those of a radio tube. These spray outward through the vapor, causing it to glow with a blue light, and to produce the ultra-violet.

This cloud of flying electrons serves also to maintain the temperature of the filaments at a constant point, and is the secret of the lamp. Without the buffer effect of the electrons, the filaments would burn out and the globe would blacken so quickly as to become useless.

Ambassador Brings Plea for Commercial Pact

No Agreement With France Exists Since 1853

Americans Abroad Suffering Loss by Omission

PARIS, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Definite proposals for a France-American general commercial treaty will be submitted to President Hoover by Ambassador Edge when he returns to America. No such treaty has existed since 1853.

Ambassador Edge, who is sailing on the 16th inst., will be accompanied by Williamson S. Howell, Jr., first secretary, who is an expert on commercial questions affecting the two countries.

The establishment of a commercial treaty with France is believed necessary for the settlement of such thorny questions as double taxation and tariff discriminations which have brought a heavy loss to American firms and individuals in France.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

W.C.T.U. GIVES HOOVER PLEDGE

Southland Convention Sends Expression of Loyalty

President Congratulated on Naval Treaty Signing

Many Resolutions Passed; Banquet Ends Session

SANTA ANA, Oct. 10.—Having adopted resolutions, one of which congratulated President Hoover upon the signing of the London naval treaty, and sent the President a telegram of loyalty, delegates to the forty-eighth annual convention of the Southern California W.C.T.U. in session here, closed the conclave with the annual banquet tonight. John Frank Burke, local newspaper editor, formerly active in the dry cause in Ohio, was the speaker.

Outstanding in the resolutions was that which declared the present difficulties regarding prohibition are due to a decrease in thinking rather than an increase in drinking, and it is not the law that needs to be changed but our attitude toward it. One resolution concluded with the statement that the Southern California W.C.T.U. pledges itself to a program of continued and intensive education as to the social, economic, and spiritual benefits of this great home protection amendment.

Sunday-school were urged to renew emphasis on education concerning the principles of prohibition and the convention resolved further to pledge its support to the development of the movement for weekly religious education through the public of the State.

Enactment of a law which would provide for Federal supervision of motion pictures before they are produced, was recommended and the convention especially protested scenes which depict drinking as being unpatriotic and degrading.

INDORSEMENT STAND TOLD

Concerning the policy of indorsing candidates, a resolution was adopted reaffirming the action of the 1917 convention that if unions indorse candidates at all, that the candidates be indorsed first by the State W.C.T.U., county by county, local by local.

In congratulating the President upon the signing of the London naval treaty, the convention described the action as a definite step toward disarmament.

"We indorse the entrance of the United States into the World Court with the Root reservations," a resolution declared, and expressed the intention of the dry crusaders to send new petitions to President Hoover, Senators Johnson and Shortridge, and members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, to that effect.

The increasing use of cigarettes by both sexes was deplored, and the convention resolved to join other national agencies in combating the evil.

Telegrams from Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president of the W. C. T. U., and from Mrs. Anna Adams Gordon, president of the world W.C.T.U., were read. Mrs. Boole said she particularly desired the women to combat false propaganda spread by newspapers and word of mouth. Mrs. Gordon expressed a desire to meet a large delegation from Southern California at the world W.C.T.U. convention to be held in Toronto June 3 to 10, 1931. She expressed the opinion that the result of the November elections would have an encouraging effect upon dry workers throughout the world.

Appropriation of $100 for the work of the California Anti-Cigarette League was urged upon the State unions.

DELEGATES SELECTED

Thirty-eight delegates to the national convention were elected.

The Santa Ana union was awarded a gold star pin for holding the most medal contests. San Diego was ranked second, and La Verne third in the contest. San Diego was awarded a silver cup for holding the most contests for the number of members.

In the afternoon Rev. James Wilson, State secretary of the California Anti-Cigarette League; Dr. M. A. Shipman, superintendent of the Law Enforcement and Civic Research League of California, and Mrs. Ernest Wallace, chairman of the board of trustees of the California Institution for Women, spoke.

A Diamond medal contest was held and a playlet, "The Triumph of Welfare," was witnessed.

Last night Nathan Newby, president of the Los Angeles City Church Federation, spoke on "Principle Above Party," and urged that voters support candidates who stood for great causes such as prohibition, rather than support men whose only claim to support was party alliance.

STORY OF SHOOTING CHANGED

Wounded Youth, Left at Hospital, Now States He Shot Himself

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 10. — Lloyd R. Strange, 22 years of age, shot in the abdomen early Wednesday and thrown from a car at the Mercy Hospital steps, shot himself accidentally, the youth told Detective Sergeant Jerry Lightner today.

Strange, suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, was ejected from a car at Mercy Hospital by two other men who drove hurriedly away. At first, Strange said his name was Floyd Gardener. Later, when police confronted him with a wire from the police of Indianapolis stating that his name was Strange, the victim told another story of the shooting, and admitted his identity.

Strange said he came west with two other men. One of them he knew as Robert Ingersoll, 22, and the other only as "Whitey." Strange said they stole the car in Indianapolis, which they drove across the country.

The victim's first story of the shooting was to the effect that he was shot by two strange men who attempted to rob him. His latest story said he shot himself accidentally when he was transferring a pistol from the auto to his belt. His companions drove him to the hospital entrance and then fled before their identity could become known.

Strange has a fighting chance for life, physicians said.

Rare Operation Puts Boy's Own Blood in Veins

PASADENA, Oct. 10.—An "auto-transfusion of blood," asserted to be one of the first operations of its type on record, is reported to have been performed last night at the Pasadena Hospital.

Lars Jacobson, 14, of 2050 East Washington street, the patient, is reported to be recovering today.

While riding in an automobile, the boy's spleen is reported to have been ruptured when a bump threw him against the front seat, and more than two quarts of blood collected in his abdomen. This blood was recovered and injected into his veins after the ruptured spleen had been removed.

Pasadena Hospital physicians assert the auto-transfusion operation is one of the rarest and most difficult in surgery.

POLICE CAR HITS AGED WOMAN

Probably Fatal Accident During Speeder Chase

Mrs. Catherine G. Bairley Victim of Mishap

Hearing of Casualty, Man Pursued Surrenders

PASADENA, Oct. 10.—While inquests in the deaths of two local traffic victims were being conducted here today, a police car which was pursuing an asserted speeder struck and probably fatally injured Mrs. Catherine G. Bairley, 75 years of age, of 264 North Vernon avenue, as the aged woman stepped from behind a street car at the intersection of Fair Oaks and Lincoln avenues.

The police car, driven by Patrolman Frank Sweetser, who was accompanied by Patrolman C. E. Lay, was pursuing a machine driven by Parker Eckles of 265 West Colorado street. Eckles learned of the accident and surrendered to the police. He is charged with reckless driving.

Mrs. Bairley was rushed to the Pasadena Emergency Hospital, where she was treated for concussion of the brain and fracture of her right leg. She was transferred to the Pasadena Hospital, where her condition is reported serious, due to her advanced age.

Walter Mason, driver of a truck which Tuesday night decapitated 12-year-old Andrew Callahan, was absolved from blame at an inquest conducted in the Reynolds & Eberle mortuary. He was released from jail following the jury's verdict, but still faces reckless-driving charges.

Mrs. Ruth B. Updyke of Altadena, whose automobile figured in the crash which took the life Wednesday night of W. Reed Nickels, local automobile salesman, was exonerated from blame in connection with the death at an inquest conducted in the Cabot mortuary.

She testified that the front of her sedan was struck by the rear end of the car driven by K. T. Bledsoe, with whom the victim was riding. Bledsoe, who was slightly injured in the crash, declared he did not realize a collision was imminent until he felt the impact of Mrs. Updyke's machine against his rear bumper.

Brothers Meet After Years of Separation

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 10. After a separation of forty-three years, two brothers met in a happy reunion here yesterday. A stranger stepped up to the window at the local postoffice and asked for the Thompson brothers, who are employed there. He asked them if they were the sons of R. E. Thompson, and when they replied in the affirmative, the stranger said, "I am your uncle and your father's brother."

Forty-three years ago, when the Thompson family was living in Creston, Iowa, A. C. Thompson, who was then 22 years of age, left his home for the West and California. Years later his brother, R. E. Thompson, ten years his junior, of 711 Quincy street, this city, left for California also. Years passed and the boys did not know the whereabouts of the other, until one day recently, A. C. Thompson of Los Angeles heard, through a relative in the East, where R. E. Thompson was living. He left the city in quest of his long-lost brother, and a happy reunion followed.

The car was stopped. A bottle of alcohol was found under a cushion of one of the seats, and another in the pocket of a topcoat worn by Miss Williams, officers state. The four were brought to the police station. Chambers, who is said to have been driving the machine, was charged with transportation, and Davis and Miss Williams with possession of liquor. There was no charge brought against Miss Woodard. The young people were released on their own recognizance to appear in court last night.

TOO MANY WITNESSES CALLED

Walter Helvey, Who Subpoenaed Nearly 100 Prominent Santa Paulans to His Preliminary on Nonsupport Charges, Now Serving Five Days for Contempt

VENTURA, Oct. 10.—Walter Helvey, the man who, as his own attorney, subpoenaed nearly 100 Santa Paula witnesses to testify today at his preliminary hearing on a charge of nonsupport of his children, started serving a five-day County Jail sentence for contempt of court at 1 p.m. Finding that about fifty of Helvey's witnesses were unable to testify in the case because their statements would be irrelevant, Justice Malvern Dimmick held Helvey in contempt for abuse of the processes of the court.

In addition to being found in contempt, Helvey was bound over to Superior Court on the nonsupport charge.

Helvey, necktieless, his shirt open at the neck and one foot cocked up on a chair before the court, wrangled with attorneys all morning over legal points in regard to his case.

Only one of the man's galaxy of witnesses was put on the stand during the hearing. This was L. D. Webster, official of the Security-First National Bank of Santa Paula, who was asked questions regarding a certain trust fund Helvey is said to have had in the bank. Helvey had subpoenaed all the officials and employees in the bank. The bank would have been closed had all appeared in court today, Webster said.

After Webster had been questioned by Helvey, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Arthur Waite and Justice Dimmick, doubts arose as to exactly what Helvey was attempting to prove with each witness. Finally, Justice Dimmick took the list of witnesses and called off each name, asking Helvey what his object was in subpoenaing each one.

Meanwhile the courtroom was crowded to the gunwales with witnesses, exasperated at having been called from their work, and restless to be put on the stand and "have it over with."

APPLES FOR ROLPH AS INVITATION

De Luxe Box Contains Request That He Open Yucaipa's Annual Show

YUCAIPA, Oct. 10.—Harry O. Shephard, manager of the Yucaipa apple show, prepared a beautiful box of apples today to send by airplane to Mayor James G. Rolph of San Francisco, Republican gubernatorial candidate, inviting him to come here the 25th inst. and open the show.

The gorgeous box of apples, however, is expected to turn the trick. Sealed in the box will be an elaborate invitation, addressed to "The Governor-to-be." The box is twenty-six inches wide and fifty-two inches long.

Packed with one layer of the best Delicious apples that could be found in the Yucaipa Valley, it weighs more than 100 pounds. The box was lined with golden velvet and satin before it was packed. The lid is upholstered and covered with the same colorful materials with which the box is lined.

Blue and gold—the State's official colors—are carried out in the interior color scheme, except, of course, for the prize red apples. Large blue letters, cut from felt, were attached to the inside of the lid, proclaiming that the apples are a gift to Rolph with "Compliments of Yucaipa apple show, October 22-26." The exterior of the box has been stained a rich brown, the corners finished off in brass. The box is not nailed shut. It is padlocked.

The fruit was selected by Shephard all his aides at King's laboratories at Calimesa.

HOSPITAL-STAFF LIMIT CENSURED

Santa Barbara Grand Jury in Annual Report

It Would Open Institution to All Doctors There

Local Osteopaths Believed Back of Move

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 10.—Limiting of doctors who may practice or attend patients in the County General Hospital here to a small group was condemned in a lengthy report, result of the annual investigations of the grand jury, made to Judge I. E. Crow of Superior Court today.

The jury recommended in a terse statement that the hospital be thrown open to all doctors and "that any member of the Santa Barbara Medical Society" be allowed to practice there. Under the present system, the staff of the hospital is limited to twenty physicians and surgeons.

While the grand jury did not reveal the source of the outside pressure brought to bear on the members in order to get the restrictive system changed, it is understood that the local osteopaths were instrumental in forcing the doors of the hospital to be thrown open to all medical men.

Charges of cruelty made against the hospital staff by Mrs. Louis Chauvel amounted to nothing in the eyes of the grand jurors. Mrs. Chauvel attacked the hospital through a local paper when she was not permitted to be close and to hold her son, who died of infantile paralysis. The grand jury went into the case rather thoroughly but cleared the staff, finding that the attendants "did their duty to prevent the spread of disease," by preventing the mother coming in contact with her afflicted son.

It also recommended that the X-ray photograph films now stored unguarded in the building where they are, an extreme fire danger, such as has caused several hospital tragedies in the nation, be immediately placed in steel cases and housed in buildings separate from the hospital.

The jury also found that the present housing provided for men and women custodial patients is unsatisfactory and that custodial patients should be given an opportunity to care for themselves as much as their condition will permit, and to be otherwise employed to the extent of their abilities.

Brass Knuckles and Blackjack Cause Charges

POMONA, Oct. 10.—Possession of brass knuckles and blackjacks, both classed as deadly weapons by State law, today caused the binding over to answer to the Superior Court of Julio Luis Tejeda, Los Angeles Mexican, charged with the possession of a blackjack, and Henry Lewis, local Negro, upon whom a pair of brass knuckles are asserted to have been found.

Bonds of $1000 were set by Judge U. E. White in each case, Tejeda being remanded to the County Jail when he was unable to raise this amount.

Conviction in each case will make each liable to five years' imprisonment in San Quentin without privilege of parole, according to Police Chief W. S. Kirby, who has announced that he will prosecute vigorously all such cases to the limit of his ability.

Not a Scratch in a Carload of Somersaults

ONTARIO, Oct. 10.—Performing a series of gymnastics with a heavy sedan isn't exactly to the liking of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Olinger of 324 West H street, but they successfully completed a somersault with their car without receiving serious injury to themselves.

A wet pavement in North Euclid avenue was held responsible for the mishap. Mr. Olinger was driving the car at the time it began to skid from side to side.

Unable to stop and fearing to step on the gas, Olinger trusted to fate to help him handle the car. It swung from the road for no apparent reason and turned completely over.

Mr. and Mrs. Olinger climbed out of the upset car and were surprised to find they were not injured at all.

The car, however, will have to undergo extensive repairs.

Dr. W. H. Bucher

SAN FERNANDO, Oct. 10.—Hundreds of former patients of Olive View, the Los Angeles county tuberculosis sanatorium near San Fernando, are expected to convene at the sanatorium Saturday to celebrate home-coming day. The event, which will last all day, is the first of its kind to be held at the institution for years, enabling present patients to renew friendships and acquaintances, ands while they were "taking the cure."

The "old grads" will register at the new administration building in the morning, following which they will make a tour of the grounds of what has become one of the largest tuberculosis hospitals in the country. The visitors will have an opportunity to inspect recent additions to the sanatorium plant, which includes a new chapel, several wards and a solarium for men patients.

Girls of the women's convalescent camp will act as the reception committee and as hostesses at the lunch to be served at the picnic grounds. The festivities will include a program at 1:30 p.m., following the meal.

Dr. W. H. Bucher, superintendent of the sanatorium, who is convalescing after a serious illness, hopes to be able to extend a personal welcome to all visiting ex-patients and friends he has made during the nine years that he has acted as the institution's head.

FUND WILL AID MUSIC PROGRAMS

Mrs. Helen C. Kimberly of Redlands Gives $4000 for Community Plan

REDLANDS, Oct. 10. — An endowment of $4000 to be called the Helen Cheney Kimberly Redlands Community Music Association endowment fund, was established by the board of directors of the association this morning when they announced the gift of Mrs. Kimberly for endowment purposes.

It is planned to add to this endowment fund as rapidly as possible in the hopes that eventually there will be a sum sufficient to take care of the work done by the association each year in bringing artists for the summer season of concerts at the amphitheater here.

The work of the association in providing musical entertainment for the people of Redlands, San Bernardino, Colton, Corona, Riverside, Beaumont and Banning, is being given the support of people of means here. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Clarence G. White built, at a cost of $40,000, an outdoor stage, largely because of the work of the Community Music Association in bringing music to the masses.

Mrs. G. E. Mullen, manager, reported the season has ended with some money in the treasury and that a greater program will be planned for next year. There is not sufficient money on hand to carry out the program of winter concerts, however.

PARISH HOUSE OCCUPIED

REDLANDS, Oct. 10.—The parish house for the Church of the Sacred Heart, just completed at a cost of $40,000, is now being occupied by Rev. Father Laurence Forristal and his assistant, Rev. John Powers, who are in charge of the parish. It is a two-story ten-room Moorish-Spanish type with stucco finish and tile roof. Father Forristal is leaving at once for a two weeks' vacation.

CRASH LANDS ONE IN JAIL, ONE IN HOSPITAL

ONTARIO, Oct. 10.—One landed in jail and the other in San Antonio Community Hospital when Luz Armento, 23 years of age, of Colton, drove his automobile into the rear of a truck on Colton Road and Etiwanda avenue. According to police, Armento was drunk, and drove his automobile in a wild and reckless manner. A friend riding with him, Manuel Contrerros, also of Colton, was taken to the hospital to have his numerous cuts and lacerations repaired. Armento is held in jail on a charge of drunk driving. His automobile was almost completely wrecked. Contrerros will live, according to hospital attaches.

MEN'S CLUB ELECTS

SAN CLEMENTE, Oct. 10.—Russell Tyree was elected president of the Men's Club, the vote being unanimous. Dan Mulberron and Danny Henon were candidates, but withdrew their names. Other officers elected are: A. N. Southwell, vice-president; Danny Henon, secretary, and V. D. Bailey, treasurer. There were five new members elected to the board of directors. They are: Trafford Huteson, Roy Strange, Dan Mulberron, A. L. Schneerber and Ike Harmel.

CONVENTION IN MEMORIAL

Mission Indian Federation, Convening at Riverside, Honors Late Founder, Jonathan Tibbett

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 10.—Mission Indian Federation convention got under way today at the Prospect-avenue conference grounds here as a combined convention and memorial service to the late Jonathan Tibbett. Tibbett was founder of the federation and was long its "white counsellor." He died several months ago.

The day's program, to which outsiders were invited, began with a flag-raising ceremony at 10 a.m. in charge of John Brown, San Bernardino pioneer. The flag was raised only to half-mast and was kept at half-mast during the entire day.

Following the invocation by W. T. Smith of Claremont, a lengthy program of entertainment was given. In charge of arranging the program was Mrs. Florence Summers of Newport Beach, who for eight years has had charge of the programs. During the day's exercises, the chair at the council table formerly occupied by Tibbet was decorated with flowers.

A tribute to Tibbet was paid in an address by Dr. James H. Batten of Pomona College, executive director of the Inter-American Foundation. Other speakers included prominent visitors and a number of the Indians. Several musical numbers also were given.

Among the prominent visitors were Dr. James A. Blaisdell of Claremont Colleges, Dr. G. Brink of Pomona College, and Vladimir Lensky, well-known violinist, who played several selections.

At noon a barbecue dinner of mountain steer was served. Tamales made by the Indian women, also were enjoyed as a part of the meal.

SHORT MEASURE ADMITTED

C. A. Rhodes of Hawthorne Fined in Justice Court After Pleading Guilty to Unusual Charge

ALHAMBRA, Oct. 10.—An unusual case involving short measure as applied to wood was revealed in Justice Court here today when C. A. Rhodes of Hawthorne pleaded guilty to a charge of giving short measure on wood and was fined $50 by Judge H. S. Farrell. The charge was brought by deputies R. D. Haskell and D. D. Didle of the county department of weights and measures, on complaint of Mrs. E. M. Brandes of 1028 East Broadway, San Gabriel.

It was asserted that Rhodes purchased wood for $7 a cord at the Anita Baldwin ranch near Arcadia and sold it at $20 a cord, or two cords for $30. Mrs. Brandes ordered and paid for two cords, but Rhodes delivered only one cord, it was asserted. She ordered more wood to be sure about the measure, and again, she declared, she received less than two cords.

For the first delivery Mrs. Brandes gave Rhodes a check on which he had marked "for 192 cubic feet," or about one and one-half cords, the deputies testified. When arrested, Rhodes told the officers that he had offered his wood for sale in ricks, but he was unable to explain satisfactorily just how much wood was in a rick.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In Castrum Mare, Pulpus Pupus had had his revenge. Worming his way into the favor of the Emperor, he had been adopted by the childless Augustus as heir to the throne. His first act had been to order Erich von Harben and Mallius Lepus cast into prison. They were roughly seized and chained in a dungeon.

The gladiatorial games in both cities were held at the same time every year, so while Tarzan was being exhibited in the arena at Castra Sanguinarius, Erich von Harben was brought forth into the Colosseum at Castrum Mare. Watching him from her father's loge was the lovely Pavonia, her eyes full of horror.

The Emperor Augustus, in gorgeous robes, sat upon his carved throne. Naked blacks were swaying long-handled fans of feathers above his head. Here was the embodiment of wealth and pomp and power. Then von Harben saw something that puzzled him. It was his black servant, Gabula, who had long been missing, now moving toward the imperial loge.

Gabula was seen for a moment and then disappeared like a flash behind the hangings that formed the background of Caesar's throne. The contestants in the arena were being marched away when a wild shriek halted them. There, in Caesar's box, Gabula had the Emperor by the throat and was drawing his dagger to kill.

MINORS WILLING TO AGREE ON UNIVERSAL DRAFT IF PRICE IS RAISED TO $10,000

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10. (AP)—Agreement on the universal draft principle for the purchase of players by the major leagues from the minors, but a deadlock on the terms of purchase, was reported tonight as a conference between officers of the two groups here ended. The two baseball groups reported a deadlock practically as strong as the one at the conference in French Lick, Ind., when the minor leagues supported the limited draft for selection of baseball players by the majors. The two groups must reach an agreement by December 1, next, or break off relations, it was said. This also applies to the dealings between the minor league clubs where players are farmed out by the majors. The terms of acceptance of the universal draft, which the minors held out to the majors at the conference today, stipulated that the price paid for players in the Class AA leagues be increased from $5000 to $10,000. The price for players from minors of lower classification would be graduated according to the class. The minor leagues represented were the American Association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues.

Oregon State vs. California Aggies: Easy for Oregon State

BY HOWARD JONES
Football Coach, University of Southern California
[Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance]

PULLMAN (Wash.) Oct. 10.—After what Washington State did to California last Saturday our game here tomorrow has nearly everybody, including myself, somewhat puzzled. California, by admission of her own coaches, was supposed to be better fixed than at any time in recent years, yet Washington State gave the Bears a convincing beating, 16 to 6.

HOWARD JONES

There is no assurance as yet that my Southern California team is as good as it was a year ago. In fact, there is no doubt in my mind but that the present eleven has quite a ways to go before reaching the form which we displayed against Washington State in winning, 27 to 7, last season. Whether or not this form can be approximated tomorrow is a question only the game itself can answer.

Washington State has a veteran team, there being eight 1929 regulars on the present eleven. Babe Hollingbery's players are heavier on the average than my men and this weight advantage may be an important factor in determining the victor, particularly should the field be slow from rain.

Lieb Tosses Loyola Into Contest With Staters at Wrigley Field

Irish eyes are bright with excitement today and Irish hearts are hopeful. It's always that way with the Irish on the day of a football game. It's that way today and it will remain until the final gun cracks at 10:30 tonight on Wrigley Field.

TOM LIEB

Carrying the hopes of thousands of Southern California football fans, the light red Lion of Loyola goes onto the turf at Wrigley Field tonight against a powerful, ponderous band of gridders from Fresno State College.

It will be speed against strength, deception against weight, the Notre Dame system against whatever Stan Barnhisle, the northern mentor, puts on the field. A scene that occurs over and over again at Notre Dame—a light, flash eleven, calmly confident of its ability to run away from a heavy defense, and quietly sure that it can stop a crushing offensive.

NOTRE DAME MEETS NAVY CREW TODAY

Fighting Irish Favorites as They Dedicate Stadium at South Bend

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Oct. 10. (AP) Big movements have been many for Knute Rockne, since he left Norway's rugged shores for his football Valhalla, at Notre Dame but tonight was his night of nights. His football dream—a mammoth new stadium seating 55,000 spectators—was realized at last and thousands of the great and near great of the gridiron world paid him a rousing tribute as part of the dedicatory program to be climaxed tomorrow before the battle with the big Navy dreadnaught.

KNUTE ROCKNE

Since the Viking became director of Notre Dame's football destinies twelve years ago, and made the team one of the outstanding machines on the gridiron by his genius, there have been victory nights but in spirit and in sentiment none surpassed this "Rockne night," a dual celebration, in fact, for the new stadium and his return to complete health after almost a year's illness from a dangerous infection.

The Tars, pronounced a much weaker combination than a year ago when they took the weak end of a 14-to-7 score, in their own ballwick, banked their hopes on the running ability of their two diminutive backs, Johnny Gannon and Lou Kirn, and in the line work and kicking of "Blimp" Bowstrom, their giant of defense. The Middies were in splendid condition after their trip and were determined to at least force Coach Rockne to employ his "shock troops" on an overtime basis like Southern Methodist did a week ago.

MISS ORCUTT SCORES 81

Metropolitan Star Tops Women in Practice Over North Course for National Championship

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

With the course playing a bit faster and the rougher rough finally mowed into submission, scoring was several strokes better yesterday over the north course of the Los Angeles Country Club, as the 102 entrants in the National Women's Championship spent another day in diligent practice.

Miss Maureen Orcutt of New York City flashed a brilliant game to lead yesterday's scorers with 40-41—81, one over women's par. The Metropolitan star, fresh from a victory in the Canadian women's championship, is right on her game.

MRS. LEONA PRESSLER

Although winning golfing laurels by the hundred, Miss Orcutt has been denied the honor of holding the national women's championship, one was runner-up to Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn Tyson in 1927, and this may be her year.

In looking over the long hitters, the charming young miss from Reading, Pa., Edith Quier, has been rather passed by. George H. Lewis of the Los Angeles Country Club believes that Miss Quier is one of the best bets in the tournament. She had an 86 through Thursday's showers and yesterday turned in a fine card of 42-46—82.

Miss Quier shared scoring honors with Mrs. Leona Pressler of San Gabriel. We are inclined to be a trifle over optimistic after watching Leona play, but in our opinion the brilliant Southern California women's champion will never have a better opportunity of winning a national championship. She started out with two sparking birdies yesterday and was out in 38, coming back in 44 for an 82. Leona is hitting her shots with precision and her polished game is only equalled by that of the defending champion, Miss Glenna Collett.

Playing her first round after stepping off the train yesterday morning, Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit, who is not a newcomer to the Southland, turned in a fine score of 43-41—

LOS ANGELES, COMPTON JAYSEE ELEVENS MEET

The championship of the Southern California Junior College Conference may be decided today when the L.A.J.C. Cubs and the Compton Tartars meet in the feature game of the opening round of the conference schedule. These two teams, along with Glendale, rank as the strongest in the league, and the winner of today's contest will be the heavy favorite to annex the crown.

Besides this clash, played on the Compton field, two other games are scheduled in the league. Coach Bill Cook's Santa Ana Dons will play host to the Long Beach Vikings, while the Glendale Buccaneers entertain the Fullerton Yellow Jackets. The Pasadena Bulldogs draw a bye.

Pomona Has Outside Chance in Coliseum Game

BY FRANK ROCHE

Pomona College, once the toast of Southern California gridirons, but this year just another football team, and the rapidity growing Bruin of U.C.L.A. offer the piece de resistance for local fans at the Coliseum this afternoon. The Bruin, now a full - fledged member of the "big league" as the Coast Conference is often referred to in football circles, rules a heavy favorite to pluck the Sagehens lustily. In other words the Bruin team figures, at least on paper, to run over the top of the Pomona squad and win by a sizable score.

BILL SPAULDING

Pomona, coached by Eugene Nixen, has pulled the unexpected in the past, but there seems little likelihood of such a thing happening today. The Sagehens in their only start this season dropped a 6-to-0 game to San Diego State. On the other hand "Banker Bill" Spaulding, coach of the Bruins, has what is hailed as the best outfit U.C.L.A. has sent into the field.

LOST TO TROJANS

The Bruins to date have only played one game and that was the opening contest of the season here against the Trojans. Although they bowed to the S.C. team by a 25-to-0 score, the Westwood boys showed marked improvement over last year. They have a bigger squad with more reserve strength than ever before, and that alone should be enough to down the smaller Pomona team.

Spaulding has two good teams ready for today's game, Nitcon, at the best, will have one with his reserve strength being somewhat of an unknown quantity. In the past, Pomona has always had a good triple threat man in the backfield. This year their advance agents claim they have yet to uncover one. Al Putnam, captain of the Sagehens, may uncork something in that line today, but to date he has not shown anything very much in that department of the game. Putnam is a fairly good ball packer as is Bob Baynham. These two men are Pomona's chief threats on paper. The Sagehens have an end named Sterr-art Hagestead, a tall rangy fellow, who is a good pass receiver.

While Bill Spaulding insists he will start the same team that opened against the Trojans with Capt. Eddie Solomon at quarter, Theo and Forster at halves and Norm Duncan at fullback, it is quite possible that Lenny Bergdahl will run the squad from quarter. Bergdahl is the lad who tossed the passes around the Col-

CALTECH, LA VERNE BATTLE

Engineers Favored to Defeat Leopards in First Southern California Conference Contest at Tournament Park Today

Coach Lee Eisan will make his Southern California Conference debut today when he leads the La Verne Leopards to Tournament Park, Pasadena, for a game with Coach Fox Stanton's Caltech Engineers. The game is called for 2:15.

The Leopards were expected to be a rejuvenated tribe this year, but after taking a 26-to-0 licking from the Los Angeles Junior College eleven their stock fell considerably.

Caltech lost its first game of the season to the University of Arizona, but displayed enough punch to indicate that Stanton has a potentially strong team this year. Fox has evolved a tricky offense around the lateral pass and has several good backs who can pack the ball. Capt. Dickey looked particularly good against Arizona, and Red Watson at fullback, is also a fine player.

Several La Verne players are reported to be on the injured list, including Capt. Hubbell, "Red" Weybright and "Brick" Lewin.

Richards to Quit Tennis

BOSTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—Vincent Richards, present holder of the American professional tennis title, today announced he would retire from that game next Monday.

Richards made public his retirement on the eve of his exhibition match here with his outstanding professional rival, Karel Koseluh, the famous Czech.

"Professional tennis," Richards said, "is much too strenuous for what a player gets out of it. I have had definite warnings that my legs won't last forever, and I'm getting out of the game and going into business immediately."

CARDINALS TO BATTLE MINNESOTA

Stanford University on Scene for Clash Today at Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.) Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Thirty-three brawny sons of the Pacific Coast representing Leland Stanford University detrained this morning for a day's rest before their intersectional football battle tomorrow afternoon at Memorial Stadium with the University of Minnesota. Accompanying them were the usual train of managers, faculty representatives, assistant coaches and Glenn (Pop) Warner.

"POP" WARNER

The visiting stalwarts were loaded into busses for a trip to the Lafayette Club at Lake Minnetonka where they will remain until time to leave for the Coast. Original plans to practice on Northrup Field this afternoon were abandoned because of the distance.

About these visitors who are here to demonstrate the acknowledged prowess of the Pacific Coast game there was no air of condescension toward the green eleven they are to face. In fact those players who chanced to talk to newspaper men were modest in their attitude and words. They professed respect for the Gophers. Behind those kind words, however, could be detected confidence, confidence of seasoned men to whom victory is no stranger. Coach Warner, of course, stated his appreciation for the foe in the orthodox manner of men following his profession.

Santa Barbara Triumphs, 7-6 Over Redlands

REDLANDS, Oct. 10. (AP)—In a game played under floodlights and in a field of mud the Santa Barbara State Teachers' College defeated the University of Redlands eleven, 7 to 6, here tonight.

Rain continued until the opening kick-off and then let up. Hickman, quarterback for the Teachers, got away to a 65-yard run in the second quarter, which placed the ball on Redlands' 10-yard line. Three backs later Pierucci went over for the touchdown. Kessler kicked the point.

Redlands' score came in the third quarter when, despite the slippery ball, Bieden flipped a 20-yard pass to Massey to gallop unmolested over the goal line. The kick was wide.

Oregon State Beats Aggies

CORVALLIS (Or.) Oct. 10. (AP)—Coach Paul John Schissler's Oregon State football eleven came to life in the last half of their game with the California Aggies here tonight and pushed over three touchdowns for a 20-to-0 victory.

Two touchdowns were scored in the third quarter but only one try for point was successful. The final touchdown and extra point came in the final period of the game.

HOLLINGBERY CONFIDENT TEAM WILL TAKE CLASH

Apsit, Brown Ready to Take Berths in Opening Line-up; North Sees First Grid Title in Years

BY BRAVEN DYER
"Times" Staff Correspondent

SPOKANE (Wash.) Oct. 10.—Confident of victory and aroused to a fighting pitch such as few teams of the Northwest have ever attained, Washington State players will go into tomorrow's game with Southern California convinced that they can bring this section of the Pacific Coast its first championship since the glorious days of George Wilson and his University of Washington Huskies.

This is the tip-off here in Spokane tonight. "Babe Hollingbery is confident of turning back the Trojans," declared two local newspaper men. "He does not think he has a better team than Howard Jones but he expects his players to outfight the Trojans."

"BABE" HOLLINGBERY

Supporters of the terrible Cougars are willing to bet even money on the game provided they get seven points. In Pullman the odds are said to be so slim that even money predominates in most quarters.

The Northwest has not had a championship since that Washington triumph of 1925, and this State is with Hollingbery almost to a man in his efforts to down the Trojans and sail through to the title. Fans are pouring into Spokane and Pullman from as far away as Seattle and it is a shame that not more than 20,000 spectators will be able

TOILER ELEVEN COMES TO LIFE IN THIRD PERIOD

Howard Scores Three Times for Artisans

BY IRVING ECKHOFF

Exhibiting lots of loose football in the first half, the Manual Arts Toilers finally found themselves in the last quarter and trounced the L. A. High Romans, 19-0, yesterday afternoon on the Toilers' field. The game was the feature tussle of the opening round of play in the new City League.

The Toilers took the field an even-money bet to wallop the Romans by two touchdowns, but at the end of the half with the score 0-0, Manual fans would have accepted anything that looked like a score.

During the first half, the Romans had the edge, making six first downs to the Toilers' one.

In the third quarter, Jim Mowatt's outfit made a little more headway, Howard passing to Dick Hazen from the 9-yard line for the first touchdown. Howard failed to kick goal.

The fourth quarter was all Manual Arts, the Artisans coming to life with a bang and rattling off seven first downs and two more touchdowns. Bill Howard made both of them, the first after George Dalton, Manual's hard-working center, had intercepted Cheshire's pass on the 19-yard line and advanced 12 yards to the 1-yard strip. Horace Moore's gang held for two downs but Howard went over on the third play. No place-kicked for the extra point.

Just three minutes later Howard went over again. The Romans had tried to score via the air route and the Toilers took a hand, the ball on their own 45-yard line. Lazarovits and Howard worked the ball down into scoring position.

Horwett's charges started off as if they were going to have a bad day, only breaks keeping the Romans from scoring in the first half. The line-ups:

Rough Riders Upset, 12-0, by Jeffersonians

BY BOB RAY

Harry Edelson, who used to do considerable football playing for Howard Jones's Trojans, made his grid coaching debut at Jefferson with a bang yesterday when he presented a scrapping, heads-up squad of Democrats that defeated the Roosevelt Rough Riders, 12 to 0, in an opening City League game at Fulton Field. Roosevelt won the Minor City League title last year and the year before.

Edelson, who did his prep playing for Jefferson before going to Southern California, came back yesterday to trot out a team that brought the Democrats their first grid victory in four years. Harry has everybody in Jefferson steamed up over football and you might as well start getting used to the fact that the Democrats have departed from the doormat ranks they occupied for so long.

Jefferson scored both of its touchdowns by the aerial route, Jimmy Jordan, right end, being on the scoring end of each of the tosses. The first touchdown occurred exactly thirty-five seconds after the kickoff, which was run back to their 30-yard line by the Democrats, and clicked on the ancient but honorable hide-out play. Jordan hid out, and big Al Duval snapped him a thirty-yard pass, after which it was clear sailing for the Jeffersons end to scoring territory. Oliver failed to convert on an end run, being shoved out of bounds on the one-yard line.

After some punt exchanging, Duval got started blocking punts near the close of the third quarter, which ended with the ball in the Democrats' possession on the Rough Rider 30-yard line. Roosevelt held for downs but Nelson then intercepted a pass and ran it to the 5-yard line for the Democrats. Again the Rough Riders held, this time on the two-foot line, only to have Duval block another punt. Jefferson got the ball on the 9-yard line and on fourth down Oliver passed over the line to Jordan to cinch the game. Oliver failed to convert.

Duval, dusky tackle, was the outstanding player of the game, blocking three Roosevelt punts and proving a demon on defense. Doll Nelson and Laurie Oliver shone in the Jefferson back field, while Capt. Tom Payne, Joe Ramona, Jack Ely ruv and Tom Ryan did some good work for Coach Clark De Groot's Rough Riders.

The line-up:

Roosevelt (0)		Jefferson (12)

SANTA ANA WALLOPS WILSON, 33-6

LONG BEACH, Oct. 10. (Exclusive)—Tex Oliver's Santa Ana Saints were four touchdowns too strong for Rocky Kemp's Wilson High Bruins here today, and the invaders turned in a 33-6 victory to open the Coast League grid campaign.

Held to a 7-6 lead in the first half, Santa Ana opened up for a second touchdown in the third quarter and three more in the final to rout Wilson. Capt. Al Reboin, sensational quarterback, was the driving power behind the Saints, personally scoring three touchdowns and hurling a long pass to Daneri for a fourth score. After Reboin left the game in the fourth quarter, Chamberlain took his place to lead a drive for the fifth touchdown.

Wilson fought Santa Ana tooth and nail in the first half, all but tying the score in the first quarter when Long, husky tackle, blocked one of Reboin's punts and Bob Redfern, lanky end, recovered and rambled 30 yards to a touchdown.

CRONIN GIVEN HIGH HONOR

Youthful Washington Shortstop Voted Most Valuable Player in American League; Simmons and Gehrig Tie for Second Place; Gehringer Fourth

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Joe Cronin, sensational young shortstop of the Washington Senators, today was proclaimed the American League's "most valuable player" for 1930 by a special committee of members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The writers, representing each American League city, cast their votes at the request of the Associated Press for the second successive year since the league abandoned its custom of making an official selection.

Cronin, although playing only his second year as a major league regular, merited sufficient votes to beat out Al Simmons of the Athletics, the league batting champion, and Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman of the Yankees, in a close contest. Cronin, selected as Washington's most valuable performer by every one of the eight experts, led with a total of 42 points out of a possible maximum of 64.

Simmons and Gehrig were tied for second place with 39 points each. Charley Gehringer, Detroit's second baseman, was fourth with 36, Ted Lyons of the White Sox, fifth with 26, and Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland's sensational young pitcher, sixth with 25 points.

Simmons was the choice of most of the experts for first ranking, being put at the top of the list by four of the eight critics, but his chances of winning the honor were reduced by the nomination of "Lefty" Grove and Mickey Cochrane by other experts as the representatives of the world's champions.

The complete tabulation of votes:

Joe Cronin, Washington	42
Al Simmons, Athletics	39
Lou Gehrig, Yankees	39
Charley Gehringer, Detroit	36
Ted Lyons, Chicago	26
Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland	25
Eddie Morgan, Cleveland	9
Mickey Cochrane, Athletics	8
Bob Grove, Athletics	8
Babe Ruth, Yankees	6
Danny MacFayden, Boston	5
Leo Gooslin, St. Louis	4
Carl Reynolds, Chicago	4
Walter Stewart, St. Louis	3
Milton Gaston, Boston	3

MECHANICS UPSET BY HOLLYWOOD

Vick Kelley's Outfit in 6-0 Victory Over Poly Pigskin Squad

Coach Vic Kelly's fighting Hollywood Redshirts started the season off in fine style yesterday, downing the Poly High Parrots, 6-0, in a fast game held at L.A. High.

The Poolhillers kept the ball in Poly territory throughout the game and made the lone score late in the third quarter after Phillips, diminutive Hollywood half, had run back a Poly punt 20 yards to the 15-yard line. Scott made a first down on the 5-yard stripe. Bradley tore off 3 more, and Scott carried the ball over center for the 6 points. Clausen's attempt to place-kick was blocked.

In the final quarter Poly started a rally, but lost their only near chance to score when Verdugo intercepted a wild pass on his own 32-yard mark. Hollywood was all set to score at the end of the first half when two passes to Terry and Judson netted the Redshirts 30 yards. Bradley and Scott managed to get a first down with goal to go when the gun ended the second quarter.

Dave Zabriskie worked wonders on the line breaking through to break up Poly plays continuously. Phillips furnished several thrills running back punts; Merrill fought hard on the line, and Scott was a consistent yard-gainer for the winners.

The line-up was as follows:

Polytechnic (0)		Hollywood (6)

LINCOLN TIGERS DRUB FAIRFAX, 6-0

The orange-jerseyed Tigers of Lincoln High yesterday scored a 6-0 victory over the Fairfax Colonials in the opening game of the new Twelve School City League. The game, which was held on the Hollywood High gridiron, was slow throughout, time out having to be taken repeatedly in the last half in order to give aid to Fairfax football players. While the score is small, it does not indicate the real strength of the North Broadway athletes, as only two plays were used throughout the encounter.

After a scoreless first half the Colonists crossed the visitors' goal line three times on a mixture of short passes and line smashes. Rapier raced 60 yards through the Missionaries for the second touchdown. Capt. Roy Messer at quarterback, excelled for the visitors, his passing proving a constant threat to the locals.

Pampas Four Wins at Home

The four horsemen of the pampas, as the Santa Paula team from the Argentine were called when they galloped to the Pacific Coast championship at the Midwick Country Club last winter, won the open championship of their native land recently, according to word received here yesterday by local polo officials. The Santa Paula team, composed of the following riders, Manuel Andrada, Jose Raynal, Juan Reynal and Alfredo Herrington, went undefeated in tournaments on the Coast last season. They were the most popular outfit that has performed here in many years.

They took seven stitches above Erny's left orb last week and it is unlikely that the wound is sufficiently healed to withstand such rough going as is in prospect tomorrow.

This little chap Tonkin, who is playing quarterback for the awful Cougars, will be accorded plenty of attention by the Trojans. He was the sparkplug of Washington State's attack against California and is a bearcat at returning punts and kick-offs. The fact that he weighs under 150 pounds makes him doubly dangerous for it was "Midget" Meeker, something of a squirt, who ruined the Trojans in 1925. Little men have always been more successful against Jones than the huge fellows. Witness Nyland, Mike Murphy, Art Parkison, Don Hill, Cardoso and others.

Edwards, gigantic tackle, and Hein, efficient, veteran center, are the mainstays of Hollingbery

TIRE COMBINE GETS APPROVAL

United States Rubber Board Ratifies Samson Deal

New Company Projected for Exchange of Stock

Operations to Be Stepped Up to Higher Levels

Following the announcement yesterday of the approval by the directors of the United States Rubber Company and Samson Tire and Rubber Corporation of the merger of the tire business of the companies in the Pacific Western States, A. Schleicher, president of the Los Angeles concern, stated that a new corporation will be formed under the plan to be recommended to Samson stockholders.

Common stock of the Samson company will be exchanged for a preferred stock with guaranteed dividends over a period of years, together with a portion of the common stock of the new company, which will retain the present name. The exchange basis will be announced with the completion of details of the formation of the new company.

It is understood that A. Schleicher will continue as president and general manager with S. F. Schleicher as executive vice-president. To provide for the increased production that the merger will necessitate, the present capacity of the Samson plant here will probably be increased from 6000 tires and 10,000 tubes daily to 10,000 tires and 30,000 tubes.

"The United States Rubber Company will immediately add the production of their tire business in the Pacific States to that which Samson has in its new plant," Mr. Schleicher said. "From the standpoint of the stockholders I believe the fulfillment of the plan will carry valuable benefits for them, for I believe that it will perpetuate their investment on a profitable and sound basis in the form of a preferred stock which has dividends guaranteed for a period of years, to which is added an excellent opportunity to benefit by the appreciation of common stock which the Samson stockholders will receive.

"From the standpoint of the community, it adds to the Los Angeles industrial fabric the additional volume of business, increased pay rolls, and capital investment of one of the largest rubber manufacturers in existence without it being necessary to build additional production capacity on the Pacific Coast which is not now needed in the industry. This means another big step forward in the prominence of Los Angeles as a tire manufacturing center."

Seaboard Bank Group Confers

Officers, directors and employees of the Seaboard National Bank at a dinner last night at the Mary Louise given by President George L. Browning discussed organization plans for a greater increase of the bank's business during the next few months.

The drive will be made under the direction of C. C. Hine, chairman of the bank's business extension committee, who said yesterday a determined effort will be made to surpass the 50 per cent increase in the net earnings of the bank made during the first three quarters of this year ending the last inst., over the earnings over the corresponding period in 1929.

Kinner Motor Votes Changes

Proposals of Kinner Airplane and Motor Corporation which include raising the par value of its shares to $10, provisions for the right to buy into companies engaged in allied lines, and establishment of a nonassessable feature to the stock as well as limiting stockholders' liability, have been approved with a margin of 65,000 shares voted in excess of requirements, it was announced yesterday.

The company, it was explained, does not intend at this time to buy any interest in other companies but contemplates the raising of new capital for such purposes when business conditions warrant. Interests acquired would be in companies manufacturing parts Kinner uses and would be for the purpose of offsetting high costs for parts not fabricated by it. It is understood the company will apply for listing the new stock on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and other markets. The present stock is listed on the Los Angeles Curb Exchange.

The monthly financial review issued by William R. Staats Company was released for general distribution yesterday. Among the leading features is an analysis of general business conditions and a review of the bond market.

OFFERS MADE FOR RICHFIELD

Tide Water Associated and Union Oil Named as Bidders for Property; Appraisals Awaited

BY EARLE E. CROWE

After considering several offers for purchase of a minority interest, it is now understood the Richfield Oil Company of California is entertaining two proposals that would involve outright consolidation. The Union Oil Company and the Tide Water Associated Oil Company are named as the tentative bidders.

If discussions between the Richfield and the Tide Water Associated representatives proceed further, it is believed appraisers will be appointed to check the value of lands and physical equipment. After these figures are compiled the terms of exchange into Tide Water Associated will be presented for Richfield's consideration.

EXCHANGE OFFERED

The Union Oil tender, it is understood, involves an exchange of stock predicated on figures exchanged by the two companies in recent months. At several times in the past a consolidation between Union and Richfield has been proposed, but inability to agree on values has killed the trade.

Richfield's trading position has measurably improved since its Belridge acreage was virtually proved by the adjoining Belridge Oil Company discovery. Other companies are anxious to sit in on this picture provided, of course, that a consolidation can be arranged on advantageous terms.

The Belridge situation, in which Richfield holds 480 acres on which a well is already in the sand, may raise the company's appraisal as much as $25,000,000, according to current estimates. Of nearly as much importance, perhaps more if the geologists are right, the Lost Hills acreage owned by Richfield will also swell appraisal figures.

If the Belridge discovery is actually an extension of the Kettleman Hills field, as some authorities contend, the 10,800 acres in Lost Hills lying between Kettleman and Belridge may prove of immense potential value to Richfield. Right now it is given a probable total value of $80,000,000, and if drilling operations pick up the dame sand the acreage may mean as much as $50 a share to Richfield, according to some estimates.

VALUE COMPUTED

Richfield's book value, based on the last statement, which does not include the prospective appreciation in land values, is approximately $62,000,000 for the common stock, or just under $30 a share on the outstanding common, but it is doubtful, even including the Belridge and Lost Hills values, if consolidation offers will approximate this figure under the existing conditions in the industry.

Whatever terms are offered will probably rest on a depreciated appraisal to allow for the relatively poor earning power of petroleum assets in these times. If such an offer is accepted the Richfield directors will likely pin their hopes on future price appreciation in the shares received in exchange.

The Tide Water Associated trade, if it is consummated, would probably presage the inclusion of Richfield in the prospective Sinclair consolidation, which is expected to include Tide Water Associated. Under this program Richfield stockholders eventually would receive Sinclair shares.

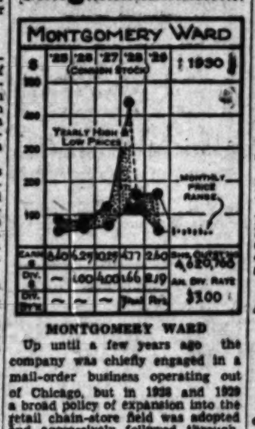
WHAT'S BEHIND YOUR STOCK



MONTGOMERY WARD

Up until a few years ago the company was chiefly engaged in a mail-order business operating out of Chicago, but in 1928 and 1929 a broad policy of expansion into the retail chain-store field was adopted and aggressively followed through. Besides retaining its rank as the second largest factor in the mail-order field, and developing an expert department handling orders from Canada, Mexico, South America and the Far East, Montgomery Ward is now operating about 500 retail chain stores in the important marketing centers of the country. Prepayment of freight charges has been discontinued as a sales policy, but prices have been reduced from 10 to 25 per cent on all items with the gratifying result that sales for the first seven months of the year were 4.3 per cent above the same period of 1929.

Net income in 1929 declined to $13,434,000, from the $17,704,000 figure reported in 1928. This recession in earnings is explained as the result of the adoption of the shipping prepayment plan, since discontinued, and the extraordinary and nonrecurring expenses incident to the opening of the 385 new stores in 1929.

Irving Trust to Be Receiver for Prince-Whitely

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Irving Trust Company was appointed receiver today for Prince & Whitely, fifty-three-year-old brokerage firm, by Federal Judge W. M. Bondy. The appointment was made on motion of W. Ludlow James, attorney for the petitioning creditors.

The receivers took possession of the office and records. Announcement was made the 500 employees, some of whom have worked for Prince & Whitely for twenty or twenty-five years, had been discharged, effective tonight. The only exceptions will be those who are rehired by the receiver to assist in appraising the firm's assets and liabilities.

The receivership action followed the firm's suspension from the New York Stock Exchange yesterday for inability to meet obligations. Attorneys for the house announced the member's financial difficulties were only temporary and were hopeful a reorganization could be effected with no loss to creditors.

New Officials on Roster of Citizens Bank

Election of E. W. Reynolds as a director and of Earle R. Hilbert as junior vice-president of the Citizens' National Trust and Savings Bank was announced yesterday by Herbert D. Ivey, president. Mr. Reynolds is president of E. W. Reynolds Company, largest wholesale jewelry company in the country, founded in 1886, and Mr. Hilbert will be placed in charge of the bank's Central Manufacturing District branch. He succeeds K. B. Wilson, vice-president, who moves to the head office.

In tendering a dinner last night at the California Club to officers and directors of the bank in celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the Citizens' National, Mr. Ivey made the following comment on the business situation:

"Business has learned to avoid excesses. It has learned the importance of sound financial structure. It has recovered from its period of recklessness. Greed and doubt and fear are being supplanted by courage and hope and faith. Saner thinking and saner activity have come to the front. The signs of returning confidence are many. We do not look for, nor do we wish to find, any unnatural acceleration of business speed. What we need, and what we have already entered upon, I believe, is a reasonable quickening of pace that will continue, steadily—if we keep our courage and our faith."

Among the guests at the dinner was P. H. True, who was the first depositor of the Citizens' Bank when it opened on October 10, 1890, and who has maintained an uninterrupted account throughout the entire forty years of the bank's history.

REVOLT HITS BRAZIL BONDS

Little Effect on Real Value of Republic's Liens Expected From Recent Uprising

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

[Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance]

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Brazil's bonds, in fact the bonds of all South American republics, have been depressed by the political news that has been coming out of those countries during recent weeks. One can now secure a bond guaranteed by the Republic of Brazil to net better than 8 per cent.

People often get panicky when they hear about revolutions in different countries. But no matter which faction wins in Brazil, it will need plenty of foreign money to expand the business life of the country. Brazil has already borrowed hundreds of millions, largely from France, England and the United States, and has had excellent credit.

The country must have foreign loans to live. That is well known to every business and political leader in this southern republic.

So it's almost a truism to say that no administration will repudiate Brazil's foreign obligations. It would be suicidal.

Brazilian bonds are among the most attractive issues on the market today.

When the Reichsbank raised its discount rate to 5 per cent, it was to check further loss of gold holdings, which have shrunk about 20 per cent in the last three weeks. The flight of German capital continues. France's credits in Germany are shrinking every day. The political situation, tied up with the uncertain question of reparation payments, is largely the reason.

Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, will arrive in the United States about the middle of November. The report persists that while here he expects to seek additional loans in the American market.

A close friend of Dr. Luther, now in the United States, tells me that all such rumors are groundless; that he has no negotiations pending in the United States concerning loans or reparations, but his coming is merely for the purpose of paying his initial visit as head of the Reichsbank to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, whose guest he will be during his stay.

"Dr. Luther has never been in the United States and one of the first items on his program after entering into office is to get into personal contact with the New York banking world," said Dr. Luther's friend. "He regrets that the situation in Germany prevented him from carrying out his purpose at an earlier date."

Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York lawyer and financier, is a busy man these days. After effecting an agreement with the Cuban producers, whereby 1,300,000 tons of their sugar will be withdrawn from the market and distributed over a period of five years, he has secured from them at the same time an agreement to restrict exports to the United States to 2,800,000 tons for the next crop. His first big obstacle, therefore, has been overcome, and he is now preparing to go to Europe to co-operate with European interests in sugar restriction.

With Cuba out of the way, this New York lawyer will leave soon to attend an international sugar conference in Holland. But why Holland?

Because Holland interests control all the sugar production in Java. If this can be restricted it is felt that the rest of the world's sugar countries can be handled easily.

Cuban holders of sugar will be repaid through loans, based upon the sugar itself which will be held as collateral. The proceeds received from the sale of one-fifth of this surplus sugar placed on the market each year will be used to retire the loans made and liquidate the obligations.

It's a very ambitious program. If successful, it will break new ground in the field of international co-operation.

Flow of Latin Gold Reversed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—A study of gold exchanges between the United States and South American countries as made by the Commerce Department today indicated there has been a net import of gold to this country from that quarter of $71,616,000 in the first half of 1930.

During previous years South American countries have generally been in receipt of gold from the United States, but the reversal of trade trends has resulted in the gain of monetary metal this year.

WOOL MART DEMAND AT LOW LEVEL

Weekly Review Reports Buying Again Light at Unchanged Prices

BOSTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

The wool trade has passed through another quiet week. Some business is being done at the lower levels noted a week ago, but it is inconsequential. Prices are hardly changed for the week.

The manufacturing position develops slowly. A somewhat better feeling exists in the woolen end of the trade. On the whole, however, the market seems to be still unsettled, with moderate business in goods being placed from week to week.

The foreign markets are steadier for the moment on the basis of the new low prices established at London and in the primary markets of the southern hemisphere. The question agitating the minds of the trade is whether this is the final phase of the price decline.

Fall Texas wools are moving partly to the dealers and partly to the co-operatives at advances of 18 to 20 cents to the latter and around 30-31 cents to dealers, for best wools.

Mohair is dull with a few small sales of original Texas hair at about 35 cents.

The fall and water shipments of wool from Boston, according to the same authority from January 1, 1930, to October 9, 1930, inclusive, were 106,988,500 pounds, against 138,496,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1930, to October 9, 1930, inclusive, were 290,522,312 pounds, against 297,431,185 pounds for the same period last year.

TIRE COMBINE GETS APPROVAL

United States Rubber Board Ratifies Samson Deal

Operations to Be Stepped Up to Higher Levels

Following the announcement yesterday of the approval by the directors of the United States Rubber Company and Samson Tire and Rubber Corporation of the merger of the tire business of the companies in the Pacific Western States, A. Schleicher, president of the Los Angeles concern, stated that a new corporation will be formed under the plan to be recommended to Samson stockholders.

Common stock of the Samson company will be exchanged for a preferred stock with guaranteed dividends over a period of years, together with a portion of the common stock of the new company, which will retain the present name. The exchange basis will be announced with the completion of details of the formation of the new company.

It is understood that A. Schleicher will continue as president and general manager with E. F. Schleicher as executive vice-president. To provide for the increased production that the merger will necessitate, the present capacity of the Samson plant here will probably be increased from 6000 tires and 10,000 tubes daily to 16,000 tires and 20,000 tubes.

"The United States Rubber Company will immediately add the production of their tire business in the Pacific States to that which Samson has in its new plant," Mr. Schleicher said. "From the standpoint of the stockholders I believe the fulfillment of the plan will carry valuable benefits for them, for I believe that it will perpetuate their investment on a profitable and sound basis in the form of a preferred stock which has dividends guaranteed for a period of years, to which is added an excellent opportunity to benefit by the appreciation of common stock which the Samson stockholders will receive.

"From the standpoint of the community, it adds to the Los Angeles industrial fabric the addition of volume of business, increased pay rolls, and capital investment of one of the largest rubber manufacturers in existence without it being necessary to build additional production capacity on the Pacific Coast which is not now needed in the industry. This means another big step forward in the prominence of Los Angeles as a tire manufacturing center."

Seaboard Bank Group Confers

Officers, directors and employees of the Seaboard National Bank at a dinner last night at the Mary Louise given by President George L. Browning discussed organization plans for a greater increase of the bank's business during the next few months.

The drive will be made under the direction of C. C. Hine, chairman of the bank's business extension committee, who said yesterday a determined effort will be made to surpass the 80 per cent increase in the net earnings of the bank made during the first three quarters of this year ending the 1st inst., over the earnings over the corresponding period in 1929.

Kinner Motor Votes Changes

Proposals of Kinner Airplane and Motor Corporation which include raising the par value of its shares to $10, provisions for the right to buy into companies engaged in allied lines, and establishment of a nonassessable feature to the stock as well as limiting stockholders' liability, have been approved with a margin of 85,000 shares voted in excess of requirements, it was announced yesterday.

The company, it was explained, does not intend at this time to buy any interest in other companies but contemplates the raising of new capital for such purposes when business conditions warrant. Interests acquired would be in companies manufacturing parts Kinner uses and would be for the purpose of offsetting high costs for parts not fabricated by it. It is understood the company will apply for listing the new stock on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and other markets. The present stock is listed on the Los Angeles Curb Exchange.

REVIEW PUBLISHED

The monthly financial review issued by William R. Staats Company was released for general distribution yesterday. Among the leading features is an analysis of general business conditions and a review of the bond market.

OFFERS MADE FOR RICHFIELD

BY EARLE E. CROWE

After considering several offers for purchase of a minority interest, it is now understood the Richfield Oil Company of California is entertaining two proposals that would involve outright consolidation. The Union Oil Company and the Tide Water Associated Oil Company are named as the tentative bidders.

If discussions between the Richfield and the Tide Water Associated representatives proceed further, it is believed appraisers will be appointed to check the value of lands and physical equipment. After these figures are compiled the terms of exchange into Tide Water Associated will be presented for Richfield's consideration.

EXCHANGE OFFERED

The Union Oil tender, it is understood, involves an exchange of stock predicated on figures exchanged by the two companies in recent months. At several times in the past a consolidation between Union and Richfield has been proposed, but inability to agree on values has killed the trade.

Richfield's trading position has measurably improved since its Belridge acreage was virtually proved by the adjoining Belridge Oil Company discovery. Other companies are anxious to sit in on this picture provided, of course, that a consolidation can be arranged on advantageous terms.

The Belridge situation, in which Richfield holds 480 acres on which a well is already in the sand, may raise the company's appraisal as much as $25,000,000, according to current estimates. Of nearly as much importance, perhaps more if the geologists are right, the Lost Hills acreage owned by Richfield will also swell appraisal figures.

If the Belridge discovery is actually an extension of the Kettleman Hills field, as some authorities contend, the 10,800 acres in Lost Hills lying between Kettleman and Belridge may prove of immense potential value to Richfield. Right now it is given a problematical value of $30,000,000, and if drilling operations pick up the same sand the acreage may mean as much as $50 a share to Richfield, according to some estimates.

VALUE COMPUTED

Richfield's book value, based on the last statement, which does not include the prospective appreciation in land values, is approximately $62,000,000 for the common stock, or just under $30 a share on the outstanding common, but it is doubtful, even including the Belridge and Lost Hills values, if consolidation offers will approximate this figure under the existing conditions in the industry.

Whatever terms are offered will probably rest on a depreciated appraisal to allow for the relatively poor earning power of petroleum assets in these times. If such an offer is accepted the Richfield directors will likely pin their hopes on future price appreciation in the shares received in exchange.

The Tide Water Associated trade, if it is consummated, would probably presage the inclusion of Richfield in the prospective Sinclair consolidation, which is expected to include Tide Water Associated. Under this program Richfield stockholders eventually would receive Sinclair shares.

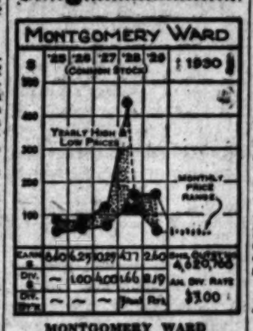
WHAT'S BEHIND YOUR STOCK



MONTGOMERY WARD

Up until a few years ago the company was chiefly engaged in a mail-order business operating out of Chicago, but in 1928 and 1929 a broad policy of expansion into the retail chain-store field was adopted and aggressively followed through. Besides retaining its rank as the second largest factor in the mail-order field, and developing an export department handling orders from Canada, Mexico, South America and the Far East, Montgomery Ward is now operating about 500 retail chain stores in the important marketing centers of the country. Prepayment of freight charges has been discontinued as a sales policy, but prices have been reduced from 10 to 25 per cent on all items with the gratifying result that sales for the first seven months of the year were 4.3 per cent above the same period of 1929.

Net income in 1929 declined to $13,434,000, from the $17,704,000 figure reported in 1928. This recession in earnings is explained as the result of the adoption of the shipping prepayment plan, since discontinued, and the extraordinary and nonrecurring expenses incident to the opening of the 283 new stores in 1929.

CAPITALIZATION

Funded debt	None

Current data: During the year the company plans to use 40 per cent more newspaper advertising than last year, an indication of the aggressive efforts being made to secure business.

Irving Trust to Be Receiver for Prince-Whitely

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—The Irving Trust Company was appointed receiver today for Prince & Whitely, fifty-three-year-old brokerage firm, by Federal Judge W. M. Bondy. The appointment was made on motion of W. Ludlow James, attorney for the petitioning creditors.

The receivers took possession of the office and records. Announcement was made the 500 employees, some of whom have worked for Prince & Whitely for twenty or twenty-five years, had been discharged, effective tonight. The only exceptions will be those who are rehired by the receiver to assist in appraising the firm's assets and liabilities.

The receivership action followed the firm's suspension from the New York Stock Exchange yesterday for inability to meet obligations. Attorneys for the house announced the member's financial difficulties were only temporary and were hopeful a reorganization could be effected with no loss to creditors.

New Officials on Roster of Citizens Bank

Election of E. W. Reynolds as a director and of Earle R. Hilbert as junior vice-president of the Citizens' National Trust and Savings Bank was announced yesterday by Herbert D. Ivey, president. Mr. Reynolds is president of E. W. Reynolds Company, largest wholesale jewelry company in the country, founded in 1886, and Mr. Hilbert will be placed in charge of the bank's Central Manufacturing District branch. He succeeds K. B. Wilson, vice-president, who moves to the head office.

In tendering a dinner last night at the California Club to officers and directors of the bank in celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the Citizens' National, Mr. Ivey made the following comment on the business situation:

"Business has learned to avoid excesses. It has learned the importance of sound financial structure. It has recovered from its period of recklessness. Greed and doubt and fear are being supplanted by courage and hope and faith. Saner thinking and saner activity have come to the front. The signs of returning confidence are many. We do not look for, nor do we wish to find, any unnatural acceleration of business speed. What we need, and what we have already entered upon, I believe, is a reasonable quickening of pace that will continue, steadily—if we keep our courage and our faith."

Among the guests at the dinner was F. H. True, who was the first depositor of the Citizens' Bank when it opened on October 10, 1890, and who has maintained an uninterrupted account throughout the entire forty years of the bank's history.

REVOLT HITS BRAZIL BONDS

Little Effect on Real Value of Republic's Liens Expected From Recent Uprising

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

(Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Brazil's bonds, in fact the bonds of all South American republics, have been depressed by the political news that has been coming out of those countries during recent weeks. One can now secure a bond guaranteed by the Republic of Brazil to net better than 8 per cent.

People often get panicky when they hear about revolutions in different countries. But no matter which faction wins in Brazil, it will need plenty of foreign money to expand the business life of the country. Brazil has already borrowed hundreds of millions, largely from France, England and the United States, and has had excellent credit.

The country must have foreign loans to live. That is well known to every business and political leader in this southern republic.

So it's almost a truism to say that no administration will repudiate Brazil's foreign obligations. It would be suicidal.

Brazilian bonds are among the most attractive issues on the market today.

When the Reichsbank raised its discount rate to 5 per cent, it was to check further loss of gold holdings, which have shrunk about 30 per cent in the last three weeks. The flight of German capital continues. France's credits in Germany are shrinking every day. The political situation, tied up with the uncertain question of reparation payments, is largely the cause of it.

Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, will arrive in the United States about the middle of November. The report persists that while here he expects to seek additional loans in the American market.

A close friend of Dr. Luther, now in the United States, tells me that all such rumors are false; that he has no negotiations pending in the United States concerning loans or reparations, but his coming is merely for the purpose of paying his initial visit as head of the Reichsbank to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, whose guest he will be during his stay.

"Dr. Luther has never been in the United States and one of the first items on his program after entering into office is to get into personal contact with the New York banking world," said Dr. Luther's friend. "He regrets that the situation in Germany prevented him from carrying out his purpose at an earlier date."

Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York lawyer and financier, is a busy man these days. After effecting an agreement with the Cuban producers, whereby 1,500,000 tons of their sugar will be withdrawn from the market and distributed over a period of five years, he has secured from them at the same time an agreement to restrict exports to the United States to 2,800,000 tons for the next crop. His first big obstacle, therefore, has been overcome, and he is now preparing to go to Europe to co-operate with European interests in sugar restriction.

With Cuba out of the way, this New York lawyer will leave soon to attend an international sugar conference in Holland. But why Holland?

Because Holland interests control all the sugar production in Java. If this can be restricted it is felt that the rest of the world's sugar countries can be handled easily.

Cuban holders of sugar will be repaid through loans, based upon the sugar itself which will be held as collateral. The proceeds received from the sale of one-fifth of this surplus sugar placed on the market each year will be used to retire the loans made and liquidate the obligations.

It's a very ambitious program. If successful, it will break new ground in the field of international co-operation.

Flow of Latin Gold Reversed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—A study of gold exchanges between the United States and South American countries as made by the Commerce Department today indicated there has been a net import of gold to this country from that quarter of $71,616,000 in the first half of 1930.

During previous years South American countries have generally been in receipt of gold from the United States, but the reversal of trade trends has resulted in the gain of monetary metal this year.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—For the fifth successive session, South American bonds continued to decline today and many European issues were weak.

In the domestic list, there was a mixture of gains and losses and on the whole, the entire movement was somewhat irregular.

The market experienced the heaviest margin in months, total turnover of $19,000,000 par representing a $2,000,000 increase over the previous day.

For the first time this week the averages were unchanged after dropping sharply each previous day.

Losses in the South American list ran on the average from 1 to 2 points and there were extreme declines of 5 points in Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s and Peru Argentina 7½s, and a 10-point one in Rio Grande do Sul 8s, which at 51 is off 32 points from its year's high.

Brazilian 6½s found good support, and bond issues were up a point or two, but Peru 8s at 100½ and the 7½s of 1944 were down 3 to 5 points. Rio de Janeiro 6½s slumped 4 points.

The liquidation extended to obligations of many South American countries, including 6s of Germany. Gains of like extent were run up by other issues of that country except 5 to 7 points.

The domestic section was generally lower, although the pressure against prime issues eased during buying support, especially a lot to register small gains. Many issues of the railroad group participated through the list, American and Foreign Power by fallen 2 points.

United States Governments were steady to firm.

If bond trading continued low and list on quiet, low and high are omitted; bonds now and last are named.

SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16. (AP)—The stock tobogan hit the bottom today after a swift plunge to the year's lowest levels, and wildcat buying swept in swiftly on the opposite side, with momentum enough to ride well above yesterday's price level for leaders in today's finale. Utility stocks held the lead in the afternoon rise which came when Wall-street bears quit selling and began buying.

Sales again took more than $1,000,000 for around 37,000 shares, the activity abating somewhat during the afternoon.

All groups provided examples of recuperative strength, but the stabilizing weight of steady sales during the last month, but lately were also numbers of specialties particularly distributed that failed to snap back. Net losses on the day included North American Investment, Lehman Corp., and California Packing, all down 2 points, and dips of a point or more for Marchilla American Rolling preferred and Paraffine.

TINY MISS OUT TO GO PLACES

But She Bungles Start and Adventure

Norma Barker

SHE wanted to go places and do things, but being only 2½ years of age, she did not know just how to get started. Paul Herman, taxi cab driver, found her at Seventh and Witmer streets staring with wondering brown eyes at passing traffic and turned her over to juvenile authorities.

From 9:30 a.m. to noon yesterday she was cared for at the police juvenile bureau and learned how watches tick and how to tangle up keys on a typewriter. All the police could learn from her was that her name was Norma.

Then a worried mother, Mrs. Mary Barker, called in to report her small daughter missing from her home at 1527 Cambria street, and soon Norma found herself back home again. While her mother was busy with her housework and the care of two other children Norma had wandered around the block to where Herman found her.

PANTAGES CASE WILL GO HIGHER

Denied Rehearing, State Prepares for Appeal to State Supreme Court

Denied a rehearing on the order of the Appellate Court granting Alexander Pantages, theater man, a new trial on the charge of having attacked Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, the Attorney-General's office yesterday announced that it will shortly appeal to the Supreme Court for a hearing.

The Appellate Court denied the State's petition without comment.

Under court rules, the State's petition to the Supreme Court must be filed by the 16th inst. The defense will have until the 22nd inst. to reply and the upper court will have until the 26th inst. to decide whether it will hear the case.

Division One, District Court of Appeal, granted the theater man a new trial, giving as grounds for its decision misconduct by the prosecution and errors by the court. The decision was written by Justice Houser and concurred in by Presiding Justice Conrey and Associate Justice York.

Business Good, Says President of Boeing Lines

P. G. Johnson, president of the various Boeing companies, was conservatively optimistic about aeronautical activities on the Pacific Coast when he completed an inspection of Boeing activities in Southern California yesterday.

Johnson pointed out that the Boeing system's California-Chicago air-mail route carried 11 per cent more air mail the first eight months of this year and the Pacific Air Transport 8 per cent more on the Seattle-Los Angeles-San Diego run, contrasted with the same period of last year.

United Airport has all its space rented and is completing the largest hangar in America, said Johnson.

MOVE MADE TO PREVENT VENICE FIRE

Council Action Urged as Sequel to Warning Given on Oil-Field Condition

A resolution asking that immediate steps be taken to abate danger to life and property in the Venice oil field, a matter complained of Thursday by the Fire Commission, was introduced yesterday in the City Council by Councilman Williams. It was referred to the Police and Fire Committee.

The resolution asks that no further oil-drilling permits be granted until after provision of safety measures, but the Council yesterday adopted oil-drilling ordinances in favor of G. M. Jones, the J. M. Schneider Company, Ltd., and T. H. Thurlow.

Williams also asks that the police department enforce existing laws and ordinances and arrest violators, that the Board of Public Works enforce building and sanitary ordinances, that the City Engineer make a survey on the furnishing of adequate water mains and that the City Attorney report to the Board of Public Works on the matter of the city's liability due to the defective conditions of streets and ground.

G.O.P. HARMONY PLEDGED

Goal of 1,000,000 Votes Set for State Ticket as Show of Confidence in Hoover

Setting a goal of 1,000,000 votes, Republican leaders from the eight southern counties pledged undivided support to the State ticket at the November election at a dinner last night honoring Mayor Rolph, candidate for Governor, and State Senator Merriam, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

In addition to the huge majority for the Republican candidates, Louis B. Mayer, vice-chairman of the Republican State committee, who presided, pointed out that such a vote will serve as an indication of solid support to the administration of President Hoover.

"Such a Republican majority as California has never before given to the party nominees," said Mr. Mayer, "will give notice to the other forty-seven States of the confidence we have in President Hoover and his administration and pave the way for the Presidential campaign of 1932."

Speakers throughout the gathering voiced the sentiments of the chairman and expressed little fear but that the entire ticket will be swept into office, and urged an overwhelming majority that will speak in volume to the rest of the nation as to the feelings in California with reference to the national administration.

Pledges of unqualified support were made by Mark L. Requa, Republican national committeeman, Mrs. O. P. Clark, national committeewoman; Frank Jordan, Secretary of State; Representatives Crail and Evans.

In addition J. K. Ward, county chairman of San Diego; Tom Talbert, county chairman of Orange; Jack Moore, secretary of Ventura county; Frank Hinckley, secretary of Santa Barbara county, and George Bush, secretary Los Angeles county, spoke for their respective districts and told of Republican harmony that exists and forecast large majorities for all Republican candidates.

REVISING USURY LAW OPPOSED

Workman Asks Defeat of Initiative Measure

Present Act Defended by Morris Plan Head

Control of Loan Companies Declared Only Need

The Los Angeles Morris Plan Company, sometimes referred to as the "poor man's bank" because it specializes in comparatively small loans at moderate interest rates, is strongly opposed to the new usury law sought to be enacted by initiative at the election November 4. This initiative is No. 10 on the ballot.

The position of the company is particularly significant by reason of its identification with the business of lending money to a class which usury laws are especially designed to protect. The reasons for its stand are set forth in the following statement, made public yesterday by W. H. Workman, president of the Los Angeles Morris Plan Company:

WORKMAN STATEMENT

The proposal to amend the California State usury law was brought to me some months ago and the Los Angeles Morris Plan Company was invited to co-operate in submitting it to the people on November 4, 1930. We declined. Inquiry as to the origin and purposes of the proposal yielded no satisfactory information and so far as industrial loan companies are concerned, there is no reason to ask for the liberalizing amendment because during the nine years that the usury law has been in effect we have built a fair-sized corporation and made moderate profits at rates for loans substantially lower than the maximum permitted by this law as it now stands.

Of course, the California State usury law is badly drafted. There are many ambiguities and some of its provisions have been nullified as unconstitutional, but its main provisions are sound and, while safeguarding the interests of the people, do not unduly restrict legitimate business. Probably its defects are such as will always inhere in legislation enacted by the people acting under emotional stress.

For some years now, cases arising from the application of this law have been reaching the Supreme Court and in its reasonable interpretations that tribunal has already done much to clarify the law, to cut away its defects and to fit it into its appropriate place in the general mosaic of all our State laws. It is not unreasonable to anticipate that within an endurable period of time such judicial construction will leave few doubts as to the intent and application of the present usury law, and it would appear the part of wisdom not to interrupt this desirable process by further, doubtful, attempts of the people to legislate directly in this matter.

USURY OLD OFFENSE

Usury is a very old offense. Organized society has frowned upon it and fought it by laws for centuries, yet it still flourishes and probably will continue to flourish so long as there are greed, on the one hand, and necessity, due to misfortune and plain foolishness, on the other. Concerning usury and many other evils, we are beginning to learn that the fiat of legislation alone is not the cure nor even the best means of relief. Of course, there must be laws setting up the standards and fundamentals of society, but in the case of usury, along with the law there should be set up and maintained in each community some organization operated strictly on business principles but whose primary purpose is not big profits—not "getting all that the traffic will bear"—but rather to render the service of making necessitous, remedial and constructive loans to all who may need them. It is obvious that such organizations should be kept, both as to control and as to management, in the hands of that class of the well-to-do who are not looking for huge profits, who have a sense of social responsibility and who are within the reach of the local authorities should they slip from their high ideals.

LEGISLATION NEEDED

Legislation is needed in the local situation and it should come from the Legislature, forbidding, under drastic penalties, the control of local loan companies by interests outside of the State whose sole purpose is the exploitation of our citizens. This, together with greater care on the part of the duly constituted authorities in the issuance of permits allowing the organization of new industrial loan companies and a closer control of the rates and practices of those now doing business, would quickly and effectively prevent industrial loan companies, at least, lapsing into usurious practices while performing their undoubtedly great and much-needed service to their communities.

I shall vote against the usury amendment and advise others to do so.

CROP OF HAIR NETS PROFIT

Cutting Yields Handsome Returns

This Grower Needs No Relief
Capt. John Loder getting a $1500 hair cut. Inset shows him before harvesting.

BALD-HEADED men sighed last night when they heard of the case of Capt. John Loder. Not because he'd just had a haircut, or had hair to cut, but because of an opportunity enjoyed by Loder forever closed to them.

Yesterday Capt. Loder settled himself comfortably in a barber chair, said crisply "clippers aide and back, but don't leave a ridge," and then dreamily let his mind drift to banks and bank balances.

There was a reason for this. Instead of paying from 50 cents to a $1 for the haircut, as most men do, not counting the tip, Loder got—

Fifteen hundred dollars for it!

Why? Oh, just one of those things that happen in the films. Loder formerly possessed a luxuriant thatch of which he was proud. But to play the part of a German submarine officer in "The Seas Beneath," directed by John Ford, he had to Prussianize his appearance. He agreed to part with his hair on condition he was promised a contract, five weeks' work, and $1500.

And he actually got it.

FITTS TOLD GIRL'S STORY OF WALKUP

Helen Lee Expected to Repeat Recital to Grand Jury Next Tuesday

Miss Helen Lee, the pretty blond lure in the asserted plot to "frame" Police Commissioner Walkup, yesterday afternoon told her story to Dist.-Atty. Fitts and will probably repeat it to the grand jury next Tuesday morning. She was taken to the Hall of Justice by Chief of Detectives Taylor and remained in conference with the District Attorney for more than an hour.

"I believe the grand jury should hear the evidence in this case," declared Fitts after the interview. "It will be up to them to determine whether a crime was committed or contemplated."

According to the police, who have been investigating the reported effort to "frame" the commissioner for almost a month, they now have the case in such a shape that indictments can be voted by the grand jury. At least a dozen witnesses probably will be called to tell what they know of the asserted plot.

In the meantime, Detectives James, McMullin and Nolan are still searching for Connor M. Shawn and Edward S. Ward, both mentioned by Miss Lee in her confession as having had a part in the plot, who fled the city during the early stages of the police investigation.

Red Inquiry Party Departs for San Diego

Members of the Congressional committee investigating Communism, who held a two-day session in Los Angeles, enjoyed a day of recreation here yesterday before leaving late in the afternoon for San Diego. Breakfast was served them at the residence of Representative Evans at Glendale, after which they motored to Universal City where they were shown through the studio.

A drive through Hollywood followed. They were guests of the Los Angeles Athletic Club for lunch, and then started in automobiles for San Diego.

ORGAN RECITAL TOMORROW

An organ recital from the works of Johann Sebastian Bach will be rendered tomorrow at 4 p.m. by Alexander Schreiner, organist at the Mormon Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, in the auditorium of Josiah Royce Hall, at the University of California at Los Angeles. The recital will be free to the public.

Weather to Be Fair and Mild

The old song "It Ain't Gonna Rain no More" was being hummed at the local Weather Bureau yesterday as the weather experts determined the climatic menu for Los Angeles for the remainder of the week.

Predictions of fair and mild weather were made. It was announced that the storm center which brought the first real rain of the season to the Southland is now over New Mexico and that there might be a few lingering clouds. A brief shower was reported at Glendale yesterday afternoon but the clouds hugged the mountains closely.

The highest temperature yesterday was 89 deg. and the lowest was 53 deg. At 5 a.m. humidity registered 94 per cent and at noon 42 per cent. At 5 p.m. it was 53 per cent.

Following is the rainfall, in inches, reported from various Southern California points up to 5 p.m. yesterday:

Bad Faith Laid to Company Over Improvements

New Program Cited to Prove Charges Unfounded

Councilman McAllister yesterday attempted to revive the old fight on inadequate street-car service and increased fares by moving that the City Attorney take steps before either the Railroad Commission or the courts demanding the resumption of adequate schedules and the provision of extensions and new equipment which he says were pledged when the fares were raised. The matter was referred to City Attorney Werner and the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation.

A wealth of data, designed to show the failure of the Los Angeles Railway Company to live up to its promises, was produced by McAllister.

His figures show that the increased fares enlarged the company's income by $342,176 in 1928 and by $1,589,612 in 1929. While wage increases have been granted employees, a reduction of personnel has compensated for this, he said. Expenditures for betterments in 1928 amounted to $600,000, in 1929 to $740,000, while $150,147 has been expended for line extensions in Central avenue, Grand avenue and Third street, McAllister says, which he protests mean unfulfilled promises.

FIGURES CHALLENGED

A system of withdrawing cars from service has been instituted, McAllister declares, resulting in demoralization of the service and complaints. This reduction, he says, amounts to 16 per cent in August, 1930, as compared to August, 1929. A gradual cut in car miles has been going on, he says, since April, 1930.

"The only apparent effect of the fare increase has been to improve the financial condition of the company," concluded McAllister.

Accuracy of the figures presented to the City Council by McAllister were challenged by R. O. Crowe, vice-president of the transportation company.

DEBTS PAID

"Our passenger income in 1929, our report shows, was $1,347,436 over 1928, and not $1,589,612 as quoted by Councilman McAllister," he said. "One must remember that we were forced to withhold our increase for possible refund for three years until the courts decided we could use the added fare. We had to borrow money and much of this increase went to pay debts.

"We did not reduce our service 16 per cent in August, 1930, as compared to the same month in 1929. Our service is now sixteen cars per day less, scattered over the twenty-six lines of the city. Our income the first seven days of October, this year, as compared to the first seven days of October, 1929, shows a daily reduction of $3700. We had a program, naturally, and it will be carried out by our company as soon as business conditions warrant it.

PLANS REVEALED

"As to betterment of service, we are going before the Board of Public Utilities and Transportation sometime next week with a program of looping our cars through the business district during rush hours. This will break up the long lines during the peak of traffic and if a delay occurs at the end of a line service will not be delayed on the entire line. We also are contemplating a loop from Central to Vermont, going, possibly, down Sixth street and returning on another line. This will give people living east of Vermont a chance to board a car that is not jammed full by the time it reaches their boarding point.

"We will have twenty-five of the new leather-seated cars in service here within the next sixty days. We also will have two new type of cars which we want to try out. These cars are being built now in the St. Louis car shops, and are known as the Peter Witt type. The entire front half of the car will be used as a loading platform. The conductor will be stationed in the center of the car and will not collect fares until the passenger goes past his post, either to take a seat in the rear half of the car or to get off. Passengers may sit up front for the entire ride without paying fare until they get off. This will do away with the delay of boarding

Weather Fair and Mild

The old song "It Ain't Gonna Rain no More" was being hummed at the local Weather Bureau yesterday as the weather experts determined the climatic menu for Los Angeles for the remainder of the week.

Predictions of fair and mild weather were made. It was announced that the storm center which brought the first real rain of the season to the Southland is now over New Mexico and that there might be a few lingering clouds. A brief shower was reported at Glendale yesterday afternoon but the clouds hugged the mountains closely.

The highest temperature yesterday was 89 deg. and the lowest was 53 deg. At 5 a.m. humidity registered 94 per cent and at noon 42 per cent. At 5 p.m. it was 53 per cent.

Following is the rainfall, in inches, reported from various Southern California points up to 5 p.m. yesterday:

RUSH OF BUYING FORECAST

Chicago Stock Exchange Head Looks for Upturn in Prices That Will Start Scramble

With numerous business barometers indicating that the bottom of the depression has been reached or passed R. A. Wood, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange and a member of the Chicago brokerage concern of Clement, Curtis & Co., declared yesterday that he is looking for an upturn in commodity prices to start a buyers' scramble.

"Nobody wants to buy stocks on a declining market," Wood said at the Biltmore. "Similarly, no one wants to buy goods on a declining commodity market. When commodity prices do go up, however, we shall see buying all along the line."

From the merchandising standpoint, the visitor declared, inventories are down to bed rock, according to information supplied him by business interests throughout the Middle West. Retailers, manufacturers and jobbers all report that their stocks of finished goods are at a low ebb, he said, and it follows that they will be tremendous buyers if commodity prices should take an upward swing.

Business barometers, such as the price of capital and the like, all indicate that business conditions have reached the bottom or are improving, Wood asserted. As for the stock market, however, he went on, it may continue depressed in reflection of possible bad reports for the third and fourth quarters.

Wood is particularly interested in the inauguration of Chicago Stock Exchange ticker service on the Pacific Coast.

The new ticker service, provided a few weeks ago, will, in his opinion, do much to bring the western slope into closer relationship with Chicago, bringing about a very broad interchange of capital and securities.

Seven Chicago exchange memberships have been sold on the West Coast, Wood stated. Eight tickers have been placed in operation and a three-year contract has been entered into with the Western Union in this connection. This may not seem like much at this time, he said, but it is a start and will lead

COSMIC RAY REGARDED AS WEATHER FACTOR

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Oct. 10.—Cosmic rays appear to have a close relation to certain weather conditions, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, executive head of the California Institute of Technology, revealed tonight before members of the Astronomy and Physics Club.

"Cosmic rays have everything to do with meteorology, according to our present theory," he declared.

The strange rays, which are ether waves that result from the formation of common elements in "the depths of space" are the only rays which have any important effect in ionizing cloud areas, Dr. Millikan indicated, and except for any ionization due to lightning and thunder effects, all ions in the atmosphere within a few miles of the earth may be the result of cosmic rays.

In the upper atmosphere, above 200 miles, the sun's ultra-violet light seems to have a far more important effect than the cosmic rays, however.

In discussing the question as to whether or not there is a "net electric current" flowing into the earth and charging it, Dr. Millikan asserted that in harmony with one theory, the current carried by water and dust particles should be equal to the current produced by cosmic rays.

Although no accurate measurement of the earth's electrical charge has been made, the California Institute physicist believes such a measurement may yet be accomplished.

OUR TENDON OF ACHILLES

A great deal depends upon the outcome of the warship maneuvers to take place this winter off Panama Canal.

Either the United States must find a way to protect the canal from air attacks or we must have an additional canal through Nicaragua.

As to direct tactical methods, the World War did not teach much, because, in all probability, there will never be another war fought in ditches. But it did teach the world that all future wars are likely to be fought, not by two countries, but by two coalitions. If we ever have a war in the Pacific, some Atlantic sea power will surely be in it, too. Thus the canal becomes the jugular vein of our national defenses.

A CHARMING BOOK

One of the most charming and leisurely books I have come across for some time is Hamlin Garland's "Wayside Meetings"—an account of his literary friendships. It is an intimate portrait gallery of just about every important figure in the world of art, literature and journalism for two generations.

Most of all, however, the book is self-revealing. Mr. Garland seems to have lived a long life (and one of distinction,) full of worries about things that do not seem to me to matter; worries because radio operators do not speak good English; worries because our native literature does not flourish.

RADIO ENGLISH

A year or so ago Mr. Garland invited me to go to luncheon with him. Thereupon he asked me to enlist in a campaign to purify radio English. I would with equal cheerfulness have enlisted in a campaign to make rabbits' ears longer or to induce katydids to sing bass. But I enlisted. He seemed to be so stirred up about it and he is such a wonderful old fellow.

DO THE DEAD RETURN?

Another thing that agitates Mr. Garland, to the extent of years of relentless investigation, is as to whether the spirits of the dead return to earth.

I don't know whether they do or not; but what if they do and what if they don't? What can we do about it? And, after all, what does it matter unless perhaps to the spirits?

RIDDLE WITH NO ANSWER

Not long ago, a man whom I honor in greater measure than any other man I know, told me his whole life was ruled by the assurance that his dead mother was watching over him and guiding him.

"And," he said, smiling with a peculiar tenderness, "I know that she is right here now listening to us."

Whether or not this was literally true, it is clear that her lessons, her thoughts and the influence of her living words remain an active force in his heart. So, to that extent, she was there. Beyond that, is it any value to inquire into a question the answer of which we cannot know?

COUNTY-IN-CITY OPINIONS VARY

Officials Present Views on Proposal for Change

Simpler Plan Held Possible to Avoid Duplication

Further Consideration for Project Favored

Varying opinions were expressed yesterday by county officers relative to the movement of the city of Los Angeles to make the city into a separate county. Most of them are of the belief that there is some duplication of effort in the county and city governments which could be eliminated by some plan worked out in a co-operative way. They hesitate, however, to say they favor a plan for the city becoming a county by itself until such a plan has been given further study.

"The consolidation of some of the functions of county government with those of the city would be highly desirable to prevent duplication and unnecessary expense," declared County Counsel Matcom. "Very careful study must be given the problem, because the inherent factors affecting this territory are essentially different from those surrounding the city and county of San Francisco. The county government is fundamentally an arm of the State and as such is charged with certain functions not directly related to municipal affairs. It is quite probable that a mature study of this question may result in some helpful and constructive plan for effecting a change."

OTHERS GIVE VIEWS

Registrar of Voters Kerr declared he is neutral.

"I don't know," said County Assessor Hopkins, "whether it is practical or not. The matter of the gasoline tax can be controlled in the Legislature by amending the present gasoline-tax law to allocate proper proportions to the different cities instead of turning it all over to the counties. The matter of overlapping expenses could be adjusted along the same lines, as the assessment and collection of taxes is now carried out. This could be done without consolidation. It would cost the city more than $900,000 annually to assess and collect and redeem its own taxes."

"Any duplication that exists in the city and county governments ought to be removed in the interests of the taxpayer," according to Supervisor Wright. "Whether the two governments could be consolidated entirely or whether the county could be organized into two separate counties is such a large question I would hesitate to pass an opinion on it at this time. I would gladly co-operate in any movement that will eliminate duplication between the county and the forty-five cities in the county. In the event of a separation of Los Angeles into a separate county I am just wondering who would own all the county government buildings which have been erected at a cost of millions of dollars and borne by the taxpayers at the present time. It appears virtually every county institution and building is located within the corporate limits of the city of Los Angeles."

DETAILS WANTED

Sam J. Chappel, director of the activities of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Efficiency, declared:

"There isn't any doubt in my mind that certain overlapping functions of the two governments should be consolidated in the interest of efficiency. It would be hard to express an opinion until a more concrete plan has been outlined."

"So far as the assessment and collection of taxes are concerned," declared County Tax Collector Shick, "it is costing the city of Los Angeles less now than if it had its own department. There is no duplication of function there and the city pays a nominal sum for the services the county renders in that regard. There are undoubtedly other functions that could be consolidated in the same way eliminating the duplicating of activities without disintegrating the present system of county government.

"This is the first time, I believe, that there has been a proposal to make the city a county limit," said County Clerk Lampton. "Usually, the talk has been for the county absorbing the city. I do not know what the city's plan is so I cannot say, at this time, much about it.

"I know this, that such a plan, any plan, cannot be worked out in a hurried manner. It should be thoroughly studied by a corps of experts before anything is attempted. There is no doubt some duplication of government in places, which could be overcome without consolidation like in the assessing and collecting of taxes. Why not try this before attempting consolidation, or a separation of the city into a county by itself?"

CO-ED COPS GIVE 'EM ROUGH DEAL

Mere Males at U.C.L.A. Barred From Girls' "Hi-Jinx"

They're Learning About Women

Max Dolson, Gerald Friedman, Stanley Friedman and Richard Hixson find out they haven't a chance against Josephine Dodson, Kay Preston, June McCann, Dorothy Nichols and Marjorie Nichols in scrimmage.

CO-EDS at the University of California at Los Angeles adopted stringent measures last night to prevent men students from "crashing" the annual Women's Hi-Jinx held in the university auditorium. A squad of co-ed "cops" armed with clubs, caps and the authority of the Associated Women Students, patrolled the campus throughout the evening.

The Hi-Jinx consisted of a number of short skits and novelty numbers staged by various women's organizations on the campus. The theme of all the skits suggested the Arabian nights.

The affair was sponsored by the Associated Women Students and was under direction of Bettie Edmundson.

CALIFORNIA OPERA TO BE PRESENTED

"Girl of Golden West" will Wind Up Second Week; "Lucia" to Close Season

The second week of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association's annual season ends tonight at the Shrine Auditorium with Maria Jeritza singing in "Girl of the Golden West," leaving only one more performance to be presented. "Lucia" will bring the season to a close Monday night.

Jeritza is to take her fourth and final role of the season tonight. She has been heard, in "Salome," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Tannhauser."

Frederick Jagel, also of the Metropolitan, who has been called America's leading tenor, and Gaetano Viviani, leading baritone at the La Scala Opera, Milan, Italy, will appear with Jeritza tonight.

Armando Agnini, whose stage sets have won much favorable comment this season, has built special scenery for "The Girl of the Golden West." Puccini based his opera on David Belasco's play of the same name, which has California for its setting.

Gaetano Merola, director-general of the Los Angeles and San Francisco associations, will conduct tonight and on Monday night.

BUSHNELL PICNIC PLANNED

HILL FOUND GUILTY IN THEFT CASE

Former Steamship Line Executive Faces Prison; Will Ask New Trial

Frank C. Hill, former president of the California Eastern Steamship Company, yesterday was convicted of four counts of grand theft by a jury in Superior Judge Tryon's court by a jury which had considered the evidence for nearly forty-eight hours.

Hill was charged with fourteen counts of grand theft in the indictment under which he was tried. The four counts of grand theft of which he was convicted involve approximately $84,000.

Following the verdict, Judge Tryon permitted Hill to remain at liberty until this afternoon to complete personal business affairs.

George Rupp, attorney representing Hill, indicated that he will seek to obtain a new trial. Harold Jones and Grant Cooper, prosecution attorneys, indicated that they will oppose any such legal moves.

Boy Accused of Slaying Friend Gets Sentence

Roy Kent, 13-year-old schoolboy accused of killing his playmate, Bruno De Maria, 13, during a childish squabble over a toy police badge, yesterday was sentenced by Superior Judge Blake to the Whittier Reform School until he becomes 21.

Judge Blake made his decision after reading numerous reports of investigating officers. The reports indicated that De Maria and Kent stole a gun from a neighbor's home shortly before the shooting. Probation investigators suggested that Kent may have killed the De Maria boy to keep him from telling of their asserted burglary.

The shooting occurred September 10, last, near the Kent boy's home at 911 East Seventy-seventh street. The boys had been playing together the entire afternoon.

The shot was fired, according to experts, from a gun owned by the Kent boy's father and not from the other gun taken from a neighbor's home.

ADVANCE IN TAXI RATES APPROVED

Utilities Board Sanctions Increases Asked for by Four Companies

An increase in taxicab fares by the Yellow, Black and White, Red Top and California cab companies in Los Angeles, to go into effect as soon as the meters can be changed, was approved by the Board of Public utilities and Transportation of Los Angeles yesterday at the united request of the companies.

The companies say taxicab operations under the present rate do not pay operators a reasonable profit on their investment and submitted evidence to this effect.

Each company is to charge $2.50 an hour for waiting time.

The Yellow cab rates are to be changed from 15 cents for the first quarter of a mile and 10 cents for each half-mile thereafter to 15 cents for the first fifth and 10 cents for each succeeding third of a mile.

The Black and White cabs, which now charge 5 cents for the first fifth and 10 cents for each additional half-mile, will charge 10 cents for the first fifth and 10 cents for each additional two-fifths of a mile.

The Red Top and California cab companies which charge 10 cents for the first fifth and 10 cents for each additional half-mile, will charge 10 cents for each additional two-fifths of a mile.

REGISTRAR'S VOTER LIST SHOWS GAIN

Residents of County Eligible in November Election Total 853,676

Final registration figures for the State general election on November 4, next, completed by Registrar of Voters Kerr last night, show that 853,676 persons in Los Angeles county will be entitled to mark a ballot at the election.

The total shows a gain of 26,790 over the number of persons registered in time to vote for the State primary election on August 26, last. Registration for the general election closed last Saturday night.

Of the total, 476,735 were registrations in Los Angeles city, of which 337,427 gave their party affiliation as Republican; 92,758, Democratic; 2771, Socialist; 2837, Prohibition, and 40,926 declined to state a party connection.

A total of 376,941 registrations elsewhere in the county were classified as 266,147, Republican; 73,458, Democratic; 1859, Socialist; 3071, Prohibition, and 30,406 declined to state a party affiliation.

ARMY'S FLYERS GIRD FOR 'WAR'

Six Pursuit Planes Will Join "Blue" Forces Today

"Red" Craft Scheduled to Attack Next Week

Gun and Light Nests Will be Inspected Today

Six of the Army's fastest Boeing pursuit planes will join the "Blue" forces of the Sixty-third Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps, at United Airport tomorrow in preparation for the scheduled mimic air attack by "Red" planes from Rockwell Field, against Los Angeles and the airport.

The "Red" planes will attempt to run the gantlet of communication outposts and antiaircraft "nests" established between here and San Diego Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

PROBLEM OUTLINED

They will try to fly over the communication outposts without being sighted and "bomb" the airport before the antiaircraft batteries, theoretically, can get into action against them or the "Blue" planes take to the air to repulse them.

During night-surprise attacks the "Red" ships will have to dodge the pilot beams of automatic aircraft detectors and the fifteen-mile fingers of the five 8,000,000,000-candlepower searchlights surrounding the Burbank port.

INSPECTION TODAY

Inspection of the five antiaircraft nests, each equipped with one of the lights, machine guns, antiaircraft guns and detectors, will be made at noon today, it was announced by Lieut.-Col. Willis Peace, commanding officer of the maneuvers.

He said the "Red" attacks will be made on the three exercise days any time between the hours of 6:30 and 11:30 a.m.; 1 and 7 p.m., and 7 and 11 p.m. Eight fighting planes from Rockwell Field will make up the "Red" air forces. Communication outposts have been established at Santa Ana, Corona, Riverside, Oceanside, Escondido and Ramona.

VINEYARD EMPLOYEES' TRIAL SET

Four of Nine Indicted in Sale of "Processed" Juice Appear for Hearing

Four of the nine officers and employees of the California Vineyards Company, recently indicted by the Federal grand jury along with the company itself, appeared yesterday before United States District Judge James. The four, C. S. Payne, a salesman; J. W. Loweberg, a salesman; J. D. Freicks, warehouse manager, and Thomas Stone, sales manager, were arraigned on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

Bail for the four was reduced, with consent of United States Attorney McNabb, from $5000 to $3000. Those who appeared will enter their pleas on the 20th inst.

The vineyards company and the officers and employees are charged with selling concentrated grape syrup and showing customers how to mix it with grape juice and yeast in order to produce a wine of not less than 15 per cent alcohol content. The company is said by prohibition agents operating under Deputy Administrator Peters and investigator Smith to have carried on a nation-wide campaign to sell "processed" grape syrup capable of making wine.

SHEFFIELD RETRIAL SET BY COURT

Once-Convicted Officer Will Face Jury Again on November 10

Maceo B. Sheffield, colored, former Los Angeles police officer convicted of accepting money to extend protection to Central-avenue bootleggers, who subsequently won a new trial upon appeal to the Appellate Court, is to be retried in Superior Judge Schauer's court on November 10, next.

This was the ruling of Superior Judge Wood yesterday, despite the fact that the District Attorney has filed a petition with the Appellate Court for a rehearing on the decision.

Sheffield originally was charged with twelve counts of extortion.

After Sheffield's new trial date was fixed by Judge Wood, the defendant was released under $10,000 bail.

Hawaii Gives Inspiration to Woman Artist

Mrs. Frank R. Lawrence

Hawaii proved the inspiration to another American painter, just returned on the Lasseo liner Calawaii after eight months in the islands. She is Mrs. Frank R. Lawrence of Darien, Ct., wife of a New York attorney, who accompanied her.

Mrs. Lawrence attained unusual recognition by the Academy of Arts at Honolulu when forty of her pictures were exhibited. They included land and sea scapes, and portraits, the latter of composite racial types, said to have been the first study of its kind.

She also has exhibited her paintings at the Philadelphia Academy and abroad, and is a member of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors, and kindred bodies. The Lawrences will remain in Los Angeles two months before proceeding home.

TWO CITIES TO VOTE ON WATER PLAN

Ontario and Fullerton Given Right to Ballot on Joining District

That the citizens of Ontario and Fullerton will pass upon the proposition of having these two communities join the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California was indicated yesterday when the board of directors of the district officially approved the submission of this question by the two cities.

Consent of the Metropolitan Water District board to the submission of the annexation proposition was gained after formal applications from the City Councils of the two cities had been received by the board at its monthly session at district headquarters, 222 South Hill street. Representatives of Ontario and Fullerton also appeared before the board to urge approval of their cities' application to join the eleven communities already in the water district.

Upon the statement of Acting Chief Engineer Julian Hinds that both Ontario and Fullerton are situated near cities already in the district and, therefore, within economic distribution distance, the board unanimously adopted resolutions of approval.

The resolutions set forth the payments that must be made to the district if the cities vote to go in. Ontario and Fullerton must pay over to the district the same amount of money as though they had been members of the district from its establishment. This includes payments for the year 1929 and 1930 as well as for the coming year.

PIGOTT FUNERAL RITES WILL BE READ TODAY

Funeral rites will be conducted at 11 a.m. today at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Forest Lawn Memorial Park, for William Pigott, 54 years of age, Culver City real estate man and a past president of the Culver City branch of the Los Angeles Realty Board. Mr. Pigott died Wednesday. A native of England, he came to Southern California twenty years ago. His home was at 1021 Sicarne Drive. He leaves two daughters, Miss Barbara Pigott and Mrs. Ireland Davis, both of Los Angeles.

BIDS FAIL TO APPEAR

Yesterday was the date for the City Council to open bids for leasing for oil drilling city property at the Venice sewage pumping plant and at the intersection of Jefferson and Centinela boulevards, but no bidders appeared and the matter was called off temporarily.

OF THE COMMUNITY CHEST

I. EISNER SAYS

"I am a firm believer in the Los Angeles Community Chest. I know that it is capably and economically managed, that it is an organization necessary for the welfare of our community and that the agencies which it aids are worthy of support. I cannot too strongly indorse its purpose.

"This year especially, when the need is so great among the indigent, it is our duty to generously contribute to the appeal for funds."

Ginger Ale Suit on "California" Brand Settled

"California" ginger ale, both dry and pale, may be made only by the California Bottling Works, it was determined in Superior Judge Bowron's court yesterday when a contract of compromise was entered as a stipulated verdict in the California Bottling Works' suit against the Arrowhead Springs Bottling Company.

By terms of the agreement the defendant recognizes the right of the plaintiff company to the name, and agrees to pay $860 in settlement of the dispute.

It had been argued the name "California" is not subject to trademark rights, but Judge Bowron held otherwise.

BUNKO DEAL LAID TO WOMAN

Matron Accused of Giving Bad Checks for Homes; Property Worth $76,000 Involved

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Oct. 10.—Asserted to have purchased and furnished two San Marino homes valued at $76,000, while her bank account amounted to $5, Mrs. B. Elizabeth Howard, 30 years of age, who says she is the former wife of a millionaire Iowa banker, was arraigned this afternoon on a charge of passing spurious checks.

Her preliminary hearing was set for next Thursday morning in the local justice court. Unable to raise $5000 bail, she is being held in the City Jail.

MRS. B. ELIZABETH HOWARD

Chief of Police Kelley expressed the opinion that Mrs. Howard is the tool of bunko artists who have defrauded scores of persons recently by making small down payments to homes, reselling the homes, and disappearing after obtaining larger down payments.

Mrs. Howard was arrested at 11 p.m. last night by Detective Sergeants Leon Schuhl and Frank Clendenen at the Ramona Apartments, East Avenue 26, Los Angeles.

A week ago, she is reported to have purchased a $56,000 home located at 770 Chester avenue, San Marino, and to have given a $2000 check to bind the contract. This check was returned marked "account closed," police report. An investigation revealed that Mrs. Howard had opened an account with a $5 deposit, withdrawing this sum a few days after depositing it. The detectives' theory is that she bought the mansion with the idea of reselling it immediately and pocketing the first cash payment. W. H. Norwood, legal owner, declares he lost $5000 due to the fact that he missed a chance to sell to a legitimate buyer, names.

In December, 1929, Mrs. Howard, it is charged, used about the same tactics in purchasing a new $25,000 residence at 1260 Roanoke Road, San Marino, from G. A. Eddie. She is asserted to have given a check for $1000 as first payment, which was returned marked "insufficient funds."

The check was not presented for payment for several weeks and Mrs. Howard and her family, consisting of a man she says is her husband and two children, one a 14-month-old baby, occupied the home for six weeks before disappearing.

During this interval, police charge that Mrs. Howard purchased $12,000 worth of furnishings in Los Angeles, giving a bogus $1000 check as first payment. The furniture concern repossessed the furniture, but lost more than $3000 which was the cost of cutting carpeting, hanging curtains, and fitting curtain rods.

When arrested last night, Mrs. Howard told the detectives that she had thousands of dollars on deposit in a Waterloo (Iowa) bank, and that a former husband is a millionaire Iowa farmer and banker. She declined to reveal this man's name and refused to discuss her case.

Joseph Howard, to whom she says she is married at the present time, was with her when the arrest was made, but he was not held by the authorities.

He told police tonight that her former husband is Dr. Floyd Clyde Rache of Waterloo, a wealthy physician and owner of several hundred thousand dollars' worth of property in that city. He also said his wife's parents live in Masonville, Iowa, but refused to give their

SUIT FILED IN DOHENY STOCK DEAL

Violation of Securities Law in Pan American Shares Sale Charged

Suit for $55,000 was filed yesterday in United States District Court here by James C. Blythe of St. Louis, Mo., against Edward L. Doheny, the Richfield Oil Company, other companies and individuals on grounds that Doheny conspired with Richfield to defraud holders of 350,000 shares of Class B stock in the Pan American Western Petroleum Company, also made a defendant in the suit.

It is alleged in the complaint that Doheny owned the entire issue of Class A stock in Pan American Western—the class which carried the voting power—and that he sold the entire issue of 100,000 shares along with 50,000 shares of Class B stock to Richfield in July, 1928, in violation of the State Corporation Securities Act.

Blythe, in his complaint, filed by Attorney L. Frank Ottefy, declares that stock of Pan American Western, a Delaware corporation, organized in 1925, could not be issued and sold in California without a California permit and that no such permit ever was issued Pan American.

It is asserted that Doheny received $50 per share for the Class A and Class B stock and received a total of $7,500,000 for the transfer to Richfield. Blythe is suing for $80 a share for the 1100 that he holds.

Following the transfer, the complaint recites, Richfield offered holders of the outstanding Pan American Western Class B stock one share of Richfield for three shares of Pan American Western—of less value than Blythe paid for his Pan American Western, he alleges.

The Petroleum Securities Corporation, and members of the former board of directors of Pan American Western, D. W. Smith, J. C. Anderson, Fred Ritter and R. N. Sands, also are named defendants.

LITTLE HAILED

Several of the candidates for the State Senate and Assembly were introduced by Senator Merriam in his short address. He brought prolonged cheering from the gathering when he introduced Assemblyman Walter Little as the next Speaker of the Assembly. This forecast was concurred in in the address of Secretary of State Jordan, who spoke for the Republican sentiment of the northern section.

Mr. Mayer announced that headquarters for the southern division of the committee were formally opened yesterday afternoon at the Alexandria. Mayor Bolph and Senator Merriam visited the suite yesterday in company with Mr. Mayer and approved the selection, which is on the fourth floor.

BOLPH GIVES TALK

Assisting Mr. Silberberg as director, it was announced, will be J. L. Matthews of Covina, who will be headquarters director. Mrs. O. P. Clark and Mrs. Florence Collins Porter will head the women's division.

Mayor Bolph pledged party solidarity and announced his intention of visiting every county in the State prior to the election during his short talk of appreciation for the testimonial of harmony offered by the speakers and support pledged. He left immediately after the meeting by mail plane for San Francisco, accompanied by Jack Scanlon, his personal representative, who will be with the gubernatorial candidate on his three weeks' intensive campaign.

Boys Booked in Traffic Death

Three North Hollywood high school boys, Stanley Rose, 13 years of age, 10852 Houston street; Eugene Merwin, 14, 5630 Klump street, and William Scott, 14, 6115 Lankershim Boulevard, were booked last night by Capt. Canto, Valley Division police, on charges of manslaughter.

The charges resulted from the hit-and-run automobile killing of 4-year-old Barton Coslow in front of the child's home, 9950 Toluca Lake avenue, Van Nuys, last Tuesday evening.

Capt. Canto declared the three boys admitted they were in the car that ran the boy down with Rose as driver. The car was registered to Charles Off, 4801 Los Feliz Boulevard.

The insurance policies—in favor of the children as well as Mrs. Taylor—were arranged only a few days before the fatal crash.

Mrs. Taylor was prostrated yesterday at the tragic outcome of her marital difficulties. Her husband did not contest the divorce action.

McDonald, it also was learned last night, at the time of his death, resided in an apartment at 669 South Union avenue. His widow, Mrs. Martha McDonald, has been staying with their children, Robert, 12, and Janice, 10, at 107 West Dryden street, Glendale.

Funeral services will be conducted for Taylor today at 2 p.m. from the Schwimley Chapel, Van Nuys, with Rev. Harold Propple, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hollywood, officiating.

Preceding interment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, Masonic services will be conducted from the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, with a body of members of the Elks' Lodge also in attendance.

PAIR REWED AMID LEGAL BATTLE

Prisoners Then Returned to Their Cells

Principals In Unusual Ceremony

Rev. Karl H. M. Gardner remarrying Frank D. Fernekes and Ella Borris Fernekes.

UP THE stairs and down again! Thus for three hours yesterday traveled the marital fate of Frank D. and Ella B. Fernekes while judges, lawyers, Sheriff's office officials and jailers sought to unravel a tangle of legal technicalities.

In the end the two Fernekeses finally found themselves man and wife. Their attorney, S. S. Hahn, declared he had accomplished all that he had hoped for. Undersheriff Dewar and jailers in the County Jail audibly sighed with relief. And the married pair were back in their respective cells.

The couple were eager to have a local ceremony performed—although they declared they had been married once before in the East, but had lost the record of it—before Fernekes leaves for San Quentin next week. He is under sentence for forgery.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Karl H. M. Gardner in a courtroom across the hall from the marriage license bureau in the Courthouse with Hahn acting as best man and more than a score of newspaper representatives witnessing it.

After a "honeymoon" of about ten minutes during which the newly married pair sat on a bench in the courtroom munching sandwiches, they were returned to jail.

Judge Crawford held up his original order that Mr. and Mrs. Fernekes be permitted to leave the County Jail to be remarried, when he was informed that Superior Judge Wood was opposed to it.

A moment later Attorney Hahn appeared in Judge Crawford's court and announced his intention of citing various members of the Sheriff's staff for contempt for ignoring the court order. Hahn also stated that Fernekes was trying to provide his wife with insurance and also to give a name to an unborn child.

After hearing this statement Judge Crawford ruled that his original order still stood. The ceremony followed.

New Church to Be Dedicated at Santa Paula

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Santa Paula, will dedicate its new church edifice tomorrow with services at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The new edifice was begun last October and completed in April, but following the custom of the Christian Science denomination that no church of the denomination shall be dedicated until it is completely out of debt, the dedication of the new edifice has been deferred until this time.

Christian Scientists first held services in Santa Paula about nineteen years ago and the first edifice of the local church was finished and dedicated in April, 1917. However, the growth of the church has been so substantial that a larger building became necessary. As a result the artistic new edifice was erected.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Santa Paula, is a branch of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

PLANE FOR SUBMARINE SHAPES UP

Building of Experimental Craft Nears End but Lack of Funds to Delay Test

Construction of an experimental scouting seaplane for use from submarines is nearing completion at the plant of the Loening Aeronautical Corporation, the Navy Department announced yesterday, but added that tests for determining tactical efficiency of the little plane will be delayed by lack of funds.

The plane, to be delivered in December, is of unusually compact design, with a special-built Loening engine and folding wings, to permit its being stored within a tank to be built in the submarine designated for the flight experiments. On the outcome of the tests depends the Navy Department's plan to equip all larger submarines with scouting planes.

Regarding their use the department's announcement says:

"Use of observation planes of this character, the Bureau of Aeronautics believes, will increase the offensive strength of submarines, especially when operated in sheltered waters and near land. Being a seaplane, the craft would be capable of performing rapid scouting services and extend the range of submarines and then return to quiet waters for a landing beside the mother craft."

Oatmeal Hurling Story of Wife Gains Divorce

Hot oatmeal was flung in her face by her husband, it was asserted yesterday by Mrs. Catherine Hunter Prowett in obtaining a divorce from William Leithead Prowett, an accountant. The wife told Superior Judge Bowron that Prowett threw a bowl of the breakfast staple, without provocation, and that she suffered pain and humiliation as results.

Judge Bowron granted her a divorce, and approved an agreement whereby the husband is to pay $70 a month for the first year, during which time Mrs. Prowett has custody of their children, Robert, 10 years of age, and Janet, 8. Prowett is to have custody of the son the second year, when he is to pay $40 a month for the daughter's support.

ONION DIVORCE LEEKS OUT!

Lettuce Part, Says Vegetable Man's Wife, as She Beets It With Nose Turnip

She knew her husband's onions only when they were leftovers, Mrs. Elizabeth Weirich asserted yesterday in divorcing Charles Weirich, vegetable dealer. The wife accused Weirich of apportioning his leftover vegetables for the family table. Even then, the wife complained, her husband took an inventory to determine how many onions, potatoes and turnips she had on hand.

"He even would shake the milk can to see how much milk was left before getting more," Mrs. Weirich asserted. Superior Judge Bowron granted her a decree.

SERVICE CLUBS TO JOIN HANDS

Meeting Planned to Inspire Business Optimism

Lions Sponsor Gathering at Biltmore Friday

Broadcast of Hoover Speech Will Be Feature

As a step toward restoring business confidence and to inspire a brighter outlook in general, and at the suggestion of their international officers, the Lions' Club of Los Angeles will sponsor a meeting and luncheon in the Sala de Oro of the Biltmore at noon next Friday, in which all the service clubs of the city will join, together with the Chamber of Commerce. It is expected that at this meeting a broadcast of a talk by President Hoover along business lines will be received and also that two of the junior cabinet officials will be guests of honor and talk.

The idea for the special meeting originated in a recent meeting of the officers and directors of Lions' International, held in Chicago, where it was decided to send out a call to every Lions' club in the country. This was done through Secretary-General Melvin Jones.

Upon its receipt here, local Lions decided to call in all the other service clubs and ask them to participate. Hence the meetings will be a joint one of Lions with the Rotary, whose regular luncheon will give way to it, the Kiwanis, the Realty Board, the Optimists, the Advertising Club, the Alturians, the Co-operatives, the Round Table, the Civitans and the Chamber of Commerce. The Lions also extend a general invitation to all business men to meet with the associated clubs at the same time.

The meeting will be called to order by President Luther Mack of the Lions, who will then turn the gavel over to President Austin of the Chamber of Commerce, who will preside. Russell Ballard has been chosen to deliver the principal address, sounding the keynote of the affair. The meeting will be the opening one of several to be conducted during the ensuing few days, the week thereafter to be known as Business Confidence Week. It is expected Mayor Porter will take official cognizance of the matter on behalf of the city.

HAUGEN TO HELP BUILD SKI CHUTE

Champion Jumper Picked to Direct Construction at Big Pines County Camp

Lars Haugen, former national ski-jumping champion, has been selected by the Board of Supervisors to supervise the construction of the large ski way that is to be built by the county at its recreation camp at Big Pines in the San Gabriel-Sierre Madre Mountains. The way is to have a 250-foot jump, the largest in the United States, according to county officials. It is to be finished within two months at a cost of $3000.

Haugen, known as one of the outstanding ski-jump engineers in the country, was brought to California two years ago by the management of Lake Tahoe to build a ski way there, which, it is asserted is one of the finest in the world. He also built the ski jump at Ogden which is owned and operated by the Western America Winter Sports Association. He was national champion in ski jumoing in 1912, 1915, 1918, 1921, 1924, 1927 and 1928.

The engineer has just completed a survey of coqditions at Big Pines Camp for the construction of the master jump ordered by the Supervisors and declares that the site selected is one of the most ideal on the Pacific Coast.

Borough Board in East Side of City Requested

Indicating an intention to change the existing order of things in the eastern part of the city, the Ninth District Chamber of Commerce yesterday asked Mayor Porter to aid the organization in changing the designation of that portion of the city to East Los Angeles, while Louis H. Kepsel and others filed a petition with the City Council asking for the institution of a borough advisory board in that region.

Kepsel's petition asks the Council to call an election for the formation of the advisory board. The Council referred the petition to City Clerk Domingues to confer with City Attorney Werner on the proposition.

Los Angeles county is in the market for 50,000 sacks of the type used by the flood-control department for repairing breaks in dams and riprapping in times of an emergency. The Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the purchase of the bags and instructed the clerk to advertise for bids, which must be in by the 20th inst.

I am going to tell my readers today of a most delicious way to prepare "Ham Supreme." The recipe calls for Mandalay Coco-Hon-ee—made from fresh cocoanuts—in old Manila, and oh, but it's good!

HAM SUPREME

Prepare ham for baking. Pierce with two-dozen whole cloves. Spread evenly with Coco-Hon-ee and bake. Serve with following sauce: One cup Coco-Hon-ee, one-half cup hot water, juice and grated rind of one lemon. Add one teaspoon Soy sauce and juice from baked ham. Serve hot. Coco-Hon-ee may be thinned with a little hot water if desired.

If you want to have some of this excellent Ham Supreme on Sunday go to the Orange Tea Shop, 3846 Wilshire Blvd. that most charming spot at which to dine, where it is going to be served tomorrow.

Couldn't you arrange to take lessons now in candy-making from the Liberty Candy Company, who also teach you personally or by mail, chocolate dipping, cake ornamenting; how to prepare ice cream; drinks for soda fountains and glace fruits. Candy-making supplies may also be bought here. Their address is fourth floor Grant Bldg., 355 South Broadway (TUcker 4156.)

To prevent berries, etc., from sinking to bottom of cake, sift all dry ingredients together (flour, sugar, etc.,) and rub the butter in them instead of creaming as usual; next add the milk, then stir berries in lightly and they will not sink.

To make muffins and gems lighter grease the pans and heat them in the oven for a few moments until they are piping hot before putting in the batter.

To freshen stale cake dip it for a moment in cold sweet milk and then rebake it in a moderate oven. Placing a freshly cut piece of apple in the cake tin will help keep cake moist and fresh.

Layer cake: Cream together three-fourths cupful of butter and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and add the beaten yolks of three eggs, add three-fourths cupful of milk alternately with two cupfuls of flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sifted together. Fold in the beaten egg whites, flavor with three-fourths teaspoonful of vanilla and bake in two layers or in a loaf in a moderate oven. If desired, the yolks and whites of the eggs may be beaten together and added with the milk.

Here is welcome news for the housewife who has a small family. For your convenience Guasti Concentrated Grape Juice is now obtainable in ten-ounce cans, an ideal size for many of my readers. There are hot cake mornings, so take down the recipe I am giving you for hot cakes, because they are mighty good, and because they require Guasti White Concentrated Grape Juice, which makes them the best ever.

HOT CAKES

Two cupfuls flour, 1 egg, 3½ tsp. baking powder, 2 tbsp. oil, 1½ cupfuls milk, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. Guasti White Concentrated Grape Juice.

Mix dry ingredients, add beaten egg and milk. Beat well. Add oil and grape juice. Combine well. Drop by spoonful on hot griddle.

Cocoanut drop cookies: One-third cupful of fat, one and one-half cupfuls of molasses, one-fourth cupful of sour milk, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of shredded cocoanut. Mix together fat, molasses, sour milk and egg yolk. Sift dry ingredients together and add them to the liquids; then add the cocoanut and drop by tablespoonfuls in greased pans and bake in a moderate oven.

To stone raisins pour boiling water over them and let them stand five or ten minutes, then drain and the seeds can be easily pinched out by rubbing each raisin between the thumb and finger; it also improves them for cakes or puddings. Keep the fingers moistened with cold water and the seeds will not cling to them. Another quick and easy way to stone raisins is to place them on a tin plate and heat them thoroughly in a hot oven, which causes them to split easily.

Close-up camera shots of critical moments in the world series baseball games are shown in the current number of The Times-Universal News Reel shown in leading Southern California theaters.

In another glimpse of the camera in its quest for the most interesting news events of the world, is shown President Hoover opening the American Legion convention at Boston. The capture of a band of counterfeiters at Toledo, the grounding of the Japanese steamer City of Osaka off Scotland, and American artillerymen engaged in antiaircraft gun firing are other "spot news" features.

League Advisory Group Selected

Advices from New York City yesterday announced the election of Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, as a member of the national advisory council of the League of Nations Association, of which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is chairman.

Others in this State elected to the council include also Miss Evaline Dowling, chairman of the world friendship committee of Los Angeles city schools; Raphael Herman, philanthropist; Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, president of Mills College; G. W. Marston of San Diego; Mrs. John C. Mcfarland of South Pasadena; Mrs. Seward A. Simons of Los Angeles; Dr. James A. Blaisdell, president of Claremont Colleges; Mrs. Frederick C. Turner, president of the Oakland Forum, and Mrs. J. C. Urquhart of Los Angeles, former president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

CARDS BRING DIVORCE

Mrs. Olive Haff couldn't learn to play cards to suit her husband in twenty-eight years of married life and his taunts concerning the situation were cruel, Mrs. Haff asserts in her divorce complaint against J. M. Haff.

ALIMONY ORDER HIT IN PETITION

Roy Fisher Says Court Had No Authority After Date for Final Decree

Ordered to make weekly payments to his divorced wife more than a year after he was granted an interlocutory decree, Roy Fisher yesterday filed petitions for writ of mandate and prohibition against the Superior Court, questioning the Superior judge's authority to act.

Fisher set forth that he was granted an interlocutory decree on August 1, 1929, and that he appeared on August 2, last, for his final decree, only to be refused. His wife on August 1, last, had instituted an action, charging that the divorce decree had been obtained without her knowledge and through fraud.

Superior Judge Westover on August 22 ordered Fisher to pay $7.50 a week for his wife's support and to pay $75 to apply on account of attorney's fees and court costs in the action started by Mrs. Fisher.

Fisher declared the interlocutory decree did not provide that his wife was to receive anything for her support, and that the relationship between them was dissolved in so far as the husband was required to furnish support for his wife.

SKATER'S FALL HELD TO BE OWN LIABILITY

A fall on roller skates is a person's own risk, it was indicated yesterday when Superior Judge Bowron decided for the defendant in Mildred Enz's suit against the Lincoln Park Roller Skating Rink for $10,000 damages. The 16-year-old plaintiff asserted that failure of a rink attendant to fasten her skates properly, leaving one strap loose, caused her to fall and bruise herself. The defendant contended that the girl realized that a fall was a possibility attending roller skating, and that her own lack of skill caused her fall.

Air Amateurs Get Ready for Crucial Tests

Following a week's postponement of the first of three meets that will decide the amateur air pilot of the West, twenty-two flyers today will groom their planes for two speed races and a precision-landing contest scheduled tomorrow afternoon at Los Angeles Metropolitan Airport, Van Nuys.

The flyers were to have competed last Sunday, but a high wind kept them on the ground. Tomorrow's events, to start at 2 p.m., will be sanctioned by the National Aeronautic Association and will be followed by two similar meets—the high-point man at the end of the three contests to receive the amateur flying crown.

Professional pilots will participate in balloon-bursting contests and Al Wilson will fly his obsolete 1910 Curtiss pusher biplane.

to greater business between the Coast and the Middle West.

Announcement of plans by eastern markets to penalize short sellers who resort to vicious tactics has been misunderstood in some quarters, in his opinion.

"The short seller always is welcome in the market," he said. "He is the life if the market, whether an amateur or professional. But when he resorts to untruths, to spreading unfounded rumors to aid his operations, then he is going to be penalized."

Wood left last night for Chicago. He was accompanied to Los Angeles by Allen Clement, a business associate, who will remain here for some time.

RANGERS HIKE TODAY

The Woodcraft Rangers, an outdoor organization for boys, will hike today to Griffith Park Boy's Camp. Roubert Gould and Richard Abernethy will be in charge of the group, which will remain at the camp for the week-end. A division of younger members of the Rangers will make an inspection tour of an airplane plant as guests of the Western Air Express of Alhambra.

Today's Bible Text

Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear.—Heb. xi:3.

CLOUD CLUB

The Cloud Club of New York City has parked its quarters on the sixty-sixth, sixty-seventh and sixty-eighth floors of the new Chrysler Building. These high-minded birds ought to elevate the general tone of Gotham.

FARM RELIEF

The co-operative farmers in Pennsylvania are expanding. Last year they did a business of $55,000,000, which is an increase of more than 12 per cent over the transactions of the previous year. They are providing their own relief in their own way and making quite a fist of it.

EASILY RECOGNIZED

No wonder the administration could recognize the new government in Argentina so promptly. The American bankers are arranging to handle $50,000,000 in one-year notes issued by the latest regime in Argentina. If we can do that much for them we must accord them the boon of recognition.

RUSSIAN RUBBER

Russia has developed two plants that have a large rubber content and there are said to be upwards of 200,000,000 of these plants in sight. The plants are called hondrilla and tau-sagyz and the soviet leaders are already building a factory for the production of their own rubber. Within a year they say they will have eight or ten of them. But soviet prophecies so often fall by the way.

A MIGHTY TOOL

There ought to be a place in the hall of fame for Bobby Jones's putter. That implement has the historic value of Roland's horn, King Arthur's sword or other tools of renown. When Bobby can get so he regularly sinks thirty-foot putts as a part of the day's going he has a phenomenal stick in his fins. It carried him into the four greatest triumphs of the golfing world in a single season. The least he can do when he gets through is to leave it to the Smithsonian Institution.

IN GLASS HOUSES

And now a builder proposes to erect four apartment-houses in New York of inverted eighteen-story pyramids of glass, copper and concrete with steel furnishings. Walls in their present form are to be banished and vast windows will be substituted. The towers will be larger at the top than at the bottom and will stand on pedestals of reinforced concrete. A core of concrete will run through the center of the structure. The floors will be copper. The various parts are to be constructed in a factory and transported to the building site and assembled without noisy and lengthy construction work. Translucent glass will be used in many parts so the inhabitants will not have to be gold fish.

NAVAL ECONOMY

The United States will begin to draw dividends from the London Conference immediately, according to announcements in Washington of curtailment orders which will be carried into effect by Admiral Pratt. The saving this year will amount to only $3,440,000, but more than twice that next year. A total of $30,000,000 is being saved by these and other Navy economies.

Admiral Pratt will have all the battleships on this coast and all the cruisers in the Atlantic. The number of destroyer squadrons will be cut from six to four, and submarine tonnage will be reduced to below 52,700, as the treaty requires. The battleship Wyoming is to be retired to the training department, also in accordance with treaty stipulations.

The economy program entails no loss in efficiency, in the view of the admiral, who says the changes make for better handling and arrangement. The reorganization is in fact due to Admiral Pratt's plans independent of naval limitations, at least in part, and would have taken place, anyway, on his accession to command. But national taxpayers will be gratified at the saving no matter what its cause, provided the safety of the nation is not endangered. Safety is a relative term in any consideration and has many factors, of which the physical equipment of the fleet is only one.

COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA

Revelations before the Congressional committee headed by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the extent of Communist propaganda in California and in the United States generally are of a sort to stir American thought very deeply. It appears that Communist efforts have been redoubled during the past year, in an effort to seize upon the natural discontent arising from a business depression and bend it to the ends of the Third Internationale of Moscow, and that large sums are being lavished upon the attempt to stir up a Communist revolution here.

From this propaganda, so far as it reaches the reasoning adult population of the United States, there is nothing to fear. The news from Russia is a sufficient antidote; no informed person wants to repeat the Russian experiment here. The danger is to those who read nothing else, and to school children. And witnesses before the Fish committee have made it plain that special attention is paid to juvenile propaganda and that most of the money and the effort is expended in this direction. From a Communist viewpoint this is doubtless wise, if anything connected with spreading insanity can be called wise. From an American viewpoint it merits very grave attention.

The attempts to warp and poison the youth of this country will not, of course, succeed on any large scale, and the principal danger is not to the stability of American institutions, but to the well-being of the children who may become infected in their formative years with subversive ideas which will affect their whole lifetimes. This is particularly true of youngsters who are unable to weigh and discriminate, who cannot pick out false from true, who are easily influenced by emotional appeal, who reason with their hearts rather than with their heads. The soviet agents have many fine-sounding phrases, well calculated to strike root in tender intellects. Minds toughened by years of living in an imperfect world are proof against the effects of mere words to a great degree; they have learned to look behind and around for the facts which the words conceal, and to know that it is facts alone which count. It is difficult with children.

What the remedy for this situation is it is the business of the Fish committee to find out. Better enforcement of immigration and deportation laws, registration of aliens, a national criminal syndicalism law, were some of the suggestions made, and all have their merits. The witnesses were virtually unanimous in the assertion that Federal assistance in rooting out the propagandists is a necessity, and that it is quite largely a Federal problem.

One interesting phase of the situation is the source of propagandist finance. Some of it comes, perhaps, from American parlor-pinks, but in all probability the bulk of it comes from Russia and is wrung from the sweating brows of peasants and workmen, exploited by their soviet masters like a slave population.

Nearly all recent observers of actual conditions in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (so-called, though the regime is actually a czaristic despotism) agree that never has the condition of the common people of that country been so miserable as at present. Like Chinese coolies, they are down to a bare subsistence level, all their production except enough to keep soul and body together being seized by the dictatorship at the point of the bayonet. The dumping of this product abroad provides the sinews of war, in all probability.

No great astonishment need be voiced at the skillfulness of the propaganda organization. It should be borne in mind that these Russian revolutionists have been trained, and have trained themselves, in agitation for a couple of generations. They have become agitation specialists; it has been their only work, and like all specialists they do it with facility. In czarist Russia, they learned to propagandize under difficulties compared with which those they meet in the United States are as nothing.

It does not follow that czaristic methods are necessary to counteract their efforts. Such methods failed in Russia itself. But the children of the United States need better protection than they are getting against what is unquestionably a genuine menace, and it will require the utmost vigilance to furnish it. One plainly necessary step is to deport the agitators and to close down the gates by which they enter.

DESTROYING THE BILLBOARDS

While the people of other States are talking about "those disgraceful billboards" and asking why they are permitted to hide beautiful scenes along the highways, Pennsylvania is quietly carrying out a program of elimination which will in time result in the restoration of the landscape as nature made it. Already more than 32,000 big highway signs have been removed and others soon will be taken down and most of them destroyed.

In several other Eastern States campaigns against the billboard evil are expected to result in legislation that will either limit the number of big roadway signs or remove them altogether. In the West, Oregon is the only State that has placed sufficient restrictions upon billboards to make them inconspicuous on roads much frequented by tourists. California visitors to Oregon are remarking this fact and wondering why similar action is not taken by our State authorities. Viscount Cowdray, the British newspaper publisher, after a long tour in Northern and Southern California, complained that he could "see nothing but big signs all along the road." He said that if these signs were removed the tourist could enjoy the lovely views, but that they "defaced the countryside."

If a vote of our motorists were taken on the subject there is little doubt that it would be against the maintenance of these signs, large or small, by a large majority. California should follow the lead of Pennsylvania and tear down its disfiguring billboards.

UPLIFTING

Sir Thomas Lipton now says he will build another Shamrock and make another try for the cup. The cup that Will Rogers sponsored must have had something in it to raise his spirits. Perhaps it was tea.

LEE SIDE O' L.A.
By Lee Shippey

MOST of the oil-field workers and oil company office workers in Southern California have traveled in strange lands and met with stirring experiences, for the oil game is the game of adventure. You hear them talk casually of Mexico or Venezuela or the Argentine, of India, China or Siberia. Yet even among oil men, Hugh Matier of Manhattan Beach, who is with the Union Oil Company, is an outstanding adventurer. He has pearled in the South Seas, been a soldier of fortune in China at the time when the empire was overthrown and an explorer in Egypt, has served in the French army in Algiers and been badly wounded while serving with the Canadians during the World War. It was after all that that he entered the oil game, in hope of finding a little excitement.

But he insisted that he didn't want anything said of himself, when he lunched with us at the little table d'hote the other day, and so we won't say anything about him. He told a story, though, which will interest every oil man who sees it. And may draw fire from some of them.

It Pays to Know Everything

You remember when the great Mosul oil field got into the headlines, and some people predicted trouble between England and this country because of it? Most of us were surprised to know that there were great oil fields in that part of the world. Most of us had never heard that the Persians, who originally were fire worshipers, and still are to some extent, for centuries have had their "sacred wells," at which pillars of fire which never die leap out of the ground. But an Irish-Englishman named Fred D'Arcy knew it and surmised that what Persian tradition had sanctified as heaven-sent fire must be the gas escaping from some oil well.

A $10,000 Joke

D'Arcy had a string of racing horses in England, some of which sometimes won. Selling platers. So, naturally, he had to know something about everything. Oil men having a strong leaning toward sports, he had learned a little of the oil game.

In fact, it seemed to him one day that he knew more about everything else than about making a living out of race horses. He was broke. He turned to the newspaper, always a source of inspiration to the man with wits, and saw in it an obscure item telling how all the bills of the Shah of Persia were settled by a certain banking firm.

"Let's draw on His Majesty the Shah for £2000," suggested D'Arcy's companion, as they sipped their 'arf and 'arf.

They played with the idea, and a few more glasses of beer and stout, until finally D'Arcy just for the prank of it, sent a sight draft on the Shah's bankers.

They forgot the incident. But one day D'Arcy's banker notified him that his draft had been honored.

When Good Sports Get Together

The Shah then was in Paris. Shahs of Persia used to spend a good deal of their time in Paris, which is one reason why there aren't any more shahs. D'Arcy trotted over to Paris with the money and gave it back to His Majesty. The Shah was so dumbfounded—no one had ever given back any money before—that he asked D'Arcy to stick around. They got quite chummy. "I've got a nice country over there, even if I do give it a good deal of absent treatment," said the Shah. "Couldn't I make you some little present—a harem or a viziership or something? Or maybe a little of both—a title and a dozen or so hand-picked houris?"

"No, thanks," said D'Arcy. "Couldn't stand the upkeep. Race horses are bad enough. But, say, Shahey, old top, there's one thing in your country I'd like. And nobody's using it. It's the oil rights."

"My, surely," agreed the Shah. "Just so you don't damage or menace our sacred wells, you may have the oil rights in a minute. Of course, if you should put out one of the sacred wells we'd have to build a nice big bonfire with you as the centerpiece. With that proviso I'll issue a royal decree in the morning."

And that, says Matier, was the start of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, which started in Persia proper and spread over into Mosul.

Hard Winter Looms For Little Wild Brothers

The Santa Ana Register is making an appeal for food contributions for the squirrels, deer and other animals in the Southland mountains. Santa Ana visitors to Forest Home observed an apparently frenzied search on the part of gray squirrels for the acorns they generally store at this season and on investigation noticed that acorns and scones were very scarce there. Last winter's unusually heavy snows and late frosts are said to have ruined the seed buds of the pine trees and other trees, and storable food for winter is hard to find all through the San Bernardino Mountains, it is said. Through the paper's efforts, many contributions of walnuts and peanuts have been sent to D. A. Carman, caretaker at Forest Home, for distribution.

A Redlands rancher has sent a load of alfalfa for the deer. "But these gifts are but a drop in the bucket," writes our informant, who asks us to give publicity to this effort. "The conditions at Forest Home are duplicated throughout the Southland mountains."

A MODESTY RECORD

William Randolph Hearst, carrying his newspaper readers on a new all-time endurance record, yesterday eclipsed a mark of twenty-four years' standing when his own name appeared forty-one times on one page in his local morning paper, the Examiner. In 1906, when Hearst was running for Governor of New York and getting ready to run for President, he achieved the then high mark of mentioning himself by name thirty-seven times on one page in the same paper. In yesterday's Examiner his name appears in the news columns sixty times in all. Mr. Hearst has some twenty-three newspapers in each of which substantially the same matter appeared. The aggregate amount of self-inflicted publicity in his own papers on a single day thus becomes a mere matter of arithmetic.

In the main news section of yesterday's Examiner, devoted to the outstanding news of the world for the day, sixty and a half columns are devoted to more or less straight news matter, of which nineteen and nine-tenths columns are devoted to the Hearst reception in Chicago. Mr. Hearst thus appears to be estimated by himself as only one-third as important as the world as a whole. This is true modesty, though something more nearly approaching his estimate of the genuine proportion is attained on the first page where, of 101 inches of news fifty inches are devoted to Mr. Hearst's favorite subject, himself.

In these nineteen and nine-tenths columns Mr. Hearst is compared favorably to Washington, Lincoln, Cleveland and Roosevelt, and proclaimed to be the "greatest living American." Why drag in so limiting a word as "living"? Such descriptive phrases as "distinguished guest," "fearless publisher" and "intense American" are the commonplaces of the stirring account. The latter is reminiscent of Mr. Hearst's famous telegrams to all his papers during the war, directing them to print the American flag as often as possible because it would be "good for circulation." The patriotic fervor he displayed on that occasion well merits the adjective "intense."

Of six telephotographs of the Chicago celebration, sent by wire to the Examiner and reproduced in its pages, only three are large ones of Mr. Hearst himself and in one of these "Big Bill" Thompson, Chicago's equally fearless Mayor, appears almost as prominently as Mr. Hearst. The scene is a touching one as these two great men stand with bared heads, reverently listening to the strains of the national anthem. Mr. Hearst is seen only a little in the foreground and the exigencies of space required the cutting off of some of Mayor Thompson's left arm. The Mayor would doubtless be willing to sacrifice his right leg for that much publicity and cannot be expected to complain, however.

"In an interview shortly after his arrival here for the Chicago Day celebration," says a paragraph of one of the eight date-line stories about Mr. Hearst which appear in the paper, "in which was combined a tribute to himself in the great public demonstration, Mr. Hearst said:" etc. From this it is not entirely clear whether the tribute to himself was contained in the interview or in the celebration, but the discriminating reader will have no difficulty in deciding.

In the meantime the campaign to sell common stock in the Hearst newspapers is still on.

FALLEN ON EVIL DAYS
By James J. Montague

When Captain Kidd did what he did
Upon the raging main,
In the pursuit of swag and loot
Illegal gold to gain,
He hid by stealth his store of wealth,
In places underground,
And when he died was satisfied
That it had not been found.
No racketeers, you may depend
Came 'round to Kidd to get their end.

When Jesse James, whose evil aims
Are little known today,
Robbed banks and trains, his golden gains
Were safely stowed away.
And when in need of chicken feed
To pay for meals and board,
Or wads of kale to pledge for bail
He merely tapped his hoard.
He lost no sleep because of fears
Of bit-demanding racketeers.

The crook today has little say
About his garnered store.
The stuff he steals buys drinks and meals
For twenty men or more.
To him success means mere distress,
He always must divide
With gangs of yeggs who drain the dregs,
And won't be satisfied.
And, therefore, it is plain to see
Crime is not what it used to be.

IN THE SMALL CLAIMS COURT
BY BAILEY MILLARD

It's free and easy in the small claims court. The courtroom is in the Hall of Justice annex. You are your own lawyer. Plaintiff and defendant stand side by side. If they happen to be women they are likely to indulge in satirical remarks or to introduce Bardell-versus-Pickwick testimony. At times it's all the good-natured judge can do to prevent them from going into long-winded and acrimonious debates and recriminations.

I said "free and easy," but much of the decorum of higher courts is maintained. You are expected to stand up when the judge enters and takes the bench and the bailiff announces the opening of the session. A whole roomful of litigants and witnesses is sworn at one fell swoop by the clerk and proceedings begin as promptly as the numbers of a radio program.

Having a claim of $20 against a man who had dealt too long in promises and bad checks, I sat in the court for two hours the other day waiting for my case to be called. All kinds of claims by all kinds of people were quickly and cleverly disposed of by the judge, who managed to keep plaintiffs and defendants from out-and-out scrapping in court, though some of them evidently thought that was what they had come for.

Automobile damage cases were most frequent. On a table in front of the judge's bench is a diagram of a street intersection and on it are two toy cars, one blue, the other red.

"Take the blue car," ordered the judge of the plaintiff in the first auto case—"that's your machine. Now illustrate to the court where you were, and then take the red car, the defendant's, and show where he was just before and during the crash."

The plaintiff moved and placed the cars.

"That ain't where my car was at all, judge," quickly objected the defendant. And most of the other defendants in similar cases made the same sort of plea. "It wasn't my fault. He—" The judge would hold up a silencing hand.

These denials of responsibility for mishaps reminded me of the statement of the superintendent of a big repair shop who once said to me: "Of all the hundreds of cases of cars brought in here to be fixed up after accidents I never have heard of one in which the crush wasn't the other fellow's fault."

Human nature. But the poor judge—how weary he must get of that same old outworn plea! However, he cornered that first defendant motorist.

"If your car was where you say it was and the plaintiff's car was over there close to the curb," said his honor, pointing with his stick, "why, with all the room in the world in which to dodge him, did you run into him?"

The defendant didn't answer, so judgment went against him.

Cases in which clothing was spoiled in cleaning or lost or retained by the cleaner dotted the calendar. In one case the plaintiff and defendant, both comely young women, went to war over a $40 coat claimed by the owner to have been damaged by the cleaner. A mass of irrelevancies and immaterialities was swiftly passed back and forth like a football between the litigants despite the judge's warning and the bailiff's intercessions.

"One at a time, ladies," insisted his honor. "Please come to the point. Where is the coat?"

"She's got it," replied the fair plaintiff.

"I tried to give it back to her, but she wouldn't accept it," explained the equally fair defendant.

"Well, bring it into court tomorrow morning," ordered the judge, waving them out. "Smith vs. Johnson!"

The Smith-Johnson case brought up another set of lady litigants. It was a matter of a $50 balance on some account or other.

"Why didn't you pay her?" asked the judge of the defendant.

"I would only she owes me $50."

"That doesn't interest this court," remarked his honor. "That's an outside matter."

It was evolved after a few disjointed and ambiguous statements that the plaintiff had been sued by the defendant not long before and had obtained judgment against her for $50, as yet unpaid.

"All right," said the judge to the defendant. "I'll enter judgment against you, and then it will be fifty-fifty. Next case!"

Could a Solomon have done better?

A landlady complained that a tenant had lighted a water heater and left it burning so long that the pipes were ruined. The defendant evidently thought that such a matter came under the heading of wear and tear. Those who may be guilty of like delinquency may be interested to know that in the judgment of the court, while the wear may be on the pipes, the tear is in the tenant's pocket, as he is expected to make good the result of his neglect.

Case after case, all quickly and neatly decided. A few protests, but quiet ones. Now and then a defendant didn't appear. Short shrift. Judgment entered for full amount of claim and costs.

Quite a cinema picture, with plenty of "extras" and with human nature bulging out of every corner of each sordid little scene.

A Shifting Boundary Line

As a boundary line between Mexico and the United States, the Rio Grande has never been a success. It has a habit of shifting its location so completely that persons living near it could not determine sometimes whether they were residents of one country or the other. The situation led to many complications. The boundary commission is now considering a proposition to mark the line of the river bed and to take steps to make the stream stick to its path.

Daylight Saving

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I wish to thank you in behalf of the Agricultural Legislative Committee and the agricultural people of the State generally for your very fine presentation of the evil effects of daylight saving, covering practically an entire front page in the Sunday morning issue of The Times for September 28.

You have set forth the story most effectively and I believe it should do much to stop this mad idea that by changing the clock people can fool themselves into having something they really cannot possess.

R. H. TAYLOR,
Executive Secretary, Agricultural Legislative Committee of California.

That Deal in Silver

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the various explanations for the present world-wide depression I have not noticed the following, viz.:

You will recall that during the war British purchased of Uncle Sam 400,000,000 ounces of silver at $1 an ounce, to aid monetary conditions in India. You also will recall that a few years ago Britain forced India to the gold standard and threw on the market its vast store of silver at whatever price it would bring, since which time the price of silver has gradually sagged to its present low level of 25 cents an ounce. As a consequence the people of Asia found themselves paid in depreciated silver. A Chinaman with a piece of silver worth only 35 cents is not as good a customer as one with a piece of silver worth 100 cents. The same thing occurred in areas comprising about one-half of the population of the earth. Having less than half of their former purchasing power they could not buy. Having no foreign customers many of our industries had to curtail, as they had to in England and Germany, hence unemployment and "hard times."

The English bankers could not be blamed for trying to make the exchange value of gold as high as possible, as Britain produces two-thirds of the world's gold output, and she produces little silver, but they did not anticipate the kick-back that has put her industrial system in despair.

Of course, our wise branch bankers, sat supinely by. Their only concern seems to have been to suck every dollar to New York so they can loan the financial bucaneers of Wall street, sailing under the titles, "brokers" and "private bankers," the necessary money to clean up on our sucker population.

A. L. BEARDSLEY.

Widespread Sympathy

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] On behalf of Mr. R. K. Lowe and Mrs. Lowe, who is still in quarantine, I wish to sincerely thank The Times and your reporters who so kindly came to their help when their three children were stricken with the strange malady which cost their lives. That some of the newspapers do care is very evident.

From churches, motion-picture studios and individuals help and kindly words of sympathy have come. They reach from Catalina to Portland, Or. I might mention one especially. Though the financial help was small the sympathy was much appreciated. It was signed "A Mexican Mother." To every one I would say, with all my heart, thank you and God bless you. You have put new hope in the hearts of these people.

H. C. TOZIER,
Father of Mrs. Lowe.

Wants More Like It

GLENDALE, Oct. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I read a very interesting article on page 4 in today's Times, entitled, "What I Believe," by Albert Einstein. A reprint from the Forum Magazine, as mentioned.

I am a reader of your valuable paper and would like to suggest that such articles by the best thinkers and scientists of the world be continued.

There is much fine material in magazines and periodicals that I am sure would prove of interest and help to the great army of newspaper readers.

Give us more such articles.

Flashlight Without Danger

There has been recently developed a new flashlight for photographic use which is operated without noise, odor or smoke. The lamp consists of a clear bulb of standard design. The flashlight filament is coated with a special preparation; then a quantity of very thin aluminum foil in crumpled sheet form is placed within the bulb. Finally the bulb is filled with pure oxygen. When the circuit is closed the filament becomes lighted, which in turn lights the foil. The lamp operates on any 115-volt alternating-current circuit, or with dry, storage, or flashlight batteries. A new lamp is needed for each flash made. It will make possible the taking of flashlight photographs in places heretofore practically impossible to "shoot."

BUNKO CASE HAS ECHOES OF ROMANCE

Elderly Rancher Causes Arrest of Fiancee He Met at Pershing Square

Over in Pershing Square Martin Holland, wealthy 60-year-old rancher of Regina, Sask., fell in love with Miss Margaret Cramer, 30.

That was last February, according to the report of Detective Lieutenants Reed and Harding of the police bunko squad.

Yesterday Miss Cramer, as Mrs. Ruth Sprinkle, which the detectives say is her real name, was arrested in Anaheim on a charge of obtaining $14,449.50 from Holland through a bunko scheme. The detectives say the woman accepted Holland's proposal of marriage and then borrowed the above sum to reclaim $50,000 worth of jewels which she told him she had pawned.

The day after the asserted transfer of money was made the woman disappeared, the detectives say. Holland complained and the detectives obtained a warrant for Mrs. Sprinkle's arrest. She was not located until yesterday when she appeared to visit relatives in Anaheim, according to the detectives. Bail on the warrant is set at $10,000.

Travel to Utah National Parks Upsets Marks

With a combined total of 91,279 visitors registered from every State in the Union, Canada, Mexico, and twenty foreign countries, all records for travel to Bryce and Zion national parks were broken during the season just passed, according to information received here today by R. B. Robertson, assistant traffic manager of the Union Pacific System, from E. T. Scoyen, park superintendent.

The total as divided between the two Southern Utah national parks gave 55,297 visitors to Zion, as compared to 23,353 in 1929, and 35,982 to Bryce Canyon for 1930, against 21,997 for last year.

California had the greatest number of visitors to the parks with the exception of Utah. There were 14,672.

High School Lads to Face Car Charges

Charged with the theft of an automobile, George Ortiz, 17 years of age, 1333 North Elm street, Glendale, was in custody last night while police sought his companion, said to be Ray De Vore, 16, to book him on the same charge.

After stealing the machine from in front of the Herbert Hoover High School, Glendale, where both are students, Hollywood officers assert, the youths drove to Hollywood and collided with a car registered to Gertrude Loftus, 432 West Thirty-third street. They then backed away and a few minutes later crashed into another machine belonging to James Ruby, 5741 Santa Monica Boulevard.

Following the second collision, Ortiz and De Vore, it is asserted, abandoned their car and took to flight. Citizens captured Ortiz and held him for police, but the other youth escaped.

COURT REJECTS DON JUAN'S TALE

Mrs. Genevieve Hutton Wins Decree and Child

Spaniard's Recital of Amour Discredited by Judge

Woman Declared Innocent of Offenses Charged

Testimony of a man who "kissed and told" was rejected by Superior Judge Sproul in the divorce trial of Mrs. Genevieve Romaine Hutton against Harold Hutton, wealthy oil chemist, yesterday, when the court awarded Mrs. Hutton her divorce, custody of her child and $75 a month alimony, after a witness, Lawrence Ruiz, had testified to improper conduct with Mrs. Hutton.

Judge Sproul not only awarded Mrs. Hutton her 4-year-old daughter, Barbara, but specifically found that the plaintiff was not guilty of the offense charged in the defendant's cross-complaint and awarded her the divorce on her charges of cruelty.

WITNESS DENOUNCED

"This court has tried 3000 or 4000 divorce cases," said Judge Sproul, "and only one of them was comparable to this one. In that case, the witness who told of his misconduct with the woman was arrested as he left the courtroom. I regret that such action can not be taken in this case.

"This witness Ruiz is not worthy of belief despite the feeble corroboration of his testimony. Grant that the plaintiff may have written him a letter—many a married woman has let her foot slip and later turned out to be the better mother for her experience."

Ruiz—referred by some witnesses as "the Spaniard in Mrs. Hutton's life," boasted of his amorous adventures with Mrs. Hutton, specifying places and dates. Mrs. Hutton, in rebuttal, denied improper conduct with the witness, but admitted she was "fond of" him. Over the objections of Mrs. Hutton's attorney, John J. Craig, a letter purported to be from Mrs. Hutton to Ruiz, and by him surrendered to Hutton, was introduced into the testimony.

Since his acquaintance with Mrs. Hutton Ruiz has married.

LOVE CONFESSED

O. Martinson, former police chief of Minneapolis, Minn., a friend of the couple, told how Mrs. Hutton had come to him after the separation and confessed she had been in love with a Spaniard. Martinson said he thought the name "sounded like Ruiz."

Acrimonious debates in the hallway outside the courtroom were silenced by Bailiff Bishop, who was kept busy separating friends of the Huttons who seemed on the verge of violence.

Policeman Suspended for Fight

Police Sergeant O. N. Lawrason was suspended by Chief Steckel yesterday as the aftermath of his encounter at Fifth and Spring streets last Monday with Mearl Allen, former investigator for Mayor Porter, during which it is charged he dealt Allen a blow on the nose. The suspension is to remain in effect pending a hearing before the police trial board, the date to be fixed following investigation of the charges.

Lawrason, according to Chief Steckel, admitted punching Allen and promised it would not happen again. He stated he struck the blow to satisfy a personal grievance and not, as charged by Allen, because of the latter's failure to assist him in gaining the appointment as Chief of Police. The suspended officer has been a member of the department eighteen years.

Divorce Plans Displease Wife

Going fifty-fifty on divorce expenses was a proposal of her husband's which irked Mrs. Cora B. McElroy, she admitted yesterday in asking Superior Judge Haslett to sever her union with D. D. McElroy. She offered in evidence a letter which she said was from her husband, in which appeared the following:

"I am sure you will not hesitate to spend $30 to help pay the cost. Guess you would be willing to pay $30,000."

The McElroys married in 1921 and the wife asserted her husband deserted her in March, 1929. Judge Haslett granted her a divorce.

SPENCER TRACY TURNS FARCEUR

Actor to Team With Warren Hymer in New Film

Jack Oakie Quits Old-Type Role for Hick Part

Erwin Gelsey Promoted to Producer Position

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Comedian teams seem to be the order of the day, and now it is Fox who is teaming two fun-makers to appear in a series of feature-length comedies.

One of these comedians deserves a little explanation, however, inasmuch as, up to this moment, he has been thought of by the public as a player of heavy dramatic roles. He is Spencer Tracy, hero of "The Last Mile." Fox then signed him for the lead in "Up the River," Maureen Watson's story of prison. The play was to have been a drama, but it is related that the director, Ford, went to see "The Big House," and decided that was about the last word in prison stories. So he and the brilliant Miss Watson, the latter the author, of the satirical "Chicago," turned "Up the River" into a comedy.

That's when it was discovered that Spencer Tracy likewise was an excellent comedian.

The other member of the new comedy team is almost equally interesting. He is Warren Hymer, son of John D. Hymer, who collaborated on "East is West" and authored "Alias the Deacon." Young Hymer is a graduate of Yale. He has been appearing on the New York stage.

The first comedy the pair will make will be a baseball story; but before this can be done, Tracy is going east to fulfill his engagement in a road tour of "The Last Mile."

JACK OAKIE'S NEXT IS "ON THE SPOT"

Jack Oakie, it has been decided by Paramount is to turn ingenious all of a sudden, professionally speaking.

JACK OAKIE

In other words instead of playing a wise-cracking character, his next role will be that of an unsophisticated Arkansas country lad who tries to sell accident - insurance policies among the two-gun men of a mi g h t ropolitan underworld. Edward Sutherland will direct.

Jean Arthur will play the feminine lead, while William Boyd will have the featured heavy role. William Morris will play Miss Arthur's father. Percy Heath wrote the story and Joseph L. Mankiewicz is writing the continuity.

This picture is but one of six new productions which will go into production at the Paramount studios in Hollywood during the next fifteen days. The launching of these new films will mean the employment of several hundred workers at the Hollywood plant.

Among the new efforts scheduled are "Stampede," starring Richard Arlen; George Bancroft's next vehicle, in which he will play a newspaper editor; the new William Powell production, not yet named; Clara Bow's latest romantic farce, and Josef Von Sternberg's "Dishonored," with Marlene Dietrich in the stellar role.

Pictures now being completed are "Tom Sawyer," "The Virtuous Sin," "The Right to Love" and "Fighting Caravans."

UNIVERSAL WRITER TURNS PRODUCER

Erwin Gelsey, brilliant young editor-in-chief of Universal, yesterday became Slmdom's newest associate producer. By virtue of a vote of confidence given Gelsey by Carl Laemmle, Jr., in the form of a new contract, Gelsey is to supervise the making of a series of features and special productions, the first of which will probably be the Charles O. Norris best-seller, "Seeds."

ERWIN GELSEY

Three years ago Gelsey was assistant to Paul Bern, then a'nario chief of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. When Bern became producing chief of Pathe, Gelsey joined the company as story editor. Junior Laemmle was searching for a progressive co-worker to head his editorial department when he noted the fine work being done by Gelsey and signed the young executive.

Two Assigned to "Reducing"

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, able as they are, are not to be compelled to bear the whole burden of making "Reducing," their next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer co-starring vehicle, a success.

ANITA PAGE

Vernon Rickard Cast

Vernon Rickard, whose voice is heard two or three times a week over Warner Brothers radio, is to show himself on the stage.

The talented young singer and actor, who played the lead so pleasingly in "Follow Thru," at the Mason Theater last year, has been engaged for the leading male role in "Temptations," now playing at the Mayan.

"JUST IMAGINE" FANTASY HIT

Great Cleverness Disclosed in Film of Future

World of Nineteen-Eighty on Carthay Screen

Trip to Mars Sensational in its Novelty

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Put this one down on the books to see. You daren't miss it. It's "Just Imagine."

Messrs. De Sylva, Brown and Henderson step right up and take one of the biggest bows of the movie season. They have turned out an entertainment that is a dazzler in their second film with (incidental) music.

Here's where you can turn your gaze on the world fifty years from now and really believe what you are looking at. What's more you'll enjoy plenty of laughs while doing this.

"Just Imagine" opened before a thrilled audience last night at the Carthay Circle Theater. The reception was of an order to indicate that it will enjoy a long and exceedingly popular run at this playhouse. Comments and applause, as well as the response of laughter, were all testimony to its exceptional interest.

DARING ENTERPRISE

"Just Imagine" jumps all the hurdles as something brand new and different. Consider what there is to gape at and to hear about:

Airplanes that stop and float in midair, and that descend to the ground as quietly and softly as a feather.

A city with buildings that soar 2000 or more feet into the air.

A rocket plane that goes on a journey to the planet Mars.

Television, food and drink in pill form consumable in the fraction of a minute—clothes that look like the wildest nightmare of a costume designer—house furnishings that have the zippy lines of the most ultra modernity.

"Just Imagine" is just a fantasy, a pipe dream, if you want to call it that, but it is an inimitably clever one. The studios haven't brought anything like it to the silver sheet for a half dozen years, and never I would say, has any picture of this let's-pretend type proved quite so enlivening.

In some ways this picture takes one back to the grand old days of a "Lost World" and a "Thief of Bagdad." However, it will probably be a greater success than either of these, because it is not only up to the minute, but ahead of time.

BRENDEL DELIGHTS

Of course, there is the good old reliable El Brendel for the fun. He has often kept his audiences in at least a good humor.

This time, though, he is the life of the party all the way through whether it be held among the earth's inhabitants or the Martians.

Then there is the lovely radiant young girl, Maureen O'Sullivan—enough to gladden any producers these days. Her ideal naturalness fills every scene with warmth and humanness.

John Garrick emerges splendidly as the hero. A fine repression characterizes his portrayal. He fits the mood of the imagined future period.

Frank Albertson is a clever side-de-camp. Marjorie White seems more convincingly peppy than usual. Kenneth Thomson, Hobart Bosworth and others figure in the earth story.

Then those Martians. Joyzelle and Ivan Linow playing dual roles almost run away with the show when they are introduced in the sequences taking place on the neighboring planet.

"Just Imagine" is a triumph for the prop man and the setting designer. In some ways they are the real stars. Stephen Goosson receives the credit for the designing of the backgrounds, and he has set a place not only for the present, but also one might remark for the "future."

What the story is about chiefly is the rivalry between two young men for the heroine's hand. She is in love with the one that loses out, but owing to the legal restrictions of 1930 he daren't even elope with her. The only way he can win over his competitor is to accomplish some feat of daring. In other words, "break a record." Which seems quite logical. The flight to Mars in the rocket plane is the stunt that his success in love hinges on.

The Martian sequences are really the great triumph of the production. From the time that the rocket plane leaves the earth ingenuity is at its peak in the devising of effects, and even the musical and dancing numbers seem to match the daring of what is done in contriving the effects on the adjacent planet.

Earlier the story lags a little and one occasionally loses the feeling of future, but never to the serious detriment of the picture. I think that the most remarkable touch in keeping one buoyed up is the frequent viewing of the magical metropolis of 1980 in the background. The first view of that and the actual introduction to the story are a great stroke of skill.

DIRECTORIAL HIT

For blending the unique elements of this picture no end of credit undoubtedly belongs to the man who directed, and "Just Imagine" will unquestionably stand as a personal victory for David Butler. Butler also provided the continuity for the story. He received a large applause when those concerned with the film were presented on the stage by Frank Fay. De Sylva, Brown and Henderson also gained a huge ovation, while necessarily El Brendel did. Maureen O'Sullivan, John Garrick, Frank Albertson, Marjorie White and others were introduced to the enthusiastic audience.

There are some pleasing songs in "Just Imagine," the theme number, "I'm Only the Words, You Are the Melody," being destined for popularity. But De Sylva, Brown and Henderson outdid themselves in their creativeness for the Martian portion of the production.

Abe Lyman and his band offered a series of musical numbers prior to the showing, which met with response.

NEW ROLE FOR MISS O'BYRNE

Pathe liked the work of Patsy O'Byrne so well in "Breakfast in Bed," featuring Daphne Pollard, that they signed her for Miss Pollard's second comedy, "Her Hero," now in production under the direction of Arch Heath.

Peter Pan Grows Up for New Role

Betty Bronson

Remembered for her fine portrayal in the film adaptation of the Barrie story, becomes Little Orchid Annie in the stage play by that name which starts Monday night at the Hollywood Playhouse.

"NEW MOON" BOOKED AGAIN

In response to requests from local theatergoers, Lillian Albertson will present for two weeks only at the Biltmore Theater, starting on the 27th inst., the well-known actor-singer, Perry Askam, in Sigmund Romberg's operetta, "The New Moon."

Immediately following the Biltmore engagement, which is positively limited to two weeks, the company will travel to Portland, Or., where it will open November 10. Followed by brief stops in Seattle, Vancouver and Salt Lake City, after which Askam will leave for London to appear in a new German operetta.

The cast of "The New Moon" will be the same as that last seen here at the Majestic, with the exception of the role of Marianne, which will be played by Myra Hubert. The balance of the company includes Earl Askam, Charles Boyle, Gary Breckner, John Merkyl, Myrtis Crinley, Dorothy McCormick and Howard Nugent.

Cecil Stewart will again conduct the orchestra.

"OLYMPIA" FAVORABLY RECEIVED

Brilliant Premiere at International Attended by Notables

BY SALVADOR BAGUEZ

"Olympia," the exquisite comedy by Franz Molnar which has as its theme the doings of Viennese nobility, was presented to a most enthusiastic audience at the California International Theater last night.

It is the first offering in the line of Spanish talkies to come from the studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and one well worth waiting for. Adapted to the audible screen by Miguel de Zarraga, it is the Spanish version of that memorable "His Glorious Night," in the English version of which John Gilbert appeared. Thanks to the excellent direction of Juan de Homs, who also enacts a role in the production, it carries its theme very nicely toward its objective.

For the first time since the opening of the California, the audience interrupted the presentation with prolonged applause, approving the very good work of Jose Crespo, who enacted the leading part of Capt. Kovacs. This former juvenile from the Madrid stage, has definitely established himself as an actor of the first magnitude.

The supporting cast, which is the best that has been assembled for a Spanish talkie to date, is headed by Maria Alba, who revealed marked progress in her work, evidently through the guidance of Crespo himself. It is almost certain that she is on her way to greater achievements. Excellent work is also contributed by Elvira Morla, Carmen Rodriguez, Gabriel Rivas and others.

Before the picture was flashed on the screen a number of Spanish-speaking notables present were introduced by the master of ceremonies. Of these Ramon Novarro, unquestionably the idol of his people, gained a thunderous ovation. Lottice Howell sang a Spanish song and Conchita Montenegro, dancer from Spain and now appearing opposite Novarro in his initial Spanish talkie, interpreted very capably an Andalusian dance. Jose Crespo himself recited a poem and was warmly applauded, although not as much as if he had presented himself at the conclusion of the picture.

This week's program promises much in the way of entertainment for the patrons of this cinema temple. Varied numbers include a very amusing Laurel and Hardy Spanish comedy, a newsreel and a cartoon.

'Up the River' Called Satire on Gangsters

After having shivered for years at a seemingly never-ending succession of underworld dramas, local theater patrons at last are to have the chance to see the "take-him-for-a-ride" boys royally "kidded."

Fox is responsible for a picture of this type, "Up the River," which comes to the Criterion Theater Wednesday. The film was directed by John Ford. The story is credited to Maurine Watkins, author of "Chicago."

Veteran New York police reporters and the police chiefs of the metropolis and Sing Sing were asked, it is said, to name the most humorous criminal types they had encountered. A list of these humans was made up and Hollywood and New York were called upon to furnish impersonators.

DUAL ROLE PORTRAYED BY ACTRESS

Loretta Young Wins New Honors in Screen Offering at Downtown Theater

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

Loretta Young doubles for herself in "Road to Paradise," new at Warner Brothers Downtown Theater. She plays two parts: in one, she is a lovely aristocratic daughter of wealth; in the other, a sweet, fine-at-heart girl foil for some slick criminals.

Well, if you want to, you can imagine just what sort of a picture play this is going to be. The resemblance between the two girls will be so striking that the one from the slums can impersonate the one in the social register, become involved in some amazing predicaments and perhaps steal some jewels. She will probably get the boy friends of the wealthy girl all mixed up. Also, in the end, it will turn out that the two are sisters, long-lost to one another. And they will kiss and be reunited.

You're right. Exactly right. This is the story of "Road to Paradise."

With such a plot and such characters, there's room for all sorts of amusing and unusual situations. There's the incident where the girl criminal, impersonating her sister, is baffled by the maid speaking French. The dramatic moment when the young man discovers he hasn't kissed the girl he thought he had. The cross-examination administered by the bull-dozing detective to the bewildered members of the family. And so on.

Loretta Young, of a necessity, has to do a lot of acting. She's very sweet and attractive looking in both parts. I wasn't sure until I looked at my program whether the young man was Jack Mulhall or not. He seems to have photographed differently. He, however, did his usual capable work in an insipid role. Raymond Hatton was terrifying looking as Nick, skulking thief. George Barraud etched an excellent portrait of Jerry, the "Gent," a suave English crook. His scene with the detective and Miss Young carried as much suspense as anything in the picture.

Kathlyn Williams appeared briefly in a mother role. Fred Kelsey, Ben Hendriks, Jr., Dot Farley, Winter Hall and Georgette Rhodes also had parts. William Beaudine directed. The picture moves more slowly than it should at times. On the new Warner program were also to be found two Vitaphone varieties, Morris and Campbell in "His Public," Roger Imhof in "Rural Hospitality" and a sound news reel.

CONCERT TICKETS GO ON SALE TODAY

Announcement has been made by George Leslie Smith, manager of the Philharmonic Orchestra, that single tickets for the opening pair of concerts the evening of the 23rd inst., and the afternoon of the 24th inst., will go on sale today. This is a week earlier than usual, and is said to be due to the unusual interest in the beginning of the new season.

The program for the opening concerts follows: Bach-Respighi's "Passacaglia;" Brahms Symphony No. 4; Debussy's "La Mer" and "Bolero," by Ravel. Rehearsals will be under way Tuesday morning and will continue daily under the direction of Dr. Artur Dodzinski.

WHIMSICAL FILM SUNG AT WARNER

"Sweet Kitty Bellairs" Presented by Players in Wigs and Satins

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

As ornamental as a tankard of ale, but foaming to less effect, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" opened yesterday at Warners' Theater in Hollywood. Adapted from an old David Belasco play and set to incessant music, this new effort in red-and-green Technicolor resembles nothing so much as a series of hunting prints, the like of which used to adorn every chop house and rambling inn of the countryside. Its chief difficulty resides in the fact of its own quaintness: "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" is so determinedly whimsical it has no time to be anything else.

You have never seen a film like this before; though perhaps, the better verb is "heard." Nine-tenths of it is sung, or recited to music. The year is 1793, the locale a resort appropriately called Bath, and surrounding roads. A company of singers whose identity is effectively disguised by the varied hues and a staggering wardrobe of wigs and satins undertakes to interpret the story. This story, evidently the least important thing about the picture in the eyes of the producers, makes not the slightest attempt to inspire sympathy or emotion of any sort; you may consider yourself fortunate if you can keep track of who's who.

Partly this is due to the dependence placed upon the lyrics to carry forward the plot, as on the operatic stage. But motion-picture audiences are not trained in the procedure; and besides, they are not wholly responsible. Photographing songs is still largely a matter for crystal-clear enunciation, faultless reproduction and timing if it is to mean anything to the man in the chair; and in that respect Ernst Lubitsch, in "The Love Parade" and "Monte Carlo," has been most successful.

But this is no place for comparisons; it is only that "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," by the very elaborateness of its investiture, so earnestly pleads for representation among the better sound films and thus challenges precedent.

Claudia Dell, a vivacious, golden-haired newcomer, adorns the swiftly shifting panorama in the role of Kitty herself. I remember that she was pleasing to look upon, though who she was or what she was to the play itself remains a dark secret to this day. Her principal duet, "I Love But You," was with Walter Pidgeon, who counterpointed with "I've Been Waiting for You." Capt. O'Hara, whom I recognized with a start to be none other than Perry Askam, did the lustiest singing of all with his "I Am the King of the Highway." Askam's voice was easily victor.

The scattered spoken lines were archaic and stilted, though those two incorrigible troupers, Ernest Torrence and Lionel Belmore, managed to inject some humor into the ones that came their way. June Collyer, demure and rosy-cheeked, appeared in a few sequences; and others were Arthur Edmund Carewe, Douglas Gerrard, Christiane Yves and—can it be? — Flora Finch.

How much of the original piece has been retained in this Vitaphone, I cannot say, though I seem to recall something about a pirate ship in an earlier and silent version which is here absent. Pictorially several of the scenes are entrancing, others blurred.

Alfred E. Green directed, from J. Grubb Alexander's adaptation.

An amusing skit with Joe Frisco highlights the supporting program, which also offers "The Bard of Broadway," with Walter Winchell, and a news reel.

Skill Marks First German Talking Film

One of the novelties of the season appears at the Filmarte this week. It is a picture released in two versions during the same evening. UFAtone's first talkie, "The Melody of the Heart," can be heard in German at the 7 o'clock performance and in English at the 9 o'clock show.

The form which this Eric Pommer production takes is that of the screen operetta, for music much more than dialogue is stressed. In fact, speech is so additional to the main content that it might easily have been eliminated and music alone left.

Ambitious and surprisingly skillful is this, called Germany's first talkie, but in contrast to American productions it still has much to accomplish. Its most outstanding quality, one of an excellence unsurpassed by any picture, is its photography. Taken in and around Budapest, it offers scene after scene of extraordinary beauty; but beyond this is an added essence, a crystal-like clarity, which marks Geunther Rittau as a master of the camera.

Since music is the keynote, it is creditable that the songs and melodies are of a lyric loveliness, their harmonies registering, however, better in the German version than in the English. Werner R. Heymann composed and conducted the numbers for the film.

Individual scenes and sequences promise much for the future of German talking pictures, for there are many in "The Melody of the Heart" which are sheer artistry. But Hanns Schwartz was unfortunately unable to retain a swift and even flow in his direction. A distinct vagueness as to continuity is often confusing.

Appearing in the leading role is Willy Fritsch, an engaging actor who has been seen here before. As a young soldier he reveals himself a singer of ability as well as a definite romantic personality.

A peasant girl of absolutely no conversational ability is rather an odd part for Dita Parlo. Her efforts to make it authentic are somewhat stiff and strained, but as a person she is attractive.

The same cast is seen in both versions and, naturally, the German is lighter and more fluent. Correct as is the English spoken, it does not escape a weighty and pedantic monotone.

Col. Arthur Smeeton, head of the industrial social service and prison work of the Salvation Army, in the eleven western States and Hawaii, who recently returned from the international prison reform congress at Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, the last night of the things accomplished for prison reform by the meeting.

"The nations were officially connected in the sessions.

"The cellular plan of prison management, as exemplified by the German and Dutch, was brought into sharp contrast to the plan pursued by the prison officials of the United States, where the thousands of prisoners eat and play together, Col. Smeeton said.

"In Germany the prisoner stays in his cell, which is as nice as a hotel room, with hot and cold water, a chest of drawers, and shower. Work is taken to him, and he leaves the room.

"Of course there is something to be said for both sides," Col. Smeeton said for both sides," but it has been my observation that all other things being equal, it is better to reform a prisoner among his fellows than in a cell."

CONCLAVE ON PRISONS DESCRIBED

Salvation Army Official Tells of Prague Meeting of Ten National Delegates

Col. Arthur Sowton, head of the criminal social service and prison work of the Salvation Army, in charge of the western States and Hawaii, has recently returned from an international prison reform conference in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, where he had spoken for prison reform by invitation.

Delegates were officially conducted through the notorious prison of Pankrac, as exemplified by the German and Dutch, was brought into close comparison to the plan pursued by penal officials of the United States, among the thousands of prisoners of which he and his party together, Col. Sowton said.

"Whether the prisoner stays in a dungeon, which is as nice as a hotel room, with hot and cold water, with a chest of drawers, and shower, or if it is taken to him, and he never leaves the room, there is something to be said on both sides," Col. Sowton said. "But it has been my observation that all other things being equal, it is better to reform rather than punish his fellows than to punish them."

ATHLETE CHANGES TO SINGING CAREER

Pua Keoloha and Bob Nichols

From expert swimmer to singer and phonograph-recording entertainer is the transformation of Pua Keoloha, Hawaiian athlete, who arrived from Honolulu with Bob Nichols on the Lasco liner Calawali yesterday. They and another Hawaiian boy will sing and play stringed instruments the next six months for recording by Brunswick Balke-Callender Company.

Keoloha a few years back was an outstanding swimmer to whom the mantle of Duke Kahanamoku was expected to fall. Love of music won out, however, but the new water sport of surf-board polo has captured his fancy, and he hopes to introduce it over here.

Book Reviews by Miss Haines to Be Resumed

Tuesday evening book reviews by Helen E. Haines will be resumed at the Central Library next Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m., according to the announcement of City Librarian Everett R. Perry. This is the fifth annual series offered by the board of library commissioners on "Current and Contemporary Books," in which Miss Haines, well-known lecturer and writer, summarizes and evaluates books in many fields of writing, comparing new books with others in the same field.

The first lecture will be called "Retrospect and Prospect in Current Literature." The first half will be devoted to writings and criticisms of Virgil in honor of the Virgil Bi-Millenium. The second half of the evening will be devoted to presentday writings on humanism and culture. Everett D. Martin's "Liberty" and John Powys's "The Meaning of Culture," will be among the books discussed.

Owners Plan for Protest on Storm Drain

Plans to present a united protest to the City Council on the 21st inst. against the adoption of the ordinance of intention for the construction of the fourth section of the Jefferson-street storm drain system were perfected at a meeting at the Benicus Junior High School last night. About 1000 property owners in the proposed assessment district attended.

The sentiment of the meeting, which was presided over by Del A. Schweitzer, former president of the Police Commission, was unanimously against the construction of the storm drain at this time. The proposed assessment district, however, is said to number about 25,000 parcels of property and it was pointed out to last night's protestants that they must add many more to their ranks, if they wish the Council to postpone or abandon the project.

Husband Says He Received No Thanks for Helping Wife; Divorce Granted Him

Dish washing to aid his wife won from her a slur, Roy E. Stephens yesterday testified in winning a divorce from Zola Stephens. He said he tried to be kind by helping with the dishes.

"My wife said, 'I'm sorry I married a servant instead of a real man'," Stephens added. He also complained that they had trouble because his wife didn't like his relatives. Superior Judge Craig granted him a divorce.

Hawaiian Aide Says Governor Busy as Greeter

What Hawaii needs is three governors instead of one, according to Maj. Walter R. Dunham, aide to Gov. Judd, on arrival here yesterday aboard the Lassco liner Calawali.

MAJ. WALTER R. DUNHAM.

"We need one Governor to speak, one to eat and one to work," confided the major. "Gov. Judd really is overworked just giving 'alohas' to distinguished visitors. The procession is endless; Navy Bureau chiefs, army chiefs, ambassadors en route to and from Japan, ministers to other countries."

Dunham will join his family vacationing in California mountains, attend the Masonic Grand Lodge meeting at San Francisco and return home next month.

False Arrest Balm Awarded

Judgment for $1500 yesterday was awarded Clifford Cook, who sued Detective Lieutenant D. M. Fountain, charging false arrest and detention. Superior Judge Bowron, in giving judgment, held the officer had acted in good faith when he arrested Cook, but had done so illegally.

Cook, a sewing-machine agent of Long Beach, asked $25,000 damages in suing Fountain jointly with the Singer Sewing Machine Company. The suit against the company was dismissed. The plaintiff testified that the detective took him from his Long Beach home to the Seventy-seventh-street police station, Los Angeles, without obtaining a warrant. This violated Cook's constitutional rights, Judge Bowron held.

MOON VIEW OF WIFE IN KIMONO DESCRIBED

John Wonder, plaintiff in a divorce case, was asked to believe that his wife, Mrs. Edith Wonder, and another man had gone into a vacant cottage near by to look at the moon, he asserts in his complaint, on file yesterday. Noticing that his wife was clad only in a kimono, the plaintiff declares, he remonstrated with her, whereupon she threw a shoe and a whisky bottle at him, he avers. Finally, the petition states, Mrs. Wonder told him she didn't love him any more.

MALE ARM DECLARED SEEN AROUND WIFE

Another man's arm around his wife was asserted yesterday by Paul A. Fitting in winning a divorce from Bessie H. Fitting in Superior Judge Hazlett's court. The husband said his wife emerged from a Santa Monica dance hall and walked away with a male arm around her.

Judge Hazlett granted the husband a decree, but ordered him to pay $65 a month for the support of the children, Marion, 17 years of age, and Julia, 15, who were left in the wife's custody.

UNATTENDED FIRE RESULTS IN $50 FINE

Pleading guilty before Judge Durrell of Azusa to a charge of leaving a campfire unattended, J. A. Goss of 1154 East street yesterday was fined $50. Goss was arrested in San Gabriel Canyon the 5th inst. by Forrest Ranger Peterson.

BAKER FAMILY ENLARGED

A new buyer arrived yesterday in the household of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baker, the former being an expert on purchasing and editor of the Southwestern Purchasing Agent magazine here, when a seven and one-half-pound baby girl was born to Mrs. Baker at St. Vincent's Hospital. Baker also is secretary-manager of the Purchasing Agents' Association here. His residence is 328 South Roxbury Drive, Beverly Hills.

Pay-Roll Clerk's Sentence Waits Parole Inquiry

Pending further investigation into his character, the case of Harry Imy, former chief clerk in the county architect's office, was continued until the 15th inst. by Superior Judge Wood yesterday.

Imy was accused of padding the pay roll in his department for more than a year, paying checks to fictitious persons which he is asserted to have collected himself. Out of twenty counts charged against him Imy pleaded guilty to one.

But when the case was called in Superior Judge Wood's court yesterday decision was deferred until the 15th inst. to give probation officers more time to investigate the case.

Elderly Man Faces Charge

After a lengthy questioning of Violet Pickens, 15 years of age, police investigators late yesterday announced that today they will request the District Attorney's office to issue a complaint charging E. W. Davis, 76, of 11742 Blythe street, with contributing to the girl's delinquency. The girl was interrogated by Policewoman Lillian Toomey and Investigator John T. Walker of Hollywood division.

Miss Pickens was brought to the attention of police several days ago by neighbors of Davis who stated they understood her father, John Pickens, and her half-sister, Miss Juanita Silverstein, 5168 Tenth avenue, were permitting her to serve as the elderly man's housekeeper.

County Asked to Donate Bull

A young Holstein bull donated by Los Angeles county to stimulate interest in the breeding of pure-bred dairy cattle may be one of the prizes this year at the annual picnic of the dairymen's department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau to be held at the County Farm on the 30th inst.

Request for the donation of the calf was made yesterday to the Board of Supervisors by Supt. Harriman of the County Farm.

More than 500 dairymen of the county are expected to attend the picnic.

HOW CAN WE TEACH CHILD CAUTION ON STREETS?

The idea that a mother is boss because she is a mother is gradually being superseded by the better idea that a mother is boss because she is older and wiser than the baby. The two things are not the same. Naturally if the mother is boss because of the latter she has to show both her age and wisdom by her actions. We have sincere admiration for the mother who manages her children tactfully, thus displaying her adulthood and her wisdom.

We are all familiar with the spectacle of the mother dragging a protesting child across a busy street. Plainly the child needs to be protected because of the darting automobiles, but there are better ways of managing it than gripping the child's hands and pulling him every foot of the way.

GIVE CHILD RESPONSIBILITY

Anyone who knows children should realize that they resent all kinds of restraint. The plea, "Give me your hand," always ends in tears. The child who is old enough to walk alone on the streets feels quite independent of any adult's help, and wants to go alone.

The wise mother does this: Instead of taking the child's hand so that she may protect him across the street she says persuasively at each street crossing, "Jimmy, will you help mother across the street?" Jimmy, feeling important and protective, grasps his mother's hand, looks anxiously both ways, waits until a car goes past, and takes his mother across the street. Jimmy learns to be cautious, and what is more, he is happy because he is independent. In a short time this small Jimmy, who is now 4 years of age, will have learned so well the necessity for caution at the street corners, because of these lessons in protecting his mother, that he can be trusted to go on the street alone.

CAUTION IMPORTANT

As we have said before, and often repeat, there are all kinds of ways to accomplish the same thing. The child whose mother takes all the responsibility of crossing the street and drags him after her is learning nothing. When he is alone he is just as helpless as if he had never crossed a street before.

If, from the moment he has walked alone, the mother has given him this lesson in carefulness, putting the responsibility of their combined safety on the child, the lesson will be learned while the mother is still there to prevent any accidents.

Our streets are a constant menace to every child upon them. They are a menace likewise to the adults. Our safety lies in constant caution at all intersections. Never allow the child to see any adult taking chances, darting out, hoping to cross before an approaching car reaches a certain point. And give the child the responsibility early in his life. He dislikes being a big boy and protecting his mother.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

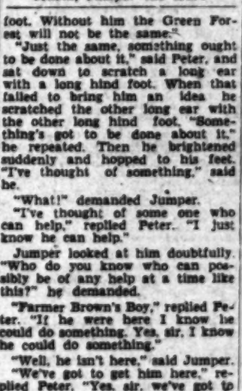
by THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE NEWS IS SPREAD

You'll always find that common fright
Ends anger and desire to fight.
—Old Mother Nature.

News travels fast through the Green Forest and over the Green Meadows. It wasn't long before all the little people of the Smiling Pool, the Old Orchard and the Old Pasture, as well as the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, knew that Lightfoot the Deer was in dreadful trouble. First, the news of the great fight between Lightfoot and another Deer had spread. Then, when Sammy Jay discovered that the two fighters could not separate, but were locked together head to head by their antlers, the news traveled even faster. Every one who could do so went over there to see it. Even Johnny Chuck started, then decided that it was too far for his short legs.



'Don't be silly, Peter," said his cousin, Jumper the Hare

But, of course, Peter Rabbit was there. Somehow, Peter had missed the fight; but he didn't mind this so much as long as he didn't miss this stranger sight of the two Deer locked together. Lightfoot and the other Deer paid no attention to the little people looking on. They had no thought for anything but their own misery. Much of the time they spent down on their knees, for they had used up their strength in fighting and in struggling. It was a pitiful sight and there was pity in the eyes of all the onlookers. There seemed to be nothing that anyone could do. Even great, big Buster Bear was helpless in the matter. Strange to say he was a little bit afraid. This was also true of Yowler the Bobcat. There was something mysterious about this trouble, and mystery usually awakens fear.

"It's dreadful!" said Peter Rabbit. "It's the most dreadful thing I've ever heard of! They'll both die! They'll both starve to death! They cannot eat and they cannot drink. Can't somebody do something?"

"Don't be silly, Peter" said his cousin, Jumper the Hare. "Of course, nobody can do anything. I guess it is one of those things that has to be. I'm sorry for Mrs. Lightfoot, too. See how sorrowful she looks. We certainly will miss Lightfoot. Without him the Green Forest will not be the same."

"Just the same, something ought to be done about it," said Peter, and sat down to scratch a long ear with a long hind foot. When that failed to bring him an idea he scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot. "Something's got to be done about it," he repeated. Then he brightened suddenly and hopped to his feet. "I've thought of something," said he.

"What!" demanded Jumper.

"I've thought of some one who can help," replied Peter. "I just know he can help."

Jumper looked at him doubtfully. "Who do you know who can possibly be of any help at a time like this?" he demanded.

"Farmer Brown's Boy," replied Peter. "If he were here I know he could do something. Yes, sir, I know he could do something."

"Well, he isn't here," said Jumper. "We've got to get him here," replied Peter. "Yes, sir, we've got to get him over here. If he once comes over here he'll do something: I know he will. I don't know why I didn't think of Farmer Brown's Boy before. Now let's sit down and think and think until we can find some way to get Farmer Brown's Boy over here."

Health and Diet Advice

WINTER SQUASHES, GOOD STARCHY FOODS

The squashes, of which there are some fifty-five varieties, claim the gourd for their remote progenitor. They vary from the soft little summer squashes to exceedingly large, hard-shelled winter squashes. Hubbard squash is an excellent variety of winter squash, being dark green and yellow color on the outside and golden yellow on the inside. The shell is so firm that it often has to be split with a hatchet. The shell usually has a warty appearance, although it may be almost smooth in some instances. Other winter squashes contain practically the same food value as the Hubbard squash. The small pumpkins, the Canada crookneck squashes and the banana squash may all be prepared in the same way and they make excellent medium starchy vegetables which may be used at a meal containing either starchy or protein foods.

In selecting a Hubbard squash, pick out a firm one with no soft spots in the shell. Either chop it open or saw it, then clean out the numerous seeds and cut the squash in small pieces. Put it in the oven and bake until tender and the top is a golden brown. It may be served right in the shell with butter over it, or the flesh may be scooped out of the shell and mashed and cream added. If you prefer these squashes may be cooked like mashed potatoes, cutting the flesh into small pieces, boiling, mashing and adding cream and butter.

It is a good plan to include one or more of the cooked and raw nonstarchy vegetables at a meal containing the winter squashes, but since they contain some starch, it is better to exclude tomatoes or any of the acid fruits at the meal.

Both the winter squashes and the pumpkin keep well throughout the winter and they are large enough so that one is sufficient for a meal of a small family.

During the fall and winter months you may add variety to your meals occasionally by using these excellent squashes. They are available during the fall and winter months, when vegetable variety is limited.

Patients who are on a nonstarchy diet and who feel a craving for some form of starch may indulge by taking a serving of winter squash which has a carbohydrate content of from 3 per cent to 15 per cent, and has an added value of being alkaline-forming since it contains good quantities of potash, lime and soda. It is an excellent food for those who have been in the habit of using too many acid-forming foods.

ENSEMBLES IN HOMES PLANNED BY MILADY

Couturiers introduced the ensemble idea. It took at once. Every smartly dressed woman today plans her costume with all accessories chosen to be in perfect harmony.

Now modern homes follow suit. A room is planned like a costume. A general scheme is chosen: Formal, informal, a period room or otherwise, as the architecture of your house and your own taste may dictate.

Next, the prevailing color is selected. Take a living-room for example. The most popular color this season is green, with rust a close second, and blue coming into prominence. But just as you choose the color for your costume that is most becoming to you, regardless of fashion, so with your room—according to its light and to your own preference.

There is no need to make your room a monotone, but there must be a dominating color effect. As in a costume, the accessories can be harmonizing or contrasting tones.

NEW DECORATIONS

Animals top the model. The more unusual the better. Even familiar beasts appear in modern guise. Monkeys take exaggerated shapes, elephants give a new twist to sleek trunks. Collections of dogs, cats, puppies and kittens in every variety of color, size and shape are seen in smart homes. But the prime favorites are the unusuals; the llamas, bears, seals, giraffes, weasels and the like. These are most popular in black or white porcelain or highly polished metal. But capucine (nasturtium) yellow, green and eggplant better suit many decorative schemes. For formal table decoration mirror birds are the newest development of the animal vogue. There are cranes, obviously patrician, that poise on long, slender legs to twist their graceful necks with lordly dignity. They come about ten inches high; mirrored bodies; transparent legs, in a variety of fascinating poses. As to color. This year white is the fashion leader in decoratives with black coming into prominence. But after all, colors can only be chosen to suit your room. Each decorative must harmonize with your room—and that which best harmonizes is most correct for your problems. Decoratives are the final accent to a room ensemble. They must suit the tempo of the room—formed or informal as the case may be—and harmonious in size and shape as well as color.

Chef Wyman's RECIPES

Every Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs. A. L. Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

OYSTER TIMBALES

Take one dozen large oysters three tablespoonfuls of rich cream sauce, one tablespoonful of cream two eggs and one cupful of fine bread crumbs, a seasoning of salt and white pepper. Take the liquor from the oysters, place in the sauce pan and add to it the thick white sauce, and allow to reduce one-half stirring constantly, add the cream and allow the mixture to cool. Beat the yolks of the two eggs and combine them with the cream sauce. Add the bread crumbs, cut the oysters in half, and mix them with the remaining ingredients, season with the salt, white pepper, and a few grains of cheyenne. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, and fold them into the mixture. Butter individual baking dishes, pour the mixture into them, place in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven, for thirty minutes.

PRUNE SOUFFLE PIE

Rub one cupful of cooked prune pulp through a sieve, and beat into it the unbeaten whites of two eggs, two-thirds cupful of sugar, and one-quarter teaspoonful of mace, and beat until stiff, like whipped cream, then add two-thirds cupful of finely chopped walnut meats, and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, place the mixture in a baked pie shell, cover with a meringue and brown in a slow oven.

SCONES

Two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of seedless raisins, one-fourth cupful of candied cherries, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, mixed with half a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Sift the flour, with the baking powder, sugar, and salt, rub, or chop in the shortening, until like coarse meal, add the milk, raisins and cherries. Divide the dough into six portions, make into balls, and place on a baking sheet, these should be about one-eighth-inch thick. Brush the surface with milk, sprinkle with mixed sugar and cinnamon, and bake in a hot oven.

ROLLED OATS PUDDING

Place in a sauce pan two cupfuls of milk, and add one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and one cupful of rolled oats, and four tablespoonfuls of sugar, and cook for ten minutes. Remove from the fire, beat the yolks of four eggs, until creamy, and add them to the mixture, and mix well. Beat the whites of the four eggs, until stiff, and fold them into the batter. Place in a buttered pudding dish, and bake in a hot water bath for about thirty minutes. Take out of the mould, and serve with a vanilla cream sauce.

VANILLA CREAM SAUCE

Place in a sauce pan two cupfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and one-half cupful of sugar. Beat two eggs, and add to them one tablespoonful of flour. Beat well, pour the boiling milk over this mixture, slowly, and continue the beating. Return to the sauce pan, and allow to cook until thick, then add one-half cupful of rich milk, or cream.
